Contract Bridge

BY W. E. M'KENNEY
Secretary American Bridge League

I HAVE recently written to a number of the country's leading contract players asking them for an interesting hand, so I want to give you today the hand which was sent to me by Robert W. Halpin of Chicago, a past-president of the American Bridge League.

Halpin was captain of the team which represented the Auction Bridge Club of Chicago, which club presented the trophy for national open contract teams-of-four.

He and his teammates proceeded to win this trophy the first year it was put into play—1929.

Halpin says that the mistake made by a great many contract players is in not providing for a bad trump distribution. In the following hand the careless declarer would try to make the hand by simply setting up the club suit by ruffing one club—and then would complain because of a bad break.

South bid one club, West passed and North made a one over one force of one spade. East passed and South went to two clubs. North then bid two diamonds, South bid two hearts, and North jumped to six hearts.

West's opening lead was the ten of diamonds, the queen was played from dummy and when East played the ace, South was forced to ruff with the seven of hearts.

Halpin, figuring that he might get a bad split in trump, now led the three of spades and took the finesse, East winning with the king. East returned the seven of spades which Halpin won in dummy with the ace.

He then led the four of diamonds from dummy and trumped with the eight of hearts. He cashed his ace and jack of hearts and then led a small club, winning in dummy with the king.

The king and queen of hearts were played from dummy, Halpin discarding two clubs from his own hand. He led the king of diamonds and discarded his other losing club.

He returned to his own hand by leading a spade and winning with the jack, and then played his ace and queen of clubs for the last two tricks, successfully making his small slam contract.

FISHERMEN AT LAFAYETTE NAB MONSTER BASS

Good Catch Is Reported in Wea Creek; Contest
Is Launched.

BY LEFTY LEE
Times Fishing Editor.

They're off! The let's go fishing column's contest, that will reward the anglers who bring in the largest small-mouth and the largest big-mouth bass is under way, and open to all until the closing date, Nov. 1.

For the benefit of the fishermen who did not see the rules of this contest, we again will explain. The fish may be caught in any stream, lake, gravel pit or private pond in the state with hook and line. The contest is open to all, the only stipulation being that the bass must be brought to The Times office and weighed, to be entered officially. The awards will be a bronze medal for each class, made and donated by Walter Jones of the George J. Mayer Company. Name of the angler, weight of the fish, date caught and where caught, also will appear on the medal, which will be suitable as a watch fob. Get out now and take that big one, and enter him at once.

A letter from Charles Kleinhaus, of Lafayette, tells of some big ones being taken by the boys from that city. The one taken by John Wray, in Wea creek, near the mouth of the Wabash, is the largest small mouth bass this column has heard of this season, the fish weighing five pounds eight ounces. Tom Crawford helped Wray to land this beauty, that was hooked on a Dowagiac minnow. The other dandy reported by him was a four-pound eight-ounce, small mouth, taken by Dr. W. S. Walters, a dentist of West Lafayette.

According to a report from Ed. Shortridge, Mill creek at Owen park now is clear, and in fine condition for fishing. The recent storms in this section of the state have given this creek a good wash, and the fish are new to life, and Shortridge promises good sport for all.

Here we have a new spot for the angler who likes to look around. If the fishing is just one-half as good as reported to us at this spot, we say, "Let's go." The name of this place is Kelly Bayou, and it is located near Graysville. To reach the bayou, drive to Terre Haute, and then south to the town of Graysville. Anyone in this town then can direct you to the fishing ground.

It is said to be well stocked with bass, crappie and blue gill. The place is impossible to scum, owing to the fact that it is filled with logs, and other natural obstructions. Sounds good, eh?

Ira Minnick and George Schweir will leave Thursday for a trip into Canada in search of musky and trout. Leaving Indianapolis, they will travel to Manitoulin island. At this point they will leave civilization, taking a canoe up the French river to lake Nippissing. These boys are well acquainted with the fishing in this part of the world, as Minnick has two musky, taken in these waters, on exhibition at the Em-Roe store. The fish weighed thirty-two and thirty pounds.

Here is a method of cleaning and frying fish that we think is just a bit better than any other way we ever have seen, so will pass it on to you. Instead of scaling the fish, remove the entire skin. To do this cut the skin just behind the head, insert the knife under the skin, hold firmly with your thumb and pull down.

This eliminates scales all over the place, as the scales will remain on the skin. After you have removed the skin, you will find that the fins can be removed very easily by starting at the tail end and pulling up. To fry the fish, use an iron kettle with about three to four inches of lard, bring to a frying heat, and then drop the fish in, after coating with flour or corn meal, as one prefers.

When the fish is fried in this manner, it will float to the top of the kettle, as soon as it is cooked. It won't cost much to try this method, and you may like it.

Lambert Burns, inspector at the Beech Grove shops of the Big Four, used a novel method to show the boys that he caught an eighteen-inch small mouth bass in Sugar creek, west of the city. Burns ate the fish, and then took the tail to the shop with him to back up his story.

This method reminds us of the Frenchman who put in a claim against the A. E. F. during the war for killing his dog. When the officer who heard his complaint asked for the carcass as evidence, the Frenchy replied that he had eaten it.

Henry Bogue, coach of the city champion high school football team, had two thrills at Little Tippecanoe lake. The first one was his capture of his first bass, a sixteen-inch silver, and the greatest thrill later when his 4-year-old boy, Benjie, caught a seven and one-half inch crappie.

Dutch Irrgang has been trying to hook several big bass that make their home in Eagle creek, north of the city. Irrgang has had a feel of them on two or three occasions, but never has been able to hook them solidly enough to land them.

FISH FRY IS SCHEDULED

Popularity Contest Feature of Event
Sponsored by V. F. W.

Miss Mary Kremer, 25 North Mount street, has been entered by the Veterans of Foreign Wars as their candidate in a popularity contest to be held in connection with a fish fry to be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 2245 East Riverside drive.
