"HOW Do these CODES Affect ME?"

NATURALLY that's what you wonder as you read the newspapers these days. Minimum wages—shorter working hours—the cost of raw materials up—codes for every industry. Most of us want to know what all this means in terms of our daily life. How are the codes going to affect us in our every-day buying? In the luxury buying we're going to allow ourselves after three lean years?

Well, speaking now only about furniture, here's one answer, just as it came in the mail to us from one of our prominent furniture manufacturers:

"Under present uncertain conditions we can only accept orders with a reservation as to prices. This reservation relates to conditions beyond our control. Limitation of working hours, ability to secure materials as required, and the delivery of materials bought conditionally as to price, may affect our production and costs."

As a matter of fact, we anticipated just such conditions. So we placed larger orders than usual when we went out weeks ago to the furniture market, to protect you against rising prices. We bought at the last wholesale "lows." And so our departments are bulging out with a grand assortment of stunning new furniture and rugs.
