

DEATH CLAIMS SARAH NIBLACK, CITY PIONEER

Prolonged Illness Fatal to Last Member of Old Family.

Following a prolonged illness, Miss Sarah Lydia Niblack, 65, of 1620 Central avenue, last member of a pioneer Indiana family, died Monday night in the Robert W. Long hospital. She underwent an operation about four months ago.

Miss Niblack, daughter of Judge and Mrs. William E. Niblack, came to Indianapolis forty-four years ago when her father became judge of the Indiana supreme court. He formerly was a representative in Congress from the Vincennes district.

A brother, Albert Niblack, was a rear admiral in the navy and during the world war, was in command of the Mediterranean fleet. He died in 1929.

Owned Rare Collection

Miss Niblack had a valuable collection of rare oriental textiles, collected by Admiral Niblack, and a sister, Miss Eliza Niblack, who was killed in an auto accident in Brooklyn three years ago. The collection is displayed in the John Herron Art Institute.

Miss Lydia Niblack was a member of the Propylaeum Association, the Indiana historical Society and Christ Episcopal church, and a former member of the D. A. R.

Survivors are a nephew, Austin Niblack, wealthy Chicago sportsman; two nieces, Mrs. James Thorne and Mrs. Alden Swift, both of Chicago, and four cousins, Griffith B. Niblack, John L. Niblack, Mrs. Al C. Hurst and Sanford W. Benham, all of Indianapolis.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Former Teacher Succumbs

Funeral services of Joseph E. Karns, 70, former teacher and merchant, were to be held at 4 today in the Shirley Brothers central chapel, 946 North Illinois street. Burial will be in Memorial Park cemetery.

Mr. Karns died Sunday at his home, 5432 Julian avenue, after an illness of three years. He formerly was a history teacher at the Valparaiso Normal school and later became president of the Rockford (Ill.) Business college.

Coming to Indianapolis in 1903, Mr. Karns opened a grocery store in Irvington, which he operated fifteen years.

Survivors are the widow, Mrs. Laura B. Karns; a daughter, Mrs. Kathryn A. Hilton; three grandsons, Joseph, Richard and Philip Hilton, all of Indianapolis, and a brother, William Karns, Roseville, Ill.

War Veteran Is Taken

Paul R. McCalip, 1053 North Tremont street, 33-year-old World War veteran, died Monday at his home after a brief illness.

Mr. McCalip had been a meat salesman in Indianapolis for the last twelve years, and was an active member of the Memorial Baptist church. He was also a member of the Broad Ripple Masonic lodge.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 Wednesday in the Memorial

LEAD CITY RECOVERY DRIVE

DEATH STEALS GRANDPA AFTER REPAIRING TOY

Aged Man Succumbs as Nephews Played With
'Fixed' Wagon.

Three little boys are playing with a wagon today that "Grandpa" Peter Mohr fixed for two showings in Indianapolis on Tuesday, Aug. 15.

But "Grandpa" Mohr lies quietly, apparently sleeping. Death came to the 74-year-old man in the back yard of his home, 450 South Gale street, shortly after he had finished repairing the toy wagon.

The little boys are Walter, Wilbur and Larry Edwards, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Edwards, who are tenants at the Gale street address.

Later Monday afternoon, they came to their mother with the news that their favorite toy, the wagon, was broken. They were told that their father would fix it for them.

Puts Bolts In Place

This morning, "Grandpa" Mohr took the wagon to his tool chest in the backyard, and put the missing bolt in place. A few minutes later he was discovered by his wife, Mrs. Mary Mohr, dying of a heart attack in the yard.

The tool chest still was open; the hammer lay on the ground beside the wagon. But the wagon was repaired.

Mr. Mohr had suffered from heart attacks for some time. He was born in Vernon, Ind., and came to Indianapolis twenty years ago.

Works in Garden

In addition to his widow, he is survived by a son, Fred Mohr of Terre Haute, two daughters, Mrs. Stella Parker of Terre Haute, and Mrs. Carrie Culver of Washington, D. C.; a stepson, Irvin Haag of Indianapolis, and ten grandchildren.

