

THOMAS BACKS GOLD PROGRAM OF PRESIDENT

Sees Roosevelt's Plan as
Way to Sidestep
Inflation.

By Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance
WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—President Roosevelt's attempt to raise commodity prices by controlling the price of gold was interpreted here today as an inflationary compromise to appease the outspoken discontent of the farm belt and to ward off direct currency inflation.

His plan of a managed currency through buying and selling of gold drew the support of the leader of the western inflationists, Senator Elmer Thomas (Dem., Okla.). The Oklahoma senator frankly regards the President's new move as an attempt to avoid direct inflation, but says it suits him if it raises commodity prices for which he thinks the best method is direct currency expansion. From Mr. Thomas' reaction it was apparent that inflationists will take an attitude of "watchful waiting," while the chief executive attempts price increase through this avenue.

May Try Inflation

"This seems to be the last recourse of the President against currency expansion," Senator Thomas said.

"If it doesn't work, then apparently he'll try direct inflation. It's what we've been advocating. I'm for it if it works, if the President follows it up. This way may take a long time."

"Under this plan, the Oklahoma senator said, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which will be the buying and selling agent, will become a 'currency stabilization board.' The managed currency system thus created, he explained, is similar to that adopted by Great Britain.

The Oklahoma inflationist champion does not see a handicap in the fact that so much gold is locked up, and that only about $50,000,000 of gold is mined annually in the United States.

May Cheapen Dollar

"The mere bidding up of gold will fix the price," he said. "Foreign nations might attempt to check the President's program, but the administration apparently is operating in the belief that the United States is big enough to control the world price of gold."

The quoted price of gold Saturday at the treasury was $20.01. As Senator Thomas explained, the President's method in simple terms, the United States will offer to buy gold at a price higher than that, raising the offered price gradually to increase commodity prices.

As the price of gold is raised, this means that there are more dollars per unit; in other words, that the dollar will be "cheaper."

The eventual aim, as the Oklahoma senator sees it, is to peg the dollar at a fixed value.

Indiana in Brief

Lively Spots in the State's Happenings Put Together 'Short and Sweet.'

By Times Special

MARION, Oct. 24.—James Worline, 25, has been reunited here with his father, three sisters and three brothers, from whom he was separated while he was a baby.

The father, Curtis Worline, lifelong resident of Marion, explained that the mother died when James was an infant. Unable to care for the family of seven children, he placed them in an orphanage here and arranged to pay their board.

Adoption laws were not so stringent in those days, and Mrs. James C. Strong took James into their home when he was 16 months old, without the consent of the father.

It was not until he was 19, when he entered Northwestern university that Mr. and Mrs. Strong told young Worline he was a foster child. They said his parents had been dead many years.

Mr. Worline, after leaving the university, served a four-year enlistment in the United States navy, at the conclusion of which he began a search which ended with finding his father here.

The sisters are Mrs. Betty Williams, Lebanon; Mrs. Eva Hooten, Marion, and Mrs. Marie Bishop, Versailles, Ky. Brothers are Cleo and Ralph Worline, Marion, and Elery Worline, Gary, Ind.

CHIROPRACTORS SEEK NEW LAW

Rap State Interpretation of Act Providing for Medic Study.

Misinterpretation of the state medical examination law affecting exclusion of chiropractors from practicing in Indiana was charged against the state medical registration board last night at the annual convention of Hoosier chiropractors in the Lincoln.

Dr. H. V. McCully, Rushville, told members of the Indiana Chiropractors Association that the board interpreted the 1927 legislative act to mean that one who practices any branch of the medical or surgical professions must have two years pre-medical work in an institution where instruction includes dissection of the human body.

He asserted that the board permits no material for dissection to go to any institution except those granting M. D. or dental degrees. There is one chiropractor on the state board.

Chiropractors intend to go before the next Indiana general assembly with an appeal for a chiropractic board separate from the medical board.

The convention will close today after a business session at which officers will be elected.
