

GROUP EJECTED FROM FLOOR OF LABOR PARLEY

Jobless Insurance Demand on Convention Floor Is 'Shushed.'

By United Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—A group of twenty men and women attempted unsuccessfully to force a way before the American Federation of Labor convention today with demand for unemployment insurance.

The group was ejected forcibly from the ballroom of the Willard hotel by a sergeant-at-arms and three plain clothesmen.

The group, calling itself the A. F. of L. trade union committee for unemployment insurance and relief, claimed to be composed of paid-up members of the federation. Its headquarters is in New York and the committee has just concluded a two-day conference here.

Permission Is Denied

Louis Weinstock, secretary of the invading committee, sent in to President William Green a request for permission to appear before the convention. The sergeant-at-arms, E. J. Roche, an elderly, white-haired man with spectacles, returned and told Weinstock that he and his companions could not enter.

The three police officers closed in immediately and herded the invaders into elevators, accompanying them to the ground floor.

The Weinstock committee is asking unemployment insurance, provisions against speeding up of mechanical processes, and declarations against Hitlerism. Most of the committee's demands already have been covered in resolutions placed before the convention by delegates.

Delay Works Program

Removal of federal officials now engaged in administering the $3,300,000 public works program was demanded in a resolution introduced today at the convention. It criticized the public works administration, charging it with delay, keeping hundreds of thousands of workers from employment intended by congress.

Other resolutions included a demand for a boycott on German made goods.
