

Notre Dame, Indiana Poised for Classic Grid Struggle Saturday

Walker and Veller to Be Missing From Crimson Starting Lineup: Mazziotto, Sophomore Quarter Back, May Be Ready to Direct Irish Team.

By Times Special
BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 13.—Everything was in readiness today for the first of Hoosierland's three intra-state collegiate football classics for 1933.

A capacity crowd is expected tomorrow when the Irish of Notre Dame tackle Indiana university's Crimson warriors in Memorial stadium here at 2 p.m.

A light tapering off drill today was to conclude Indiana's practice for the important struggle, while Notre Dame, with forty-one gridmen in the party, was scheduled to arrive in Martinsville this afternoon, where the squad will stay overnight.

After the final intensive drill yesterday, which lasted far after sun-down and was concluded under the arc lights on the practice field, Coach Billy Hayes of I. U. indicated his two offensive keymen, Wendell Walker and Don Veller, would not be in his starting lineup.

The husky sophomore full back, who was injured in the first six minutes of last week's Minnesota battle, and the crafty little quarter back, hurt in practice sessions last week, were expected to provide the scoring punch for the Hoosiers against the Irish. Although both have had little practice this week, they may be used against the invaders.

Vernon Huffman, the giant sophomore sensation, also will be missing from the starting lineup. He is expected to do most of the passing for the Crimson, but will be held on the sidelines at the start to look over the Irish formations.

Only one other change has been made in the Hoosier starting lineup, Fritz Lyons, the giant Negro end, who was the hero of last week's tie with Minnesota when he scooped up a fumble and galloped fifty yards for Indiana's touchdown, replaces Bruno Verzotti at end.

Mazziotto May Play

Bob Keck, another sophomore, takes Walker's full back job, and Ray Dauer shifts from left half to quarter, with Louis Sutherland, another sophomore, taking Dauer's job. Bob Jones, full back for the last two years, will start at guard and handle the punting. He may move back to his old job later, with Adolph Sabik, converted full back, going to guard.

Notre Dame will enter the game as favorite despite last week's scoreless tie upset by Kansas. Coach Hunk Anderson has not torn up his eleven, as was expected, and the only change in the starting lineup will see Don Elser, sophomore star, at full back in place of the injured Steve Banas.

Fireworks Expected

Notre Dame's victory hopes also were boosted by the report that Tony Mazziotto, stellar sophomore quarter back, may be able to take part. Mazziotto, a terrific blocker and brainy field general, will provide the Irish with just the spark missing last week when the Ramblers reeled off yard after yard but couldn't score.

Gaul, midget sophomore, will start at quarter back, with Nick Lukats and Branchauer, veterans, at the half back posts.

Andy Pilney, sophomore flash, Mike Leyden, Red Tobin, Frank Laborne and Dan Hanley are other Irish back field stars ready for action.

Notre Dame is not taking the Hoosiers lightly. Anderson has had his squad at work all week against the dazzling aerial plays which he expects the Hoosiers to turn loose.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 13.—Purdue's Big Ten title hopes will go on the block tomorrow when the Boilermakers battle Minnesota's powerful Gophers at Minneapolis.

The Hoosier eleven is the pre-conference title favorite, but many experts believe the polished Minneapolis machine may check Purdue's flashy offense and pass its way to victory.

Thirty-five Purdue pastimers left last night for the north. Included in the squad was Fred Hecker, versatile full back and outstanding member of the all-star back field, who may get into action despite an injury which has kept him on the sidelines all season. Hecker's blocking, passing and line ripping would increase Purdue's victory chances greatly.

Butch Keegan, one of last Saturday's stars, will start at full back, however. Two changes have been made in the Boilermaker line, with George Dennis, sophomore, and veteran Fritz Febel replacing Higgins and Peters, veterans, at guards.
