

FOREIGN CRY FOR STABILIZING DOLLAR FAILS

Roosevelt Hasn't Changed Mind on Problem Since End of London Parley.

By William Philip Simms Scripps-Howard Foreign Editor

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Rumors of impending dollar stabilization were nipped today by announcement that the President has not changed his mind one iota since he rebuffed the foreign powers clamoring for it at London.

The mysterious goings and comings of Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, but now in the United States; Treasury Secretary William Woodin; Senator William G. McAdoo, federal reserve bank officials and others, had led to the belief that stabilization was again under discussion.

Gold Countries Uneasy

France, Holland and other gold countries are known to be uneasy lest they, too, be forced off the gold standard.

Though President Roosevelt has let fall no hint of what his plans are with regard to the dollar, he has let it be known—and not without some degree of emphasis—that his views have not changed since the London parley.

At that time he bluntly cabled the conference that he had not the slightest intention of following "the fetishes of so-called international bankers," and warned foreigners that so far as the United States is concerned "it seeks the kind of dollar which a generation hence will have the same purchasing and debt-paying power as the dollar we hope to attain in the near future."

Dollar High Again

At that time it was indicated that the President wanted a dollar worth what it was around 1925-26, that is to say, about 65 cents. At this particular moment it seems to be headed in the opposite direction. Measured in gold, the dollar is up again to where it is worth 75 cents—a depreciation of only 25 per cent.

Great Britain, France and the rest of Europe are waiting with anxiety to see what the President's next move will be. Another war debt payment will fall due on Dec. 15.

KEG BEER BOOMS SALE OF PERMITS BY STATE

Fry Reports Mails Are Flooded With Dealers' Requests.

Several requests were for changes from the routine retail permit of $100 to a combination permit, which gives the holder a right to sell draught beer both to drink on the premises and to take out. They cost $400.

The changed status will mean thousands of dollars to the state in new permit revenues, it appeared.

Miss Merica Hoagland, Noted Club Leader, Dies

Miss Merica Hoagland

Woman Prominent in Civic and Welfare Circles Passes in Hospital.

Funeral services for Miss Merica Hoagland, 2204 North Pennsylvania street, leader of many women's organizations throughout the country, will be held at 8:15 tonight in the Flanner & Buchanan mortuary, 25 West Fall Creek boulevard. Burial will be in Lindenwood cemetery, Ft. Wayne, Friday.

Miss Hoagland died Wednesday at St. Vincent's hospital. She was taken to the hospital Friday after a three weeks' illness and never regained consciousness.

Miss Hoagland always was interested in legislative problems, especially matters pertaining to women and children. During the last few years of her life she was a mutual service director at the Diamond Chain and Manufacturing Company. She was born in Ft. Wayne and attended public school there. She was a graduate of Vassar college.

She became a member of the Indiana library commission thirty-one years ago, when she established the Indiana library school. Since that time she worked in bettering and advancing conditions of business women. Her last public appearance was three weeks ago, just before her illness, when she attended the International Council of Women at a Century of Progress Exposition.

As a member of the Women's Association of Commerce, Miss Hoagland helped organize the Indiana branch of the Business and Professional Women's Club. She was president of the Indiana Union of Literary Clubs, former member of the Indiana federation.

Active in Club Work

In recent years her major interest was in the Business and Professional Women's organization. She was one of the earlier presidents of the Indiana Vassar Club and was prominent in its activities. Survivors are a sister, Mrs. Emma Hoagland Fleming, Ft. Wayne, and several nieces and nephews, Mrs. Florence Fleming Davis, Ft. Wayne; William H. Fleming, South Bend; Miss Esther Merica Fleming, Paris, France; Ralph Hoagland, Chicago, and Mrs. Emma Bachus Hazzard, Franklin, Tenn.

Retired Engineer Dies

Following an illness of two years, Fred H. Miller, 69, retired railroad engineer, died Wednesday at his home, 252 East Iowa street. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 Friday at the home. Burial will be in Crown Hill cemetery.

Mr. Miller was a member of the Loyal Order of Moose and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. He had been an engineer on the Belt railroad for forty-four years.

Survivors are the widow, Mrs. Ida Miller; a son, Erich Miller, both of Indianapolis; a daughter, Mrs. Francis Montgomery, Greenfield; three brothers, Henry, Ernest and John Miller; and a stepson, Mrs. Ida Schebler, all of Indianapolis.

ONCE BROADWAY IDOL, NOW RUNS CHICKEN FARM

Florence Webber, Stage Star of Former Days, in Retirement.

of Blanche Ring, Mitzel, John Drew, Weber and Fields and a host of others; the Broadway of the twentieth century, when it was young and "show business was good," has come back to Indiana to farm.

It took the appearance of Texas Guinan in Indianapolis to bring the soprano out of her self-imposed obscurity. Miss Webber had not been inside a theater for seven years until Texas came to town. Wednesday she appeared at the stage door and introduced herself to the "queen of the night clubs."

Christened by Diva

The women embraced each other. They recalled days when they were two of the theatrical luncheon group which daily gathered at the Claridge hotel near Times Square. They recalled Miss Webber's starring vehicles, "The Climax," "Lady Luxur," "Floradella," Victor Herbert's two great musical shows, "Naughty Marietta" and "Sweethearts," "Poor Little Rich Girl," "Do Drop Inn" and her last show, "Lollipop," in which she co-starred with Ada May Weeks.

