Senators Dig Up 'Screw' Ball Thrower

Heavy Work Begins on Hoosier Grids

JOE CRONIN'S Senators confess wholesome respect for Carl Hubbell's "screw" ball, but are doing everything possible to learn how to combat the mystifying delivery of the Giants famous southpaw. And as an example of how thorough a baseball club does things to groom itself for a world series, the presence is cited of southpaw Ray Prim on the Washington late-season roster.

When the Senators realized they were headed for the American League pennant and fall classic, and also knowing that the Giants and Hubbell also were headed toward the championship, Washington scouts were commanded to go out and dig up a lefthander who knew something about the "screw" ball. Well, the scouts delivered and Ray Prim was their answer.

PRIM is no Hubbell by the proverbial mile, but he employs what is described as a fair "screw" and is using it against the Senators in batting practice almost daily. Fact is, he has been performing this service for several weeks and it's possible Cronin's boys will benefit. At any rate, young Prim got a job in the majors on the strength of his ability to copy Hubbell's style in a small way. He hails from the Albany (N. Y.) club. If the Senators upset the dope and solve Hubbell, this Prim person certainly would be assured of big steaks all winter and a swell trip south in the spring. Things happen that way in baseball, and no foolin'.

A SPECTATOR at the world series next week will receive a full player's share, about $6,000 if the club he pulls for wins and $4,000 if it loses. Name? Al Smith. Not the Al Smith of Happy Warrior fame, but just a youth who has been employed this year as batting practice pitcher by Manager Terry of the Giants. The kid, who is no kin of the Happy Warrior, showed talent in the spring and requested to be kept with the club in the role of "assistant coach" rather than be sent out to the little minors. He preferred to stick around with the Giants and absorb big league ways. Al is a southpaw and has not pitched a ball all season except before a game. World series rules do not permit three coaches and young Smith will be barred from the field in the classic after game time. He has arranged to occupy a choice seat in the grandstand near the Giants' dugout both in New York and Washington and watch his bankroll grow. The Giant regulars voted him a full share of the spoils.

WITH the exception of Purdue and Notre Dame, all state college grid eleven have exhibited their 1933 warriors when Saturday's action is concluded. The Boilermakers and Irish will not make their bow for the new season until Oct. 7. Coach Hayes' Indiana pastimers are going to tackle Miami of Oxford, O., Saturday afternoon and the game is expected to be a lid-lifter productive of smashing play. In other words, it is no set-up. I. U. alumni residing in Indianapolis are going down to Bloomington to insure their team's going to land on top, but only after a terrific fight. It looks like Indiana by the margin of two touchdowns. A few of the state secondary schools got under way last week and others will follow this week-end.

BALL STATE of Muncie and Butler will clash under the lights at Fairview bowl tonight and another early-season thriller is promised. With splendid grid weather on tap, the football-minded of the city can not miss on this rivalry exists between the opponents and both machines are set to bear up under a mauling contest. The Franklin-Butler fracas last week drew a big crowd and another enthusiastic gathering is promised tonight.

INDIANAPOLIS high schools were active today in five games, and on Saturday there will be one. The program today called for Tech against Shortridge on the east side, Washington vs. Marion on the west side, Shortridge vs. Jeff of Lafayette on the north side, Broad Ripple vs. Plainfield at Ripple and Manual at Elwood. Cathedral will tackle Southport on the south side, at Delavan Smith field, Saturday, and the Cardinals of Southport evidently are pointed to make it a battle all of the way. The score last year was close, Cathedral winning by one touchdown. Southport this year already has bowled over three opponents without meeting defeat.

Pid Purdy, former Indianapolis outfielder, was a batting star with San Antonio in the Texas League this season. He picked up a new name down there. They called him Graphophone.

Giants See Yanks Wallop

Stewart, Crowder of Nats

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Bill Terry's New York Giants looked forward to the world series today with increased confidence after watching the Washington Senators bow to the New York Yankees, 11 to 9, Thursday.

