$10,000 worth
of Dishpans

Newspapers not long ago carried the story of an aged recluse who had a mania for collecting dishpans.

When she finally departed from this world more than $10,000 worth of new, shiny dishpans were found in her home.

Before you smile at her pandemonium or panamania (it's the edwynn influence), ask yourself whether you, too, have a funny habit of saving things. In some homes one finds articles accumulated through the years—things no longer needed—things of usefulness to others.

Why not sell such articles through Times Want Ads?

*If you have a lawn mower, but no grass which needs cutting—
If you have a set of law books, with no law student in the family—
If you have a baby carriage, but no blessed event in prospect—
If you have a saxophone, but no acquaintance with Rudy—*

Then—then—remember that there are people who are ready to pay you cash for such things. You'll find them through the Want Ads in The Times.

IT is to be noted that more and more residents of Indianapolis are turning to Times Want Ads—BECAUSE—they produce results at the lowest Want Ad rates in the city.
