

★ THE CHURCH ★ MARCHES TO VICTORY

A great spiritual revival sweeps the city. Church attendance mounts to new high levels. Sunday school rooms are overcrowded.

A movement unheralded, but widespread and far-reaching has identified itself with the city's life. It constitutes a new era in the history of Indianapolis churches. What is behind it? What has promoted this mass movement back to the Church?

The Times realized such a condition existed. It was aware that new thousands were going to Church. It realized that entire families were not only attending church, but taking an active personal interest in its social and religious life.

It was only natural that The Times would want to know why.

We have no hesitation in saying that we were amazed. The farther we progressed, the more startling the facts. The city's religious and spiritual leaders were interviewed. We felt they might hold the answer. They talked freely. Records were scanned. First hand observations were made. Information was compiled which The Times wants to pass along to its readers. Regardless of your belief, we believe you will enjoy reading about why your neighbors are going to Church.