The Yanks hammered two of Washington's world series pitchers, Walter Stewart and Alvin Crowder, for fourteen hits, including home runs by Sam Byrd and Babe Ruth. Ruth also got two singles to account for five runs. Goossens got three hits in four for Washington. Boston's Red Sox shaded the

FOXX, KLEIN CLINCH LEAGUE BAT CROWNS

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Both major league batting championships have gone to Philadelphia this season. Chuck Klein of the Phillies won the National circuit honors, and Jimmy Foxx of the Athletics walked off with the American League leadership.

Regardless of what their rivals do in the few remaining games, Klein's average of .372 and Foxx's .355 have clinched the titles.

Klein also will have the most hits. He now has 222, and he will lead in runs batted in, now having 120. Foxx will be the American home run king even if he does not add to his present forty-eight, and he will lead in runs batted in. He has 159.

Little Flower high school softball team lost to Conestoga in fourteen innings, 4 to 3. Schell pitched the entire game, allowing only four hits and striking out ten. He issued two passes. Little Flower All-Stars also lost in another game at Conestoga, 3 to 6. Play was fast in both contests. In the extra-inning tie Little Flower collected eight hits.

Blue Eleven Revamped for Ball State Fray

Several Pastimers Shifted by Coach Mackey to Bolster Defense and Speed Attack: Women Admitted. Free to Butler Bowl Tonight.

A revised lineup that grew from both an unsuccessful attempt against Franklin and a week of searching out weak spots, will be thrown against the Ball State Cardinals tonight in the Butler bowl by Coach Fritz Mackey, Bulldog pilot. Changes were made to strengthen the Butler line and to insure more accuracy in aerial attacks.

Ralph Weger, Butler's stellar ball-carrier, will start at halfback in the place of Simpson, working opposite Cecil Ray, who accounted for most of the Bulldog's ground-gaining last week. These two will be expected to pile up an early advantage by skirting ends and leaving plays through tackle for last minute yardage.

Bob Eynott has been shifted from his usual end position to replace Bob Brown at tackle, with Bill Thomas filling the wing left by Eynott. Chet McNeerney will be given a chance to start at center.

Weger was left out of the starting eleven last week because of his late appearance for drill. But with a full week of scrimmage to his credit, he should share equally with Ray in the spectacular plays.

Practice session Thursday was devoted entirely to signal drill in an effort to correct several plays that were blundered last week because of rusty combinations. Coach Mackey re-charted his defensive system during the week to prepare for a passing barrage that last year netted the Cardinals two touchdowns. Rhyme squads were sent through Muncie formations during the week's scrimmage, and were consistently stopped by the Bulldog regulars.

Phil Thompson, who was outstanding in the Franklin tilt, will take over Bob Stewart's job at fullback. Stewart will see some service, but most of the passing combinations will be supervised by Thompson. During the week, Thompson's passing has been even more consistent than last week. Tony Hinkle, director of athletics, announced today that women again would be admitted free to the tilt tonight when accompanied by one full paid, general admission ticket. Probable starting lineups are:

Butler L. E. Wilson
L. G. Shroyer
L. C. Ludington
McNeerney C. Dunavent
Burtis R. C. Dunavent
Armstrong R. T. Light
Thomas R. E. Shuck
J. Stewart Q. B. Cole

Lukats gained consistently every time he carried the ball in practice Thursday, and Banas turned in more spirited blocking and plunging than in any workout this year.

Mike Layden, brother of the famous Elmer Layden of the Four Horsemen of 1924, is one of the sophomores battling for a job in the back field on this year's Irish squad. Young Mike seems sure to land some where along the line of N. D. ball toters.

A scrimmage with the freshmen is carded for Saturday, the final public workout before the opening game with Kansas on Oct. 7.

Five City H. S. Elevens to See Gridiron Action Today

Activity in the city prep football field reached full stride today when five local high school elevens got into action. All games were scheduled for 3 p. m. One more will perform Saturday, when Cathedral tangles with the unbeaten Southport club at Delavan Smith field.

Four of today's tussles were on home gridirons, with Marion invading the west side field to tackle Washington in the feature encounter. Three veteran backs, Cherry, McDonald and Totton, and a strong line led by Captain Lutz, were expected to bring victory to the Continentals.

Tech also faced a strong foe in Newcastle at the east side field. Forward passing was expected to play an important part in the Tech attack today.

Several sophomores were in the