None of the grandchildren live in Indianapolis, and the three Edwards children have filled the longings in the old man's heart for them, according to their mother.

"He always was doing things for them," she said. "He repaired their toys, painted signs for them, and talked to them while he was at work in his little garden."

WITHHOLD JUDGMENT IN RELIGIOUS JOB CASE

Man Who Refused Work Because
of Belief Given Freedom.

Judgment was withheld in the case of James Ashley, 24, of 1630 Lawton street, who Monday was convicted in juvenile court of child neglect as a result of refusing to take a job requiring him to work Saturdays, because of religious convictions, was withheld on a lazy husband charge in municipal court today.

Ashley told Municipal Judge William H. Sheaffer he intended to pay the $6 a week juvenile court order for the support of his children and Sheaffer withheld judgment.

Gekeler also withheld judgment Monday after telling Ashley that the legal Sabbath—Sunday—took precedence over the Sabbath of religious sects, and Ashley must support his children, even if to do so forces him to work on Saturday, the Sabbath designated by his church.

Neighbors theaters today offer: "Moonlight and Pretzels" at the Apollo, "Whoopie" at the Circle, "Another Language" at the Palace, "I Love That Man" at the Lyric, "When Ladies' Meet" at the Ambassador, and burlesque at the Mutual and Colonial.

Neighborhood theaters today offer: "The Devil's Brother" at the Irving, "When Strangers Marry" at the Granada.

—Photos by Bretzman.

Upper—Mayor Reginald H. Sullivan (left) and Louis J. Borinstein (left) and Samuel Mueller.

Lower—Harry L. Chamberlin (left) and Samuel Mueller.

These men are among leaders of the Indianapolis Recovery Council, who under the leadership of Louis J. Borinstein, president of the Chamber of Commerce, will aid in commanding the van of the city recovery regiment under the blue eagle of the NRA.

Borinstein, active from the first day of the economic war in the Hoosier sector, recently appointed to the ranks of economic recovery, to serve for the duration of the "war" on the city recovery council.

Mayor Sullivan has gone on record as stating that the city was ready to follow the President's recovery program.

Chamberlin, former circuit judge and president of the Service Club and Samuel Mueller, acting president of the West Washington Street Merchants' Association, are among the captains of industry who have volunteered to serve in the ranks of economic recovery.

Mr. Korns died Sunday at his home, 5432 Julian avenue, after an illness of three years. He formerly was a history teacher at the Valparaiso Normal school and later became president of the Rockford (Ill.) Business college.

Coming to Indianapolis in 1903, Mr. Korns opened a grocery store in Irvington, which he operated fifteen years.

Survivors are the widow, Mrs. Laura B. Korns; a daughter, Mrs. Kathryn A. Hilton; three grandsons, Joseph, Richard and Philip Hilton, all of Indianapolis, and a brother, William Korns, Roseville, Ill.

Mr. Korns died Sunday at his home, 5432 Julian avenue, after an illness of three years. He formerly was a history teacher at the Valparaiso Normal school and later became president of the Rockford (Ill.) Business college.

Coming to Indianapolis in 1903, Mr. Korns opened a grocery store in Irvington, which he operated fifteen years.

Survivors are the widow, Mrs. Laura B. Korns; a daughter, Mrs. Kathryn A. Hilton; three grandsons, Joseph, Richard and Philip Hilton, all of Indianapolis, and a brother, William Korns, Roseville, Ill.

Mr. Korns died Sunday at his home, 5432 Julian avenue, after an illness of three years. He formerly was a history teacher at the Valparaiso Normal school and later became president of the Rockford (Ill.) Business college.

Coming to Indianapolis in 1903, Mr. Korns opened a grocery store in Irvington, which he operated fifteen years.

Survivors are the widow, Mrs. Laura B. Korns; a daughter, Mrs. Kathryn A. Hilton; three grandsons, Joseph, Richard and Philip Hilton, all of Indianapolis, and a brother, William Korns, Roseville, Ill.

