Forgotten Sweetheart

by MARY RAYMOND

CHAPTER ONE

THE young man with the gray eyes, clean-cut shoulders passed the pretty girl in Pullman 20 again.

Funny how she could still be reading the same magazine so—well, so darned enthusiastically. He would have been cheered if he had known that the girl occupying the Pullman 20 seats in front of him was aware that he had passed to and from the observation car exactly two dozen times since they left Washington and that almost as many times she had stifled the impulse to follow.

It was plain that the observation car was interesting to the young man and just as plain that his interest was short-lived, once he reached it. "Restless," Joan Waring decided, "and spoiled. Likes his way and generally gets it. If there were the slightest excuse, he'd be starting something right now."

She smiled into her magazine just as the occupant of Pullman 24 swung through the coach again. He noted the smile and checked it up against her. Like silly stories. If she didn't, why in heaven's name had she sat for two days with her particularly pretty nose in a magazine and those particularly lovely eyes upon it, refusing to meet his eyes once in a while?

What could you do in a case like this? Evidently his education had been neglected for it provided no ways of meeting such a situation except the time-worn ones which would, he felt, not work with this type of girl.

He grinned as he thought of the old methods such as, "I'm out of matches. Stupid of me, but if you—" That procedure had come in after the old handkerchief plan died of old age and abuse.

Some of the fellows at school had kept a regular supply of girls' handkerchiefs which often paved the way to a number of interesting adventures. The match idea probably had been outmoded, too, while he was grinding away at Boston Tech. Anyway, it wouldn't work. Not with this self-assured young woman who was so outrageously lovely, devastatingly different, and distractingly sweet with her gray-blue eyes, straight little nose and her dark hair.

BUT, with all the glamour, there was something sensible and genuine and matter-of-fact about her. He could like this girl. He knew it. Funny, how you could know things like that. Just what would happen, he wondered, if he should walk up to her and say something like this—which, by the way, would be the exact truth:

"We'll be in Memphis soon—a city, I understand, of several thousand souls. I am afraid that when you get off this train, I'll never see you again and I want to tremendously. So I am taking this extraordinary way of meeting you. It happens to be the first time I've been such a damned idiot, and I opened a conversation with a girl. Maybe she would light a cigarette, blow a smoke ring and say companionably: 'Sit down and let's talk it over.'"

But no—that would be just the thing she wouldn't do. She probably would think he was trying to connect one of those silly affairs which had always disgusted him. His face grew red at the thought and he settled into his seat more comfortably, reaching for a magazine.

AT the end of the half hour he gave it up because he realized that no one word was registering. He was simply mooning over an unapproachable young woman who looked as though she could be friendly and understanding and yet had maintained that consistent aloofness throughout two trying, yet strangely interesting days.

The porter had stopped and was gathering up his bags. "Coming into Memphis, boss."

"On time, are we?" "Yessuh, we're right on time."

Robert Weston reached for his felt hat and overcoat, swung his scarf about his neck and moved toward the entrance. He stopped there suddenly as the girl behind him came near.

"I beg your pardon."

"Cheer. I had been a silly ruse, blocking the way. Probably she suspected—but it had worked."

HE moved aside. "Sorry," He said it abruptly, at loss to seize opportunity now that it was presented to him. Others had pressed into the narrow passage and for a moment the girl was very close to him.

He watched her later as she selected her bag from the miscellaneous assortment outside, tipped the porter and followed in the wake of the red cap. Having identified his own luggage, he hurried after her, his long strides bringing him close again as she neared the gate.

"I beg your pardon. Did you drop your handkerchief?"

She whirled, resentment in her eyes and in her voice.

CITY'S BUDGET IS APPROVED BY TAX BOARD

$1.31 Figure Given O. K.: $5,000 Voters' Item Is Eliminated.

SCHOOL LEVY STUDIED Session May Be Called for This Afternoon, Says Leader.

Tax rate of $1.31 for the city budget, set by the city council three weeks ago, was approved today by the Marion county tax adjustment board.

Only change in the budget was the elimination of a $5,000 item set up for the city's share in the cost of permanent registration of voters.

Since the county's share of the cost has not been appropriated, and apparently no attempt will be made to carry out the law, the board decided the appropriation was superfluous.

With city, county and township rates already approved, the school budget alone remains for the board's consideration. Trend of the session before noon adjournment indicated that approval of the 92-cent school rate, without change, may be expected this afternoon.

