Celebration at Tradition-Colored University in Sewanee to Be Attended by Mr. and Mrs. O. N. Torian.

MANY years of coming and going to Sewanee, Tenn., never have dimmed the joy of return for Mrs. Oscar N. Torian, who left today with her daughter Nan, to attend a celebration at the University of the South at Sewanee. Mrs. Torian grew up in the tradition of Sewanee university, where her father, Dr. Telfair Hodgson, was vice-chancellor from 1879 to 1890.

Mrs. Torian knew so much of the history, tradition, gossip and tales of the university that she joined three other women last year to compile a collection "to preserve them from oblivion."

Another of these women was Charlotte Gaylor, daughter of Bishop Thomas F. Gaylor, whose fortieth anniversary as Episcopal bishop of Tennessee will be celebrated next week. Recognition also will be made of his twenty-fifth anniversary as chancellor of the university, and his fifty-first year as a member of the faculty.

Mrs. Torian's wealth of tales about the university isn't limited to experiences as the president's daughter. She has her own romance there with Dr. Torian to remember, and the activities of her two sons, the late Telfair and Jack, who was graduated last June.

The Torians are so attracted to the typically Southern gentility of the quaint little town that they maintain a summer home here, where Mrs. Torian and her daughter will spend the remainder of the season.

The university is isolated, and is, as an alumnus in a poetic mood wrote, "A towered city set within a wood, far from the world upon a mountain crest." It is situated on the top of the Cumberland mountains.

The Torians aren't the only Indianapolis people with an interest in the tradition-steeped university of the historical South. Charles Edward Thomas is vice-president of the national University Alumni Association, and Thomas Henderson was graduated last June.

Endows English Chair

A few years before the death of Mrs. Hugh McK. Landon, she became interested in the university and endowed a chair of English. Mrs. Landon never had visited the university to arouse any sentiments in its favor; she only appreciated its reputed cultural and historical richness.

Bishop Joseph M. Francis of Indianapolis, and Bishop Campbell Gray of South Bend, will drive down Monday to join many national figures in the celebration. The presiding Bishop of the church, the Rt. Rev. James DeWolf Perry of Rhode Island, Admiral Cary T. Grayson, an alumnus, and Postmaster-General Farley will be special representatives of President Roosevelt. Postmaster-General Farley was a commencement exercises last June.

Comes Here As Bride

Records show that Mrs. Torian's father guided the university through the "depression of 1879." They read: "He came to the university at a critical period of its history, and he was enabled to rescue it from grave difficulties, and, what was at the time of very great consequence, he re-established public confidence in its success and stability."

Mrs. Torian left the south to come to Indianapolis as a bride, but she brought with her treasures of her homeland, and a pride in its ideals. Hanging on the wall of her living room is a sampler, made in 1763 by Sarah Jones of Savannah, Ga.

The dainty bit of handwork, in which is stitched the Ten Commandments in verse, was given to Mrs. Torian by members of the Bullock family, which is related to Mrs. Roosevelt. The sampler is moth-eaten and faded, but the name and age of 7 clearly is visible.

Newspaper Is Treasured

Framed in the glass tray of a coffee table Mrs. Torian has a copy of one of the Vicksburg Daily Citizens, which was printed on wall paper during the Civil War.

Her edition is dated earlier than the copy put to press by Colonel A. B. Crampton on the day of the fall of Vicksburg. The story was recalled this week when Colonel Crampton was buried Tuesday in Lebanon at the age of 94.

When General Grant dismissed his army, Private Crampton, a former print shop hand, found himself in front of the Vicksburg Citizen newspaper office, abandoned in the siege. The city apparently fell at deadline, for one was made up and put ready for printing. He put the paper to press on the wall paper, which had been serving for stock for some time.

Copies were sent to Indiana, where they highly were prized. Faded copies have been made and distributed, but Mrs. Torian is assured of her copy's authenticity, because of its early date of publication.
