

AWAIT RULING IN WALKATHON COURT BATTLE

Evidence Concluded in Fight by Morrissey to Stop Contest.

Ruling on the temporary restraining order which protects the Walkathon being staged at the state fairground awaits the filing of briefs with Superior Judge Clarence E. Weir.

At the conclusion of evidence Wednesday, Judge Weir ordered Jacob Weiss, attorney for the Walkathon management, and Assistant City Attorney Herbert Spencer, representing Chief Mike Morrissey, to file briefs immediately.

The briefs will cite legal points involved in the question whether the city has jurisdiction over the fairground and whether the Walkathon comes within the city ordinance against marathon races.

The restraining order was obtained last week by Mr. Weiss to permit opening of the Walkathon, after Chief Morrissey had threatened to stop the contest.

Two days were spent in the hearing, which was enlivened Tuesday by appearance of several contestants, who maintained their shuffling gait in front of the bench during testimony regarding their health, treatment and the moral conduct of the Walkathon.

CITY DEALERS TO 'GET BREAK'

Indianapolis Contractors to Get Preference on Slums Work.

Preference will be given Indianapolis contractors, material dealers and labor in the $5,247,000 slum clearance project, it was announced by W. H. Trimble, chairman.

The announcement was made following return from Washington of a committee member, Joe Rand Beckett, with the promise of Robert D. Kohn, NRA housing division director, that the government will be insistent that as much of the cost as possible be spent at home, providing no collusion in bidding is apparent.

About 2,000 skilled and unskilled laborers will be given employment for a year in the project, which will replace shacks in the low rent district with about 2,000 new houses.

The committee is mapping a campaign to raise $787,000 to match the $4,460,000 in federal aid promised.

COP GUILTY IN COLD-BLOODED NITTI SHOOTING

Jury Convicts Detective of Firing on Unarmed Capone Aid.

By United Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—Harry Lang, detective sergeant convicted by a criminal jury of assault with a deadly weapon on Frank Nitti, "the enforcer" of the Capone gang, today faced a possible jail sentence of one year and $1,000 fine.

Lang listened to the verdict quietly and commented "that ain't so bad." His attorney, however, moved for a new trial. Date for argument on the motion was set by Judge Thomas J. Walsh for Oct. 17.

The penalty, which may range from a day to a year in jail or a fine for $25 to $1,000, or both, will be fixed by the judge if the motion for a new trial is overruled.

The state had requested Lang be convicted of assault with intent to murder, which carries a sentence of one to fourteen years imprisonment, for the shooting of Nitti during a police raid on a hoodlum "hangout" in a downtown skyscraper last December.

Nitti was shot three times and Lang was shot once, in the arm. Fellow officers testified Lang shot Nitti while the latter was being held with his arms behind his back, and then shot himself so he could plead self defense.

Lang still must face a charge of perjury growing out of his testimony before a grand jury that indicted Nitti for shooting him. At the trial of Nitti, however, Lang refused to repeat his testimony that the gangster shot him, and Nitti was freed.

Testimony at the trial revealed the late Mayor Anton J. Cermak, slain in Miami, Fla., while standing near the then president-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt, believed a New York gangster had been imported by the Capone syndicate to assassinate him.
