McNutt Denies Greenlee Is Scheduled for Shift

Spikes Report Secretary to Be Shorn of His Patronage Post.

Governor Paul V. McNutt today denied emphatically that he has any intention of shifting Pleasant Greenlee, his patronage secretary, from his present post.

Greenlee, who has made enemies through the handling of appointments, has been target of attack by certain Democratic leaders.

Reports have been current, since the legislature met, that he would be "kicked upstairs" by the Governor. That is, he would be given a more remunerative post with the McNutt administration and removed from the Governor's office.

"There will be no change in Greenlee's position at this time nor do I contemplate any in the future," the Governor said in denying the rumors, some of which have been published.

Greenlee has had the Jim Farley role with the administration. He explains the animosity against him in terms of jealousy.

"I know some of these kickers who would like to turn this administration into a sort of Harding regime," Greenlee commented. "They would let Governor McNutt be worked and ruined through pretended friendship."

NRA MEDIATION BOARD MEETING SLATED FRIDAY

Score of Complaints Will Receive Hearings, Says Wells.

The Indianapolis mediation board to consider complaints against firms charged with violation of the NRA will meet Friday, with several hundred complaints to be considered.

Francis Wells, Indiana department of commerce representative, today announced that possibly a score of the complaints would call for hearings. He said he intended to suggest to the board that some of the hearings be open.

Meanwhile, the local group received reports from Evansville that strikes are being threatened after employers have discharged employees who have been identified with attempts to create unions.

Frank J. Kurka, assistant to Wells, said he made a personal survey of the situation recently and available information had been forwarded to Washington and that General Thomas H. Hammond of the department of commerce, was to handle the situation.

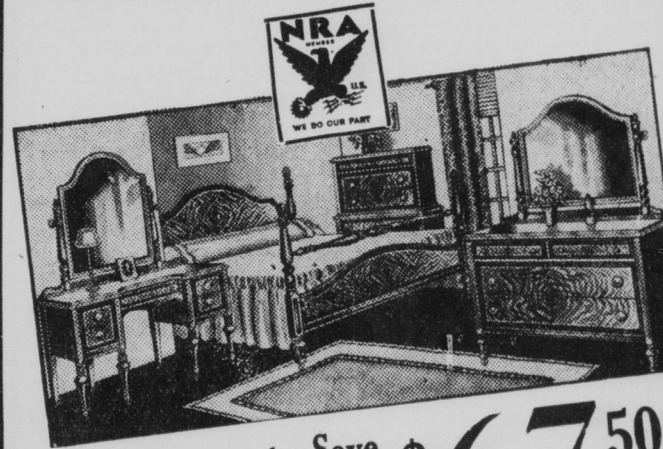

So far, the Indianapolis group has not received information on what steps are to be taken.

J. W. Dewey, labor representative of the NRA, also is expected to take some action on the Evansville reports, but he has been ill since he arrived in Indianapolis Monday.

Reports of the NRA survey board here show that ninety-eight have added 1,205 employees and $23,212 to weekly pay rolls.