Session Is Likely When the school budget is approved, the board will turn at once to writing its order declaring an emergency and setting out the details, as required by law to raise the total rate above $1.50.

John Newhouse, board president, said the attorneys for the city, county and school board probably would be summoned this afternoon for a conference.

This announcement may be taken as definite indication that early approval of the school budget is expected. The order must be written before midnight, Saturday, when the board adjourns.

At noon today the total rate to be paid by Indianapolis residents in Center township appeared to be $1.31, a 2-cent reduction from original figures having been accomplished by a $110,000 slash from old age pension fund, bringing the county rate to 56 cents.

Officials "Play Safe" Disputes over estimated amount of aid to be received from state taxes have been the greatest stumbling block in the board's path in consideration of city and school appropriations.

With all revenue from excise, intangible and gross income sources being speculative, and with several hundred thousand dollars involved, there appears to be no certain method of calculation.

City and school officials, wary of deficits, have "played safe" by using minimum estimates, while tax reduction advocates insist that higher figures are practical.

Figures given to the board Wednesday for possible budget reductions were discarded by the board, when it appeared that there were sizable errors in the totals used in the calculations.

A 38-cent reduction, represented by a city rate of $1.052 and a school rate of 56.8 cents, could be accomplished if a program suggested by Harry Messie, secretary of the Indiana Taxpayers' Association was followed.

Attacks Working Balance In the city budget, Messie attacked working balance figures, insisting that $686,185 more has been provided than in the 1933 budget. His estimates also showed a possible increase of $247,297 in miscellaneous and state revenues.

Gain of $388,464 from state aid in the school budget also was shown, including gross income tax receipts estimated at $608,200, instead of $234,800.

Mayor Reginald H. Sullivan, present at the meeting when Messie's figures were explained, termed the working balance figures "ridiculous" and said they were bookkeeping figures only.

Township rates approved by the board are: Center, $1.60; Decatur, 49 cents; Lawrence, $1.37; Franklin, 90 cents; Perry, $1.10; Pike, $1.08; Washington, 77 cents; Warren, 85 cents, and Wayne $1.43.

GOLD HOARDING DENIED IN FIRST COURT TEST New Yorker Accused of Failing to Report $200,000 in Bars.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Frederick E. Campbell, first United States citizen to make a court test of federal laws against gold hoarding, pleaded not guilty today to an indictment charging him with failure to report $200,000 worth of gold bars nominally in his own possession.

Jail Delivery Plot Here Is Probed; Weapon Found

Bare Robbery

Man, Almost in Nude, Is Found by Police.

SERGEANT KENT YOH and squad thought they were seeing a freshman member of a nudist colony on vacation as they were cruising in vicinity of Tenth street and Indiana avenue early today.

They found a man, attired only in underwear, socks and shirt, shivering in a street car booth at the corner.

The man gave his name as Charles Ray, 221 North Alabama street. He said two Negroes held him up and took the remainder of his clothes. Taking him to this address, police found it to be a printing office. Officers, who said Ray had had a few drinks, locked him up for investigation.

CLOSING ARGUMENTS ON IN BAILEY CASE

Life Terms Faced by Ten on Kidnap Counts.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Sept. 28.—The fate of Harvey Bailey, Albert L. Bates and eight co-defendants in the famous Urchel kidnaping was argued before a federal court jury today.

The assortment of gangsters, farmers and business men faced possible life imprisonment for a crime due to become historic.

Defense testimony closed abruptly when Bailey and Bates, who with George (Machine Gun) Kelly are the accused leaders in the $200,000 ransom plot, chose to gamble on silence. They offered no defense.

M'NUTT RAPS LESLIE IN PRISON PLOT PROBE

Plays Ex-Governor for Failure to Warn of Escape Break.

Harry G. Leslie, former Governor, today was criticized by Governor Paul V. McNutt for failing to warn officials of the Indiana state prison break, which Mr. Leslie forecast at South Bend five hours before the break.

If Mr. Leslie knew of the plot, it was his duty as a good citizen to turn the information over to the proper authorities," Governor McNutt commented today.

Mr. Leslie was reported, in a story from South Bend, to have told friends during a chat at breakfast that morale of the 2,000 prisoners was being shattered by dismissal of many veteran guards.

"If this policy is continued," he was quoted as saying, "there is going to be trouble, a big prison break or rioting."

THREE DIE IN BLAST

Charred Bodies Dragged From Texas Refinery Ruins.

CHITTA FALLS, Tex., Sept. 28.—Three men were killed and a fourth was injured critically in an explosion and fire which razed the $250,000 Tamm refinery here today.