Mr. Korns died Sunday at his home, 5432 Julian avenue, after an illness of three years. He formerly was a history teacher at the Valparaiso Normal school and later became president of the Rockford (Ill.) Business college.

Coming to Indianapolis in 1903, Mr. Korns opened a grocery store in Irvington, which he operated fifteen years.

Survivors are the widow, Mrs. Laura B. Korns; a daughter, Mrs. Kathryn A. Hilton; three grandsons, Joseph, Richard and Philip Hilton, all of Indianapolis, and a brother, William Korns, Roseville, Ill.

Mr. Korns died Sunday at his home, 5432 Julian avenue, after an illness of three years. He formerly was a history teacher at the Valparaiso Normal school and later became president of the Rockford (Ill.) Business college.

Coming to Indianapolis in 1903, Mr. Korns opened a grocery store in Irvington, which he operated fifteen years.

Survivors are the widow, Mrs. Laura B. Korns; a daughter, Mrs. Kathryn A. Hilton; three grandsons, Joseph, Richard and Philip Hilton, all of Indianapolis, and a brother, William Korns, Roseville, Ill.

Mr. Korns died Sunday at his home, 5432 Julian avenue, after an illness of three years. He formerly was a history teacher at the Valparaiso Normal school and later became president of the Rockford (Ill.) Business college.

Coming to Indianapolis in 1903, Mr. Korns opened a grocery store in Irvington, which he operated fifteen years.

Survivors are the widow, Mrs. Laura B. Korns; a daughter, Mrs. Kathryn A. Hilton; three grandsons, Joseph, Richard and Philip Hilton, all of Indianapolis, and a brother, William Korns, Roseville, Ill.

Mr. Korns died Sunday at his home, 5432 Julian avenue, after an illness of three years. He formerly was a history teacher at the Valparaiso Normal school and later became president of the Rockford (Ill.) Business college.

Coming to Indianapolis in 1903, Mr. Korns opened a grocery store in Irvington, which he operated fifteen years.

Survivors are the widow, Mrs. Laura B. Korns; a daughter, Mrs. Kathryn A. Hilton; three grandsons, Joseph, Richard and Philip Hilton, all of Indianapolis, and a brother, William Korns, Roseville, Ill.

Mr. Korns died Sunday at his home, 5432 Julian avenue, after an illness of three years. He formerly was a history teacher at the Valparaiso Normal school and later became president of the Rockford (Ill.) Business college.

Coming to Indianapolis in 1903, Mr. Korns opened a grocery store in Irvington, which he operated fifteen years.

Survivors are the widow, Mrs. Laura B. Korns; a daughter, Mrs. Kathryn A. Hilton; three grandsons, Joseph, Richard and Philip Hilton, all of Indianapolis, and a brother, William Korns, Roseville, Ill.

Mr. Korns died Sunday at his home, 5432 Julian avenue, after an illness of three years. He formerly was a history teacher at the Valparaiso Normal school and later became president of the Rockford (Ill.) Business college.

Coming to Indianapolis in 1903, Mr. Korns opened a grocery store in Irvington, which he operated fifteen years.

Survivors are the widow, Mrs. Laura B. Korns; a daughter, Mrs. Kathryn A. Hilton; three grandsons, Joseph, Richard and Philip Hilton, all of Indianapolis, and a brother, William Korns, Roseville, Ill.

Mr. Korns died Sunday at his home, 5432 Julian avenue, after an illness of three years. He formerly was a history teacher at the Valparaiso Normal school and later became president of the Rockford (Ill.) Business college.

Coming to Indianapolis in 1903, Mr. Korns opened a grocery store in Irvington, which he operated fifteen years.

Survivors are the widow, Mrs. Laura B. Korns; a daughter, Mrs. Kathryn A. Hilton; three grandsons, Joseph, Richard and Philip Hilton, all of Indianapolis, and a brother, William Korns, Roseville, Ill.

Mr. Korns died Sunday at his home, 5432 Julian avenue, after an illness of three years. He formerly was a history teacher at the Valparaiso Normal school and later became president of the Rockford (Ill.) Business college.

