

WOMEN RALLY TO SUPPORT OF RECOVERY PLAN

Thunderous Acclaim Given NRA Code by Buyers of Indianapolis.

"It's up to the women!" That ringing challenge from the White House has been met by Indianapolis women with a wholehearted response according to a symposium conducted by The Times.

In his message to industrial leaders urging shorter hours and higher wages, President Roosevelt has asked American housewives to refuse to buy from stores failing to display the NRA emblem.

With thunderous acclaim, the women have voiced their willingness to go along with the President.

Indianapolis housewives, society leaders, club women, business women, women in every other walk of life in The Times survey showed enthusiastic response to the President's suggestions.

Girl Clerk Backs Program

A clerk in a local five and ten-cent store paused long enough in the afternoon sales rush to answer the question of whether she approved of the new federal program.

Dark and pretty, she discussed the subject intelligently. She had argued recovery plans with other girls in the store. She did not wish her name used, for obvious reasons.

"I certainly will support the President," she declared. "When one works as the girls here do, with long hours and short pay, a girl may become radical. But this new plan looks to me like the only way out of a desperate situation. I know that most of the girls in this store are for the program."

Junior Leaguer to Help

In quite a different setting, but with equal enthusiasm, Mrs. Clarence Allig, 4050 Broadway, president of the Tudor Hall Alumnae Association and member of the Junior League, said:

"Of course I'll co-operate. I think it is a fine thing and hope it will prove successful. It will be the duty of the earnest and intelligent people to set the example in following the dictates of the national industrial recovery act."

Equally enthusiastic was Mrs. John Hollett, head of the Indianapolis orphans' home auxiliary of the Junior League.

"By Sept. 1, we will begin to notice an improvement. The system of shorter working hours, will, I think, bring the answer to all our problems. With the new arrangement, middle-aged workers, particularly, will find their health improved and opportunity better and more intelligent living."

Club Leaders Urge Aid

Speaking for the business women of the city, Mrs. Adah Frost of the Indiana Business and Professional Women's Association said:

"Women, more than men, have realized that there must be a change in the industrial world, as well as in the professional world, and that something must be done to lessen the unemployment that exists in the country. They feel that President Roosevelt is on the right track."

"Common sense as well as patriotism will lead women to support the President in every possible way," Mrs. J. P. Edwards, president of the Seventh district, Indiana Federation of Clubs, said.

One Woman Dissents

"The women will rally as they did in war times," she predicted. "And the federation of clubs heartily will support all measures which are for the public good. When the club women are brought forward, the club women will be weighed and found not wanting."

Only one of more than two score women interviewed dissented.

Mrs. Ovid Butler Jameson, state president of the national Woman's party and member of the Anti-Saloon League, said:

"I believe in the President's desire to improve the situation, but working conditions can not be directed by one individual. Every business, factory and profession must be dealt with individually. No. I don't believe in the feasibility of the plan for it takes away state rights."

POOL TICKETS SEIZED

Two Alleged Agents Arrested in Raid on Lobby Bar.

Two alleged baseball pool ticket agents are under arrest today, following a raid on the lobby bar, 152 West Washington street. More than 1,000 pool tickets were seized, said Lieutenant Leo Troutman, who led the raiders.

Police charge they found William J. Harrington, 41, of 1810 Bellefontaine street, and Theodore Hornick, 43, of 248 1/2 Massachusetts avenue, in the act of counting the day's receipts.

TRAILER IS HOME FOR CITY COUPLE

Just as a little "recovery act" of their own, Mr. and Mrs. Myles Hodges have moved into new headquarters. In a specially built trailer home, they are located on a city parking lot, where Hodges is employed, eliminating rent, light and gas bills.

The trailer has a fully-equipped kitchen, clothes closets and a living room and bedroom combined. Recently Mr. and Mrs. Hodges hitched it to their automobile and took a vacation trip to the lakes in northern Indiana. Camp comes to them addressed "Camping in Trailer."

Comb City's 'Jungles' for Hobo Coin Counterfeiters

Federal Agents Nab Two With Big Supply of 'Pocket Change.'

A new custom of carrying pocket change for tobacco, an occasional shave, or a paid ride, when freight car trips get tiresome, is being adopted by one element of the hobo clan.

So common has it become for tramps to pass counterfeit 50-cent pieces that federal sleuths are combing the "jungles" of Indianapolis and vicinity.

Secret service agents report arrest of two transient vagrants in Peru whose pockets were filled with new half dollars. Another suspect was caught in one of the railroad "jungles" of this city.

Cigar stores, restaurants and other shops report receipt of the counterfeit coins in their daily business.

Agents also have started war on circulators of counterfeit $5 bills, who appear to have become active in this section of the state. Agents warned the public to be on the look-out for bills bearing the portrait of Lincoln, marked as issued by the federal reserve bank of New York.

Chasing counterfeiters keeps agents much busier than ten years ago. For some reason, probably the depression, they say, counterfeiters are taking greater chances, and circulation of faked money has increased since 1929.

"It is the poorest paying racket in the world," agents say. "Federal law enforcement is so tight that violators are bound to be caught."

FIRST FILIPINO FLYING CADET VISITS IN CITY

Emilio A. Alba Has Been Made Captain in Island Constabulary.

Claiming the distinction of being the first Filipino flying cadet to be appointed to the United States army, Emilio A. Alba, 32, is visiting relatives in Indianapolis before leaving for his home in the Philippines.

Alba who is visiting Manuel Loreto, employed at the Indianapolis Athletic Club, announced that he has been appointed a captain in the Philippine constabulary, and will assume his new duties when he reaches home.