Charred bodies, dragged from where the men had been trapped Radio in the cracking plant, were believed those of Bob Finley, chief mechanic, and Ralph Spettel and Clyde Holland, insulators. Fred Arubuckle, chief operator, is not expected to live.

Revolver Found Hidden in Floor of Wing Housing 70 Prisoners.

Wholesale delivery of prisoners from the Marion county jail was believed thwarted by discovery of a 38 calibre revolver hidden beneath the floor of a washroom in a wing housing seventy prisoners.

The weapon and several iron bars were found as result of a tip given Police Chief Mike Morrissey by a released prisoner, who said the break was set for Wednesday night.

Sheriff Charles Sumner, who was out of the city when the revolver was found late Wednesday, said he believed it had been passed through a window to a prisoner by outside accomplices about 4 a. m. Wednesday. A screen on a window in the wing, known as "Bum's Row," was found torn loose at the bottom.

"Shake Down" Prisoners

All prisoners in the wing, on the north side of the first floor of the jail, were "shaken down" by deputies after the tip was received. Several iron bars were hidden in mattresses, and wire, a tire tool and angle iron wrapped in cloth, together with a pair of pliers and a putty knife were found.

Included in the prisoners in the wing were Ernest (Red) Giberson, awaiting trial in the Lester Jones murder case, and Elvin Wall and William LaFrance, held on federal counterfeiting charges.

Sheriff Sumner said the believed Iden Miller, whom he took to the Indiana state prison Wednesday to serve a 3 to 10-year sentence for burglary, was in the plot because Miller pleaded that he not be taken to the prison until later.

The revolver had been thoroughly disguised, a drill having been used to mutilate identifying marks, and the barrel sawed off.

Locks 41 Years Old

The sheriff said it would be feasible for a prisoner to stuff rags in the lock on a cell door and prevent the cell from being locked, thus enabling him to leave the cell in the night and obtain the weapon through the window. The cell locks are forty-one years old, he said.

Explanation by Sheriff Sumner of the manner in which the revolver and tools may have been smuggled to prisoners and the possibility of release of prisoners in a general jail break, recalled his recent remarks before the county tax adjustment board.

CITIZENS WILL AID IN PRISON BREAK INQUIRY

A committee of prominent citizens will be appointed to aid Indiana state prison trustees in investigation of the prison break in which ten desperate convicts escaped, Governor Paul V. McNutt announced today.

The Governor said Captain Matt Leach, state police head, will be one of the committee, but other members will not be announced until their acceptances have been obtained.

'I'm Glad I Did It,' She Says to Mother From Bed at Hospital.

"I'm glad I did it, mother," smiling wanly through her tears, her face twisted with pain, Mary Beyerlein, 18, of 26 South Addison street, lay on a small white cot in city hospital today after jumping from a three-story window Wednesday night to prevent what she told police was an attempted criminal attack.

Bending over the pretty dark-haired girl, her mother, Mrs. Sue Shadwell, stroked her daughter's forehead.

"I'm proud of you, Mary," she said, "I'd rather see you dead than dishonored."

Standing behind the mother at the hospital bedside, a tense little group watched the scene. Delmas Beyerlein, 22, and Robert, 15, brothers of the injured girl, alternately clenched their fists and cried. Nellie Chadwell, 8, her step-sister, sobbed openly.

"She is a good girl," Mrs. Chadwell told reporters waiting in the hospital corridor. "She only made $4 a week in the drugstore, but she brought every cent home to help us. Her morals were above reproach."

Tells of Tragic Party

Mrs. Chadwell, a stately, light-haired woman, told of the tragic party which ended with Mary jumping from a third-floor window of an apartment house at 431 North Illinois street. The girl told her mother that she attended the party "to hold her job."

Shortly after finding the girl lying on a pile of bricks in the rear of the North Illinois street apartment house, clad only in her underclothing, police arrested Richard Heyman, 30, of 609 East Twenty-fourth street, the girl's "boss" in a downtown drug store, and William Bowers, 24, 517 North Delaware street, a clerk in the same store.

Both were charged with vagrancy and held in default of $3,000 bail each to await the outcome of the girl's condition which was reported critical at city hospital. She is suffering from internal injuries and possible fracture of the skull.

Leaps Through Window

The girl told her mother and police that Heyman had asked her to attend the party and when she refused, threatened her with loss of her job. Finally, she consented to go with Bowers on the understanding that another girl also would be present with Heyman.

