—Let's Go Fishing— DUCK HUNTERS WARNED OF CUT IN SEASON LIMIT

Sportsmen Urged to Aid in Program to Restore
Waterfowl.

BY LEFTY LEE

Times Fishing Editor

A bulletin from the More Game Birds in America, a foundation, warns the hunters of the country that the bag limit and season again will be cut on all waterfowl, unless the sportsmen of this country get behind a federal waterfowl restoration program. As this type of hunting has thousands of fishermen listed as addicts, this column will reproduce this warning in full.

Unless American sportsmen get behind a federal waterfowl restoration program, further nation-wide restrictions on wildfowling in addition to the recent bag limit slashes are in prospect, according to Colonel Arthur F. Foran, president of the More Game Birds Foundation. Wild ducks cannot be bred in lawyers' offices or legislative halls, still America has been producing more game laws, and hunting regulations, and less game than any country on earth, the foundation head declares. Sportsmen should not delude themselves into believing that the latest legislation will be the last, or that more wildfowl can be raised by means of restrictive regulations, than on their natural breeding grounds. The present and past reductions of bag limits only have served to slow up the decrease of wildfowl and have not increased the supply one iota. Necessary for the laws, themselves, prove that American wildfowling must shoulder the expense of providing more waterfowl refugees and for restoration of breeding areas to their former productive status. Congress has failed to provide the necessary funds for this essential conservation work, and probably never will.

A critical period is faced by duck hunters; bag limits have been cut three-fourths in the last four years. Shooting of three species of ducks, certain species of geese, brant in New York and swans throughout the country have been banned. Seasons have been cut one-third, more and more regulations are going into effect and a clamor is arising from the McBirds. Cannon and Booles of conservation for still more. Prohibition can be applied in more than one field, and wildfowling will only have themselves to blame if it eventually is applied to their favorite sport.

A further warning comes from W. C. Henderson, acting chief of the United States bureau of biological survey, who states "unless conditions show an almost inconceivable improvement within the next few months it is very probable that further restrictions will be necessary in order to preserve an adequate breeding stock. Our sportsmen must co-operate in greatly reducing the annual kill of ducks if they expect to continue the sport of wildfowling."

The new duck laws for Indiana, just issued, also should prove interesting, and they also confirm the statements of the above officials. It shall be legal to hunt waterfowl, jacksnipe and coot in Indiana from Nov. 1 to Dec. 31. The bag limit has been reduced to twelve in any one day. Possession is limited to two days' bag. No more than eight of the following species are legal in any bag: Canvasback, redhead, scaups, teal, shovellers and gadwalls. For woodcock the limit is twelve.

RODS FOR ROOSEVELT

When A. C. Fenton, 2507 Park avenue, learned that President Roosevelt was a fisherman, he decided to write him as one fisherman to another, explaining that his hobby was making fine bamboo rods, and that it would give him great pleasure to make and present him with any style rod he desired. The President accepted at once and stated that his tackle kit needed a small rod, that would be used for salt water fish, that average from two to four pounds. Fenton is shown with the finished rod that fisherman Roosevelt will be using in the near future.

All other hunting laws remain the same, as regards the opening and closing of the season and the bag limits. The lad who loves to take his dog in the country and bring in the rabbits, seems to be the lucky one this year, as reports from all parts of the state tell of an abundant supply of bunnies. They will welcome this news, as the squirrel crop has been anything but normal this year.

The waters are clearing rapidly now and the angler who can slip away for a few hours during the week should find the streams in fine shape by Wednesday. Stan Morgan of the Morgan Inn at Lake Barbee says that the bass at this lake now are hitting and the fishing will be good until the ice comes. Morgan knows this lake, as he has fished it ever since he was permitted to enter a boat.

WAR DEBT FATE MAY HINGE ON PARLEY RESULT

Failure of U. S.-Britain to Agree Might Bring Repudiation.

The bitter war debts controversy reopens again this week. Britain starts the ball rolling for a reduction. The rest of Europe will follow. Repudiation in toto is an alternative. More than $22,000,000,000 is in the balance—$100 for every man, woman and child in the U. S. A.; $720 per family. Indirectly more than $25,000,000,000, principal and interest, on private debts abroad, is involved. A showdown, without a hand, is here. The first of three articles on this important subject.

BY WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS

By Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Involved in the fateful talks beginning here this week between British and Americans, is the future of $20,000,000,000 worth of debts, public and private, principal and interest, due the people of this country.

Fifty billion dollars would have bought the whole of the United States, lock, stock and barrel, less than sixty years ago. Today it would buy New York City, New York State and practically all of New England. It is a lot of money.

Negotiations will start with the arrival here Thursday of Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, financial adviser to the British government; Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador to the United States, and T. K. Bewley, British treasury expert. The outcome will be reported to President Roosevelt, who in turn will submit it to congress "for its information and consideration." Only congress can change either the amount or the manner of payment of the war debts.

Debt Totals 22 Billions

The British desire cancellation. Convinced, however, that cancellation is out of the question, they will seek a new settlement based upon the Lausanne agreement of 1932.

The allies agreed at Lausanne to accept from Germany approximately 10 cents on the dollar as payment in full of reparations—provided the United States would do as much for them.

Should the British succeed in obtaining such a reduction from the United States, France, Italy, Belgium and more than a dozen other European nations would hurry to Washington to demand similar treatment.

The total European war debt, principal and interest, amounts to a little more than $22,000,000,000. But Europe does not intend to offer 10 cents on the dollar on this huge total. Far from it.

May Reject Offer

The Lausanne agreement would bring the allies a total of only $714,000,000 — "the present cash value" of reparations — and the allies, in turn, do not want to pay the United States in the aggregate any more than they receive from Germany.

Great Britain, for example, owes the United States nearly $4,400,000,000 principal. Interest, spread out over almost sixty years, would amount to another $6,500,000,000, making a grand total of $11,000,000,000.

"The present cash value" of the British principal, on a basis of 5 per cent interest, would be about $3,500,000,000, and 10 per cent of that is $350,000,000.

Great Britain, therefore is prepared to hand over to the United States some such sum as payment in full. But as congress almost certainly emphatically will turn down any such offer, and as Britain will be so informed, she may be expected to try some variation. She even may boost the ante a little.

Britain Against Repudiation

There is talk that she may offer as much as $1,000,000,000 cash—if she can float sufficient bonds in the United States to make the payment. That is to say if she can borrow the money from us to pay us.

While Britain does not intend to pay the debt as it stands, neither does she intend to default or repudiate if she can get around it. She does not want a black mark against her record.

Default or repudiation, however, is clearly an alternative. And if Britain repudiates, the other debtor nations will do likewise, telling each other it is no disgrace. Had they not tried to pay, they would say, and been turned down by Uncle Shylock?

Repudiation of war debts would endanger the world's whole foreign debt structure. The first repudiation is the hardest. The second does not hurt much. After that, it becomes a habit.

Next—A legend of Lausanne.

Hemorrhoids

How to End Painful Piles Without Salves or Cutting.

Thousands who have piles have not yet learned that quick and lasting relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves nor suppositories remove the cause.

Bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The hemorrhoidal veins are faulty, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To get rid of Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation, drive out the thick impure blood, heal and restore the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, after years of study, found a real internal Pile remedy. He called his discovery HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1,000 patients, with success in over 900 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer, no matter how stubborn their case, might try his prescription with a money back guarantee.

So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when Hook's Dependable Drug Stores and all good druggists have you to try HEM-ROID and guarantee money refunded if it does not end your Pile misery—Advertisement.