After attending the University of Illinois, Alba joined the air service of the army. He was in the same class in 1924 in Texas as Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

TRIBUTE IS PAID TO MEMORY OF MILO H. STUART

Body of Noted Educator to Lie in Mortuary for Last Rites.

Sorrowing friends today paid respect to the memory of Milo H. Stuart, 62, assistant superintendent of schools, at the home, 4355 Park avenue. The body was removed to the residence from the Plummer & Buchanan mortuary.

Mr. Stuart died Monday at the Methodist hospital, after an illness of five weeks.

The body will lie in the Central Avenue Methodist church from 10 a. m. until 2 p. m. Wednesday, when friends and acquaintances may call.

Services will be conducted at 2 by the Rev. John G. Benson, Methodist hospital superintendent, and the Rev. Charles Drake Skinner, pastor.

A choir of Technical high school boys and girls will sing. Burial will be in the family lot at Sheridan, Mr. Stuart's birthplace.

Active pallbearers will be: K. V. Ammerman, Broad Ripple high school principal; Dewitt S. Morgan, Technical high school principal; Hanson H. Anderson, Edward E. Greene, Virgil Steinbaugh, and Harry E. Wood.

Messages of leading educators of the nation, with whom Mr. Stuart had come in contact during the many years he served Indianapolis schools, were received by the family.

Among them were expressions of sympathy from Dr. William Lowe Bryan, Indiana university president; Dr. E. E. Lewis, professor of school administration, Ohio State university; Dr. J. B. Edmonson, school of education dean, University of Michigan; Dr. Edwin A. Lee, professor of vocational education, University of California; C. A. Prosser, director of Dunwoody institute, Minneapolis, and Dr. Paul R. Mort, Teachers' college director, Columbia university.

Mr. Stuart had been assistant superintendent of schools since 1930, and formerly served as principal of Manual and Technical high schools.

Realizing that death was near, he wrote his wife prior to undergoing an operation at the Methodist hospital: "Whether I go or stay, I am ready and willing. Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me."

These words will be inscribed beneath an oil painting of Mr. Stuart at Technical high school.

Downtown school offices will be closed from 1:30 to 3:30 Wednesday afternoon, giving employees opportunity to attend the funeral of Mr. Stuart.

The Indianapolis Federation of Parent-Teacher Associations today issued an official statement through Mrs. William E. Balch, president, mourning the death of Mr. Stuart.

"In the passing of Milo Stuart, the youth of Indianapolis have lost a most generous friend and benefactor. With a sympathetic understanding, he envisioned the educational needs of adolescence and directed their interests in useful and helpful channels, making it possible for countless numbers to complete their lives successfully.

"His courageous spirit and high ideals will continue as an inspiration to all who have had the privilege of his guidance.

"With the knowledge that our children have lost a true and loyal friend, the Federation of Parent-Teacher Associations joins all of Indianapolis in this great sorrow."

'TOO RELIGIOUS' FOR SATURDAY WORK; RESIGNS

Alleged Lazy Husband Not Lazy, He Says; Just Conscience-Ruled.

James Ashley, 24, of 1630 Lawton street, is a quiet, unassuming young man, and his wife Madge, 18, mother of two children, is attractive and pleasant.

But the Ashleys are having difficulties. Today they told their tales of woe to Municipal Judge William H. Sheaffer, when Mrs. Ashley had her mate arrested on a lazy husband charge.

Ashley told the court that he wasn't lazy, but that he quit his job last fall because his religion forbids his working on Saturday.

"I was a backslider with my religion, but then I decided to follow it more closely, and, since Saturday is my Sabbath, I quit my job," he said.

Separation of the Ashleys occurred four days ago and Mrs. Ashley told the court that since her husband became a county "basket man," he sold the pork and lard.

"I didn't forbid my wife to eat pork and lard, but I can't do it, because of my religion," he said.

"I gave the money from this to my wife and she went to the movies. I don't go to the movies or smoke, either.

"The real trouble started when my mother-in-law and my wife went to a movie and I hadn't bathed the children when they returned," he said. "I cook the children's breakfasts every morning and do my own washing and ironing, because my mother-in-law won't do it.

"My mother-in-law slapped me twice and said she would rejoice when we were separated."

Sheaffer said he has other troubles. He told Sheaffer he recently had but two shirts and one of them went "plumb to the bad."

He also told the court that his wife doesn't like to cook the bill of fare from the county relief basket.

Sheaffer said he would postpone his ruling until Tuesday, the day following Ashley's slated appearance on charges in juvenile court.

LOCATE STAMP OFFICES

Federal Beer Revenue Branch Office Location Chosen.

Branch offices for sale of federal beer stamps will be established in Ft. Wayne and South Bend, according to plans announced today by Will H. Smith, internal revenue collector.

Field deputies in charge of collections in those districts will stay in office three days a week to sell stamps. Smith said the plans would make it convenient for northern Indiana brewers to buy stamps in smaller quantities.

A representative from Smith's office will go to South Bend and Ft. Wayne this week to arrange for opening the branches about Aug. 1.

100 YEARS' PROOF

At the Chicago Century of Progress Exposition is a replica of a small house built in Philadelphia in 1831. This house was the security for the first loan made in the United States by our first Building & Loan Association.

Since then millions of Americans have purchased or built homes with the steadily increasing service rendered by associations.

Do not sacrifice the investment you have accumulated through years of thrift, by selling cheap your building and loan stock at a time when all commodities and securities are increasing in value. The buyer wants it because he knows its worth. It has proved itself through good times and bad times for over 100 years.

Any officer in your Building and Loan Association will give you facts. Until you get them don't make any decision based upon idle rumor.