Miss Beyerlein told police that she expected the party to be held in a beer joint, but when she got to the apartment, she found herself alone with the two men.

After consenting, under protest, to drink a highball, Miss Beyerlein told police that both men attempted to attack her and when she struggled, threatened to beat her.

In the struggle, she told police that one of the men tore her dress off and in a moment of freedom she hurried herself through the window, falling to the courtyard three floors below, where police found her in a semi-conscious condition.

Men Deny Attack Charge

Both men denied any attempted attack on Miss Beyerlein when questioned by detectives.

Bowers is alleged to have told detectives William Miller, Thomas Barnaby and Louis Fosatti, "She was smoking marijuana cigarettes and just went crazy, that's all."

Police said that Miss Beyerlein was not drunk when they questioned her.

Mrs. Chadwell was indignant at Bower's insinuation that her daughter was smoking "marijuana," a narcotic.

"Just another deliberate lie," she said, "my daughter did smoke cigarettes occasionally, but never that sort."

PREPARE TO RETURN KELLY TO OKLAHOMA

Urschel Kidnap, Wife, to Face Trial for Crime.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 28.—Authorities made arrangements today to transport George (Machine-Gun) Kelly, kidnaper of Charles F. Urschel, millionaire oilman, and his wife to Oklahoma City.

Both he and his wife, Katherine, agreed to go back to Oklahoma City where both are under indictment for the kidnaping and where the trail of twelve others for the same crime is nearing completion.

Arrangements for their return were a carefully guarded secret. Agents feared that members of Kelly's gang might attempt their delivery.

Let's Go—Skyball Now!

Paddle to the peddles in the Times Em-Roe Sky Ball contest. An Em-Roe bicycle equipped with all the doo-dads to make the winner the envy of all the neighborhood kids, will be offered as first prize in the contest.

And if you miss the premier honors—but don't go away—valuable prizes will be given to second and third winners in each age class.

Every boy and girl in the city, providing he or she uses a Times Em-Roe Sky Ball, is eligible to compete in the tournament. To give every one an equal chance the contestants will be divided into

INDIANA MINE RIOTING FLARES; TROOPS HELD READY TO HALT RENEWAL OF UNION DISPUTE

TROOPS JOIN IN HUNT FOR TEN CONVICTS

Hope for Quick Capture of Desperadoes Abandoned by State Officers.

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Sept. 28.—Three companies of the state militia were ordered today to join the hunt for ten desperate criminals who broke from Indiana State prison as hope for immediate capture of the men virtually was abandoned.

The national guardsmen were ordered to assemble at Deep River, Ind., a tiny crossroads hamlet far from the scene of the riot, where the last authentic sighting of the fleeing criminals was reported. A foot-by-foot search of the area north to the state prison here was planned.

Principal object of the careful hunt was Sheriff Charles Neel, Corydon, Ind., kidnaped hostage of a group of the convicts. Authorities are almost certain Neel has been slain or wounded and tossed aside in some isolated spot.

An elaborate trap based on information supplied by a convict tipster failed today. The convict told officers he believed the men were hiding in an abandoned shack near here. The shack was surrounded and searched but none of the men was found.

In the confusion attendant of the search, an eleventh Michigan City convict calmly placed street dress over his prison uniform and walked through the gates to freedom.

Trace Illinois Report

OTTAWA, Ill., Sept. 28.—Sheriff E. J. Welter announced today he had obtained information indicating that two of the escaped Michigan City (Ind.) convicts passed through here Wednesday night.

Ottawa is about one hundred miles southwest of the Indiana prison. Prison officials heard Welter describe one of the men as having a long scar from his left eye down to his jawbone and immediately expressed the opinion he was Walter Dieterich, who had served two years of a life term for bank robbery.

Reported in Nebraska

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 28.—Six heavily armed men, who police believe were fugitives from the Indiana penitentiary, were sought here today after they divided in two groups.

The men Wednesday night commandeered a sedan by forcing the occupants to the street at a stop crossing.

'Joe' Robinson to Start Open Forum Season Here

Democratic Floor Leader of Senate to Address City Audience Oct. 22 at Kirshbaum Center.

(Pictures on Page 3) A galaxy of notables, including United Senator Joseph T. Robinson and Dorothy Thompson, author wife of Sinclair Lewis, will be among the speakers at the Indianapolis Open Forum in its eighth annual series opening Sunday night, Oct. 22.

