

MANY STATES WILL BRING LIQUOR BACK SOON AFTER REPEAL VOTE IS FINISHED

Some Will Continue Under Old Prohibition Laws; Revenue Hope Spurs Legislators to Action.

Following is the second of a series outlining what will follow repeal of the eighteenth amendment. This dispatch is based on a nation-wide survey by United Press bureaus throughout the country.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—At least half of the states may be expected to restore immediately after repeal of the eighteenth amendment, or soon thereafter, a nation-wide survey by the United Press showed today.

Other states will, until further action, continue under state prohibition. Protection against liquor shipments from outside territory is guaranteed by the new amendment.

States in this dry list will include Alabama, Georgia, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, New Hampshire, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Vermont.

In numerous states liquor control plans either have been adopted or are being prepared for consideration by legislatures which will be called into special session in the fall and winter.

Eager for Revenue

Need of additional revenues has spurred action. In the greater number of instances, provisions against return of saloons either are in the statutes or are contemplated.

Liquor control or license statutes have been enacted in several states and in some others old pre-prohibition excise laws will become operative again.

States that are prepared to resume sale of liquor include Arizona, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Maryland, Montana, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York and Rhode Island.

In most of the remaining states, studies are being made with a view to seeking legislation at special sessions of legislatures, due to be called within the next two or three months.

Legislatures to Meet

Florida's legislature has submitted a county option amendment to the state constitution. It will be voted upon in November. Legislatures are expected to meet to consider liquor legislation soon in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania and Wyoming.

Despite the number of states which now are looking to return of liquor, certain states indicate strong opposition to breaking away from prohibition. In Maine, the original prohibition state, the legislature last winter voted down a proposal for a referendum on taking prohibition out of the state constitution.

Kansas to Act

In Kansas, one of the notably dry states, the legislature meets soon to consider legalization of beer, calling of a convention to deal with federal repeal, and consideration of a referendum repealing prohibition from the state constitution.

Drys believe Kansas will stay dry, regardless of what it does concerning repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Prohibition is imbedded in Kentucky's constitution and the question can not be taken up except at a regular session of the legislature. The next regular session will be in January.

Last winter the Oklahoma legislature voted down a proposal to strike prohibition from the state constitution and the Texas legislature did the same thing in May.

This question will be voted on in New Mexico Sept. 9 and in Ohio and Utah Nov. 7.

3 BOY SCOUTS RESCUED FROM LOFTY LEDGE

Lads Brought Down From 400-Foot Height by Means of Rope.

By United Press

ADIRONDACK CLUB, LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Aug. 31.—Three Boy Scouts who had been marooned on a ledge 400 feet up the side of Wallace mountain since early Tuesday, were rescued late Wednesday.

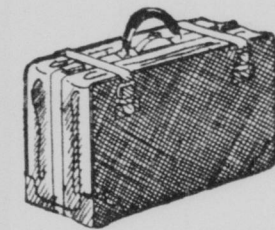

A group of forest rangers, state police and mountain climbers succeeded in pulling the youths—Tyler Gray, William La Due and Robert Glen of Plattsburgh—200 feet up the side of the sheer precipice to safety by means of ropes.

The youths were drawn to the top ledge separately. The ropes were lowered and the Scouts tied them about their waists. In each instance, a second rope was used to guide them up the bleak mountain side.

The task proceeded slowly. The boys helped by clutching at the side of the precipice and by kicking with their feet. Except for shock and slight exposure, they were believed in fair condition.