She told Texas of her farm here named "Jerrywood" in honor of Geraldine Farrar, a close personal friend of Miss Webber's and christened by the diva, herself.

Leads Chicken Chorus

Miss Webber told Texas that only occasionally does she get a "yen" for the show business. When she found it getting bad, she returned to Indianapolis, where she was born and attended Miss Sewell's school and Tudor Hall before going on the stage.

When she left the theater, Texas still was open-mouthed. "Did you ever hear her sing?" she asked incredulously. "Why, she had a voice that 'knocked 'em in the aisles.' She starred in more musical shows than I have relatives. And now she leads a chorus of 3,000 chickens. Oh, lordy!"

POLICE NAB PROWLER

Suspect Found Hiding Behind Pole Faces Vagrancy Charge.

Called by firemen at engine house No. 2, Sixteenth street and Roosevelt avenue, a police squad headed by Sergeant Barrett Ball late Wednesday night arrested on a vagrancy charge Paul Dodson, 25, of 413 East Nineteenth street, whom they said was hiding behind a pole.

Fireman M. W. Welch said he had been watching three young men prowling around a drug store at the corner. Two of the men ran as police arrived.

FURNITURE CARTED AWAY BY BURGLARS

Police Are on Lookout for Bedroom Suite.

Police today had a weather eye open for a moving van containing a complete bedroom suite, reported stolen early today from a house at 2310 College avenue, owned by Miss Wilemina Adams, R. R. 5, Box 335.

The house had been entered by use of a key, Miss Adams said, and a bed, springs, mattress, a dresser, a mirror and an 11x12 rug stolen. Receiving a report that someone was breaking into a vacant house at 1101 North Capitol avenue late Wednesday night, a police radio squad arrived at the house to find Clemon Bell, 34, Negro, 534 Blackford street, in the house.

Bell said he had entered by breaking a rear window. Plumbing fixtures were loose, and police believed he intended to remove them. He was slated on a burglary charge.

U. S. AND STATE PROBE KANSAS BOND SCANDAL

Relentless Quiz Goes On as Assembly Call Is Planned to Oust Treasurer.

By United Press

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 17.—Federal and state agencies pursued a relentless investigation into the million-dollar Kansas bond forgery today while Governor Alf M. Landon planned to ask the legislature to remove State Treasurer Thomas B. Boyd, one of three accused of participation.

Investigators going through state records were not sure that the end of the alleged forgeries was in sight.

Total forgeries were brought to $1,151,000 with discovery of $150,000 in spurious warrants. Some $100,000 was said to be in the hands of the public.

Mesh of Forgeries

Ronald Finney, Topeka and Emporia bond broker, was at liberty under $25,000 bond, charged with "uttering forged securities." Boyd was free under bond of the same amount, charged with allowing bonds to be removed illegally from the state treasury.

Leland Caldwell, employee in Finney's office, was under $10,000.

The mesh of forgeries was first discovered when officials found that $329,000 in municipal and school district bonds had been duplicated twice, so cleverly that in some cases even the signers of the bonds were unable to differentiate between the original and the spurious.

Confer With U. S. Officials

Boyd revealed he had allowed Finney to take $150,000 in state bonds to Chicago, purportedly to obtain a loan.

The federal government entered the case to determine whether there have been violations of the banking laws or other federal statutes.

S. M. Brewster, United States district attorney of Kansas, was at the national capitol to lay the affair before Frank N. Parrish, attorney of the criminal division of the department of justice. He also conferred with J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the division of investigation.

Free From Offensive Body Odor Free from M. S., too! (MEDICINE SMELL)

Chemists Discover New Way to Remove Stale Perspiration Curds... Real Cause of Body Odor... by Deep-Pore Cleansing

YEARS ago people rarely took baths in water. Instead, they bathed in perfume—believing with the Romans that the way to correct offensive body odor was to smother it with another odor even more powerful! Now happily the cause of body odor—Stale Perspiration Curds—has been discovered. And research chemists have developed a quick, odorless way to end it instantly.

Stale perspiration contains calcium, salt and particles of fat. The thick and sticky lather of most ordinary toilet soaps is unsuited chemically to mix with this waste material and set it free. Instead it hardens into clogging curds. That's why deep-pore cleansing is needed to remove the objectionable curds... and it is a scientific fact that there is only one way to accomplish this. Other brewers hooted and stormed but continued with their white bottles and—continued to lose sales to SCHLITZ. Now, many prominent brewers have adopted the Brown Bottle—thus admitting the scientific truth and compelling force of SCHLITZ statements—which had made such an indelible impression on the public. BUT—as sensational as the Brown Bottle advertisements were, they are dwarfed by the latest announcement of SCHLITZ that they have solved a problem which has puzzled the industry for years—and that is Enzyme Control in the brewing processes. Enzymes digest malt, hops, yeast and water into solution. Unless the enzymatic activities are controlled skillfully—the result is a rank, indigestible beer. SCHLITZ is brewed to a split second under a secret enzyme control—it is fully fermented at the brewery. It cannot ferment in your stomach to cause indigestion, flatulency, or discomfort otherwise. If you haven't felt just right after drinking some other beer, drink SCHLITZ in Brown Bottles. There's a difference. And what a flavor! What brilliance! What full-bodied ripeness!