Hailing the appearance of Robinson, President Roosevelt's spokesman in the senate, the Forum committee announced today that he will speak on "Dictators and International Relations of the United States."

Senator Robinson's address will be given at Kirshbaum Center, Meridian and Twenty-third streets, where Open Forum lectures annually are presented.

Other speakers for the season are Everett Dean Martin, director of the People's Institute, Cooper Union, New York; George E. Sokolsky, expert on Oriental affairs; Frank Bohn, writer and expert on political and social questions, and James Waterman Wise, son of New York's noted Rabbi Stephen S. Wise and an authority in his own right on questions involving the younger generation.

Senator Robinson has served in congress since 1903. From that year until 1913, he served in the house of representatives, resigning to be Governor of Arkansas. Elected a few days later by the state legislature to a seat in the United States senate, he resigned his governorship and went back to Washington, thus having the unusual distinction of occupying three important offices within a period of less than eight weeks.

Wise, often called "one of the world's outstanding younger liberals," has chosen for his subject "Shall the Jew be Assimilated?" on March 11.

Following each address, the speaker will answer questions put to him by members of the audience. The questions will be answered informally.

Dr. Louis H. Segar is chairman of the Open Forum committee. The other members are Mortimer Furseth, Jacob L. Mueller, Joseph M. Bloch, Mrs. J. A. Goodman, Mrs. L. G. Kahn, Fred Newman, Jack Harding, Robert E. Fryman, Mrs. Louis Wolf, Daniel Frisch, Samuel J. Mantel, Leonard A. Strauss, S. J. Sternberger, H. Joseph Hyman and Allan Bloom, general secretary.

Governor McNutt Orders Out Militia, but Rescinds Action Pending Outcome of Oakland City Conference.

NONUNION MEN ARE THREATENED

Homes Invaded, Workers Are Told to 'Beat It Back to Kentucky'; Situation 'Out of Control,' Is First Report.

By United Press PRINCETON, Ind., Sept. 28.—Mobilization of national guard troops demanded for duty at two Oakland City coal mines was halted today while Gibson county officials sought amicable settlement of a riot between union and nonunion miners.

Governor Paul V. McNutt, at the request of Judge Dale Eby of Gibson circuit court, had ordered a detachment of national guardsmen to the scene if they were needed.

OPEN RECOVERY SUPPORT DRIVE

'Let's Go, Roosevelt,' Made Slogan of Membership Campaign.

Mrs. Virginia Jenckes, Terre Haute, Sixth district congressional representative, today opened the membership campaign of the "Let's Go Roosevelt" committee, of which she is chairman, by presenting a plaque to Governor Paul V. McNutt.

The plaque, official emblem of the committee was designed by W. Clark Noble, noted sculptor. The campaign is designed to muster strong support nationally for the President's recovery program.

Mrs. Jenckes was accompanied at the ceremony by Mrs. Samuel Ralston, widow of the former Governor and senator, and Miss Virginia Jenckes.

$100,000 IS LOOT IN DAY MAIL ROBBERY

Four Bandits Make Escape in Boston Holdup.

BOSTON, Sept. 28.—Working with such speed and stealth that they did not need to draw a gun, four bandits today stole three pouches believed to contain $60,000 to $70,000 from the registered mail shed at South Station, terminal of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad.

Half a dozen mail workers and persons on the street caught glimpses of the bandits, who needed only sixty seconds to carry out their theft in the misty darkness.

Ordered to "Beat It"

Several members of the gang went inside and ordered the men to "dress and beat it back to Kentucky." No resistance was offered. From there the rioters went to other homes and ordered non-union workers to leave.

No arrests were made but grand jury indictments against known members of the marauding bands will be sought, the sheriff said.

The extension of the strike was part of a campaign which already had brought the western Pennsylvania coal industry virtually to a standstill, and involved some 70,000 strikers.

HEARING TO BE HELD IN CEMETERY CASE

Buyer Reported for Property of Glenn-Haven Acreage.

Solution of the financial difficulties of the Glenn-Haven Memorial Cemetery Association, now in receivership, appeared near today, following a hearing before Superior Judge Clarence E. Weir.

Acting on statements by former officials of the cemetery association, Judge Weir set an informal hearing for next Tuesday, during which reorganization plans will be discussed.

It is understood that a purchaser has been found for the cemetery's property on Kessler boulevard. John J. Rochford, receiver, recently filed a petition for instructions from the court regarding a receiver's sale.

JAMES M. COLLIER DIES

Former Representative From Mississippi Succumbs in Washington.
