

NATION TO JOIN IN DEDICATING CLARK BRIDGE

Corner Stone of Memorial
Also Will Be Laid at Vincennes Sunday.

The one hundred fiftieth anniversary of the signing of the Paris peace treaty will be celebrated Sunday at Vincennes, with laying of the corner stone of the George Rogers Clark memorial and dedication of the George Rogers Clark bridge.

The city of Vincennes and the state and federal George Rogers Clark commissions have been busy for months preparing the celebration, which will be held on a national scale.

The celebration, commemorating the winning of the old Northwest Territory and other achievements by George Rogers Clark and his associates, brings to a close the observance of the anniversaries of the Revolution.

Thousands of persons from throughout Indiana, Illinois, and Ohio are expected to converge upon the city to watch the exercises, which is the largest program ever prepared in the state.

Salute for Governors

The program will begin at noon, when the Princeton battery of the One hundred thirty-ninth field artillery will fire a salute upon the arrival of Governor Paul V. McNutt and Governor Henry Horner of Illinois.

The Vincennes Legion chorus, winners of the state prize at the recent American Legion convention at Evansville, will sing.

D. Frank Culbertson, vice-chairman of the George Rogers Clark sesquicentennial commission, will preside over the opening exercises, which will be dedication of the bridge and its approach.

McNutt will dedicate the bridge for the state of Indiana, and Horner will dedicate it for Illinois.

Trumpeters to Play

The Indiana national guard trumpeters of Lebanon will furnish music for the raising of the flag over the memorial grounds, where the bridge dedication will be held, and the Princeton battery will fire the salute to the colors.

A luncheon in honor of guests of the commissions will be held at 1:30 in the Gibault gymnasium, with Clem J. Richards, chairman of the commission, presiding.

The program for the official sealing of the corner stone of the memorial building will begin at 3:30. Music will be provided by the Lebanon trumpeters.

Luther Ely Smith, St. Louis, will preside over the corner stone laying and the Vincennes Legion chorus will sing. The invocation will be by the Rev. James Gregoire, pastor of the St. Francis Xavier church of Vincennes.

Fess Will Speak

Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, chairman of the federal George Rogers Clark sesquicentennial commission, will deliver the principal address.

His discussions will include "The Signing of the Peace Treaty" and "The Winning of the Northwest and Other Achievements of George Rogers Clark and His Associates."

The addresses of the two Governors and Senator Fess will be broadcast over WKBF, Indianapolis; WGBF, Evansville, and WOZO, Ft. Wayne, between 12:30 and 1:30 and 3:30 and 4:20.

'Blanket Code' Discarded; Fizzes in Liquor Case

Defendant Decides Maybe
That Was Alcohol in His Glass.

If a protective "blanket code" doesn't work, it should be discarded, was the decision Thursday of Lewis Richardson, 57, of 4334 Carrollton avenue, when he appeared before Municipal Judge Dewey E. Myers.

Richardson, a blanket salesman, followed a code of his own in giving testimony during his trial and that of Wallace Humphrey, 35, Negro, of 521 Ogden street.

Humphrey was arrested Wednesday on charge of selling alcohol without a permit by a police squad which followed several men into the Ogden street house.

According to Police Sergeant Claude Kinder, Richardson was seated at a table, in the act of raising a small glass to his lips, while a bottle stood on the table.

Throws Glass Down

At sight of the officers, Richardson dashed the contents of the glass to the floor, although the bottle and glass were confiscated by the squad.

"It was only ice water, Judge," Richardson told Myers. "You see, I go in that place frequently to sell blankets, and I asked for a drink of water. They handed me that glass, just before the police came in."

Myers glanced at the small glass, one of "three-finger" size, and the bottle of alcohol which had been in front of Richardson.

Admits It Was Alcohol

"I don't believe you, Mr. Richardson, so I am going to fine you $10 and costs for disorderly conduct," Myers ruled. He fined Humphrey $100 and costs. Three Negroes and two white men, also found in the place, were fined $5 and costs, suspended on good behavior.

In the meantime, Richardson had been seated in the prisoner's dock, considering where his code had led him. After while, he arose and stood before Myers.

"Judge, I guess that was alcohol in the glass," Richardson said.

"In that case, we'll suspend the fine and costs," Myers replied agreeably.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 1.—B. D. Cruikshank didn't mind his automobile injuries until he found his golf handicap raised from 12 to 26. Then he sued for $5,400 damages.

Denied the right to assemble in McKinley county where martial law still is in force, the coal workers trekked twenty miles to Lupton Thursday night and held a mass meeting.

They met in a council of war and decided to "freeze out" the national guard McKinley county by holding their meetings henceforth in a large cavern a quarter of a mile outside the martial law district.

Prison Cells.

By United Press

JOLIET, Ill., Sept. 1.—Warden Frank T. Whip revealed today that, after receiving "grapevine" reports that convicts were receiving daily race results, in Stateville prison, he ordered a search made of all cells. Among the things found were:

A recipe for making home brew.
A radio set.
Two sets of loaded dice.
A book on the art of writing love letters.
A bottle of perfume.
A jar of cold cream.
A box of finger nail polish.
A suit of pink silk underwear.

AUTO SALES INCREASE

Business Is Double That of August, 1932, Report Shows.

A definite indication of improved business conditions was seen today in August new automobile registrations in Marion county, which were double the total of August, 1932.

According to the compilation, 1,265 new cars were sold last month compared with 624 purchased in the same period last year.

August registrations also show an important increase over figures for July of this year, which were 982.

NRA OVERHEAD KEPT LOW BY ECONOMY HERE

Ban Put on Telegraph and
Phone Tolls Except in Emergency.

Economy is the watchword of both national and local NRA offices.

Commenting on a dispatch from Washington today stating that the National Recovery Administration had prepared to establish a special division to watch the telegraph and telephone toll and paper and ink situation, Francis Wells, Indiana recovery director, pointed out similar economies in the Indianapolis NRA office.

"I have issued instructions that no one is to use the telephone here for long distance calls except Frank Kurka, assistant United States department of commerce representative, and myself," Wells declared.

Call Kept at Minimum

"Since the start of the NRA campaign in Indiana we only have called Washington five times and then on very urgent matters.

"Our biggest expense is for letterheads and envelopes. This office mails about 150 letters a day in answer to queries regarding codes, interpretations, and other questions in connection with the NRA program.

In Washington, Lieutenant Commander C. W. Stephenson, who saved the navy millions of dollars after the World War through astute buying, has been appointed by General Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator, to reduce expenses.

Must Save on Tolls

Stephenson found that letter-writing in national NRA headquarters had become a lost art, according to the United Press, and that NRA workers were using the long-distance telephones instead of stamps.

August registrations also show an important increase over figures for July of this year, which were 982.

General order No. 1 followed this discovery, which prohibits NRA workers from using the telegraph or telephone in any case where cheaper communication will meet the situation.

Turning to the paper and ink situation, Stephenson found that 7,000 copies made of the fifteen statements issued each day were costing the government $600 a day. He issued an order limiting the releases to 2,000 copies a day.

ELECTRIC RATES WILL BE REDUCED $25,000

Public Service Commission Order to Benefit La Porte.

Reduction of about $25,000 in electric rates charged by the La Porte Gas and Electric Company at La Porte was ordered by the public service commission Thursday.

The order was based on agreements between the utility and the city of La Porte, obtained by Sherman Minton, public counselor.

Patrons of the Argos municipality-owned electric distribution system will receive a 12 per cent rate reduction as result of another commission order.

The Pennsylvania railroad was instructed to install an electric warning flashlight at its Brookville road crossing in Marion county.
