Attack on Dollfuss Was to Open Revolution, Officials Claim.

By United Press

VIENNA, Oct. 5.—Information in the hands of the government today led to the belief that shot which struck Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss Tuesday from the revolver of a would-be assassin were to have been the signal for a general revolt. Vice-Chancellor Emil Fey disclosed that he learned three days ago that the Styrian Heimwehr, which attempted to putch in 1931, and which recently deserted the banner of Ernst Starhemberg, leader of the Heimwehr, had advised its membership to "prepare for action."

The Styrian group went over to the Nazis, Fey revealed, and sent couriers throughout the ancient duchy and into some parts of Carinthia, telling their followers that important political events impended.

Coupled with these facts, it became known that Raimund Guenther, stepfather of Rudolph Dertil, the youth who wounded the chancellor, and with whom Dertil lived,

The Rev. S. L. Welker, 39 South Dearborn street, retired, is the owner of a curious plant, which apparently has some of the characteristics of the century plant. It is called the sacred flower of Egypt, and has been in Mr. Welker's possession more than four years, it having been given to him by a friend.

The exact age of the plant is not known, but it never has been in flower before. One of its peculiarities is that the stem of the flower grows directly from the edge of a leaf, instead of from the roots of the plant.

DAMAGED LIVES

... a tensely dramatic story that visualizes with graphic realism an age-old social and health problem.

Thoughtlessly, unknowingly this boy risked his health in one gay experience, on the eve of his marriage to the girl he dearly loved.

Later came the cruel awakening when his physician told him that he had an infectious disease, and that his wife was an innocent victim.

They thought they could never laugh again, but they found new hope and courage in the promise of eventual restoration of health and happiness.

The program includes an interesting special film explaining and illustrating scientific facts relating to the theme of "DAMAGED LIVES," and presenting authentic information which everyone should have.
