Program of Fairness Will Be Given Legion Support at National Parley

43 Departments Aligned in 'New Deal' Proposal, Johnson Says.

BY LOUIS JOHNSON
National Commander of American Legion.
Written Especially for this Service and The Indianapolis Times.

A FOUR-POINT program, of justice to the veteran and fairness to the government, will come before the American Legion's national convention at Chicago today to Thursday with the endorsement of forty-three department conventions and every prospect of adoption.

This program is as follows: 1. That no war veteran disabled in the line of duty shall suffer any reduction of those benefits granted such veterans in the World War veterans' act, as in effect prior to March 20, 1933. 2. That hospitalization under federal government auspices shall be afforded war veterans not discharged honorably, who require hospital treatment and who are not reasonably able to pay for their own treatment.

3. That perpetuation of service connection for all veterans properly granted such connection under laws in existence prior to March 20, 1933, be recommended as an item of legion policy. 4. That benefits provided for dependents of veterans as established in the World War veterans' act shall be resumed and maintained as the government's policy, and that in no event shall widows and dependent children of deceased war veterans be without government protection.

These resolutions reflect reaction of the legion to the policy adopted when the economy act was passed by congress and became effective.

THIS policy was that the American Legion turned away from the signpost of selfishness which marked the road to discredit and went straight ahead on the road which led to justice for the war disabled and full public confidence.

These resolutions, among the 400 or more which will be considered by the national convention at Chicago, contain the approval of this program by each of the forty-three department conventions so far reporting, with very few variations.

The program first was formulated at five area conferences which covered the United States, and in which department officials participated. It then was presented at department conventions and it is safe to assume that approval of the few that have not yet reported will be given.

The press generally, as shown by more than 300 editorials from large and small newspapers alike, has given approval to these proposals as the future legislative policy for disabled veterans. The elements of this program have been weighed on the basis of equal justice to truly disabled veterans and the government.

At the time the economy act was passed, the legion opposed it. We foresaw untold suffering to thousands of helpless men. We are not ashamed of that stand. We realized, however, that the majority of the American people were in favor of that action by congress. We recognized the fact that some veterans not entitled to compensation were on the lists.

WE could have denounced the president and congress for inflicting grave injustices on honestly disabled veterans. We could have thrown every possible obstacle in the path of the government's efforts to end the depression and to restore prosperity and happiness in our country.

In short, like so many of the smaller veterans' organizations, we could have cut off the disabled veteran's nose in a vain attempt to spite the President's face. If we had followed that road, we would, for the first time in the history of the American Legion, have been of dis-service to country and veteran alike.

Thank God, we did not follow that road! Instead, we called on members of each of our 10,760 posts to stand patriotically by the government in its hour of crisis. At the same time we asserted our right and our duty to expect the government to be fair and just in the regulations he was authorized to issue to replace the discarded World War veterans' act.

We expressed our faith that he would show compassion and mercy to all honestly disabled veterans—the men who suffered hardships for life while defending their country.

It is with confidence, therefore, that the legion faces the future without apology. It is in better position to obtain the sympathy, compassion, and exact justice which the Legion requested of the government when the economy act became law. It is well to recall that a measure of this justice and compassion was extended by restoration of $96,000,000 in benefits when facts were presented to the President by the legion after the first regulations were issued.

THERE is much to be done before complete justice can be accomplished. In its present position, the legion, through its loyalty and sincere desire to deal fairly with the government in its attempts to obtain proper care for actual war sufferers, will have the support of the right-thinking American citizen.

The legion has won for itself the friendship of the press generally which reflects the attitude of the public in general, and also has enlisted the active support of the American people for the truly deserving veteran. That the battle casualties and the dependents of veterans who are victims of active service truly are deserving can not be questioned.

AT the same time, the faith of the American people in the legion, because of its loyal support to the government in time of emergency, will be helpful in obtaining sympathetic treatment for all disabled veterans, who have a right to expect it because of their honorable war service.

Before complete justice can be accorded the disabled, our country first must emerge from economic chaos, as it is doing under the national recovery administration.

To help the disabled we first must help America. Their interests are bound inseparably. Consistent with our pledge to the government, and with our service in 1917 and 1918, the whole force of the legion is engaged in this battle for national recovery, which we can and must win. The American Legion is 100 per cent enlisted. We must not approach another winter with millions of weary men tramping our streets and millions of starving women and children waiting in vain.

We have put our shoulder to the wheel. We shall continue to make the sacrifices that are asked of us for the common good and get this country we all love back on a solid highway of reasonable prosperity for all.

ASKS U. S. AID FOR RELIEF FLOODED AREA

Mrs. Jenckes Appeals to Ickes for Federal Appropriation.

An appeal for aid on behalf of residents in the flooded areas of the Wabash and White rivers has been made to Harold L. Ickes, federal public works administrator, by Mrs. Virginia Ellis Jenckes, Sixth district representative.

In her appeal, Mrs. Jenckes submitted letters and other evidence from the citizens in the flooded areas.

"Congress has provided the money for flood control," Mrs. Jenckes declared. "The President has been given authority by congress to grant it, and complete information has been placed in his hands and in the hands of the administrator of public works."

"Entitled to Protection"

"The people in the flooded districts of the Wabash and White rivers are entitled to this protection and I urge them to continue to express their interest by demanding the protection that congress intended them to have."

In her petition Mrs. Jenckes said: "On July 17, 1933, the citizens of the 33,000 square miles which comprise the drainage area of the Wabash and White rivers presented a petition to the President of the United States which I personally delivered at the White House. I understand it has been referred to Mr. Ickes."

Project Is Indorsed

"The United States army engineers on Feb. 17, 1933, made a report to the congress of the United States including an item of $18,000,000 for 'the enlargement of existing levees and drainage systems, construction of new levees and bridge alterations.'"

"The project is non-political. It has been indorsed by all of the senators both Republican and Democratic in the state of Indiana and the legislature and Governor of Indiana."

"The chief of army engineers has reported that the citizens of the flooded areas of the Wabash and White rivers have suffered a minimum loss of $2,000,000 a year for approximately the last ten years and also a loss of life."

"The total elimination of $2,000,000 a year from the circulation in this area has been a large factor in impoverishing the citizens of this district."

Freedom of State Press Endangered, Says Editor

Blame for Tendency Put on Administration by Ft. Wayne Chief.

Tendency to curb freedom of the press is prevailing in Indiana under the present state administration, which trends toward dictatorship, members of the executive committee of the Indiana Republican Editorial Association have been advised.

The assertion came in a letter from F. A. Miller, president and editor of the South Bend Tribune, which was read at a luncheon meeting of the committee at the Columbia Club yesterday.

"Indiana should have a law that would make it impossible for a court of law to compel a newspaper representative to divulge the source of information," the Miller letter set out.

"A tendency to curb the freedom of the press is prevailing."

Pointing out that the 1933 legislature surrendered to domination of Governor Paul V. McNutt, Mr. Miller charged that "some of the worst laws in Indiana's history" were passed. He urged election of legislators who would repeal them.

"Taxpayers are being treated in a dictatorial manner and those drunk with power are leading our great state no one knows where," Mr. Miller wrote. "This tendency towards dictatorship in Indiana and in the nation appears to be strong."

"While it is doubtful if it could ever be brought about, the surest way to combat it is by attacks in the press."

Clatter of Gold Pieces Brings Police.

"We'll take no chances of a bandit telephoning us to 'Never mind.'"

Another false burglar alarm was sounded at the Western Union telegraph office, 31 South Delaware street, which also brought a squad of police.