Coming to Indianapolis in 1903, Mr. Korns opened a grocery store in Irvington, which he operated fifteen years.

Survivors are the widow, Mrs. Laura B. Korns; a daughter, Mrs. Kathryn A. Hilton; three grandsons, Joseph, Richard and Philip Hilton, all of Indianapolis, and a brother, William Korns, Roseville, Ill.

THE INDIANAPOLIS TIMES

DEATH STEALS GRANDPA AFTER REPAIRING TOY

Aged Man Succumbs as
Nephews Played With
'Fixed' Wagon.

Three little boys are playing with a wagon today that "Grandpa" Peter Mohr fixed for two showings in Indianapolis on Tuesday, Aug. 15.

But "Grandpa" Mohr lies quietly, apparently sleeping. Death came to the 74-year-old man in the back yard of his home, 450 South Gale street, shortly after he had finished repairing the toy wagon.

The little boys are Walter, Wilbur and Larry Edwards, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Edwards, who are tenants at the Gale street address.

Later Monday afternoon, they came to their mother with the news that their favorite toy, the wagon, was broken. They were told that their father would fix it for them.

Puts Bolts In Place

This morning, "Grandpa" Mohr took the wagon to his tool chest in the backyard, and put the missing bolt in place. A few minutes later he was discovered by his wife, Mrs. Mary Mohr, dying of a heart attack in the yard.

The tool chest still was open; the hammer lay on the ground beside the wagon. But the wagon was repaired.

Mr. Mohr had suffered from heart attacks for some time. He was born in Vernon, Ind., and came to Indianapolis twenty years ago.

Works in Garden

In addition to his widow, he is survived by a son, Fred Mohr of Terre Haute, two daughters, Mrs. Stella Parker of Terre Haute, and Mrs. Carrie Culver of Washington, D. C.; a stepson, Irvin Haag of Indianapolis, and ten grandchildren.

None of the grandchildren live in Indianapolis, and the three Edwards children have filled the longings in the old man's heart for them, according to their mother.

"He always was doing things for them," she said. "He repaired their toys, painted signs for them, and talked to them while he was at work in his little garden."

WITHHOLD JUDGMENT IN RELIGIOUS JOB CASE

Man Who Refused Work Because
of Belief Given Freedom.

Judgment was withheld in the case of James Ashley, 24, of 1630 Lawton street, who Monday was convicted in juvenile court of child neglect as a result of refusing to take a job requiring him to work Saturdays, because of religious convictions, was withheld on a lazy husband charge in municipal court today.

Ashley told Municipal Judge William H. Sheaffer he intended to pay the $6 a week juvenile court order for the support of his children and Sheaffer withheld judgment.

Gekeler also withheld judgment Monday after telling Ashley that the legal Sabbath—Sunday—took precedence over the Sabbath of religious sects, and Ashley must support his children, even if to do so forces him to work on Saturday, the Sabbath designated by his church.

Neighbors theaters today offer: "Moonlight and Pretzels" at the Apollo, "Whoopie" at the Circle, "Another Language" at the Palace, "I Love That Man" at the Lyric, "When Ladies' Meet" at the Ambassador, and burlesque at the Mutual and Colonial.

Neighborhood theaters today offer: "The Devil's Brother" at the Irving, "When Strangers Marry" at the Granada.

The Elephants and Many Clowns on the Way Here

BY WALTER D. HICKMAN
THREE elephants are coming to town in the largest number that they ever have visited the city. And the clowns are coming to town in the greatest mirth program they have ever given the city.

Believe it or not but that is the bold, flat statement of Will L. Wilken, who is Wilken?

You probably have guessed it because he is the advance press agent for Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey circus, which has been booked for two showings in Indianapolis on Tuesday, Aug. 15.

I really like to see Wilken and the others of this Ringling show come to town, such as Dexter W. Fellows, Roland Butler, Frank W. Braden and Ora O. Parks.

Can't say that I am so enthusiastic over some of the other press agents for some other circuses that have visited Indianapolis.</p