

SILENCE BALKS EFFORT TO FIND VERNE MILLER

Wife Suspect Refuses to Talk; Agents Seek Crews of Killer.

By United Press

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—Balked by the silence of a woman, federal agents today had no clue to the whereabouts of Verne Miller, killer, robber and kidnaper who night before last shot his way out of a carefully set trap.

The woman, believed to be Miller's wife, resisted all efforts to induce her to talk.

No trace had been found of Miller or a woman companion, in whose car he escaped after a gun battle with nine federal agents who ambushed him in the lobby of a Sheridan road hotel.

The government men said they learned, however, that the woman was Phyllis Harris, once hostess in a night club here. She was said to be Miller's sister-in-law.

Miller is wanted for the massacre of five men on the plaza of the Kansas City union station, for the kidnapping of Charles Urschel, Oklahoma millionaire, and for the slaying of a policeman in a mail robbery here.

Arm and body injuries were incurred by East Workman, 45, of Beech Grove, when his automobile collided with the car of Claude Merrill, 52, of 5543 University avenue, at Fletcher and State avenues.

4 TRIED FOR INCITING RIOT AT WALKATHON

Free-for-All First Fight Described in Opening Testimony.

With most of the evidence introduced yesterday afternoon, trial of four defendants charged with inciting a riot at the walkathon, at the state fair ground, was to be continued this morning before Municipal Judge William H. Sheaffer.

Randall Mitchell, 1129 East Michigan street, his two brothers, Jackson and Guy, and Paul Weillmer, were arrested after they are alleged to have resisted an attempt to eject them.

Deputy sheriffs and state police testified at the trial regarding the ensuing fist fight in which "twenty-five or thirty persons" took part.

An improved highway between Seattle, Wash., and Fairbanks, Alaska, a distance of 2,250 miles, has been proposed.

NEW J. C. PENNEY STORE THROGGED AT OPENING

Crowds thronged the three floors of the new J. C. Penney store, which opened yesterday. The building has been completely redecorated and presents merchandise of every description. The second floor is divided into ready-wear departments, set apart in individual shops for convenience of the customer. At one side is a shop for infants, another for older girls and a "Treasure Island" department, where boys' clothing is displayed.

The local store is the newest of the more than 1,400 included in the J. C. Penney chain, scattered throughout practically every state in the United States. The first of the Penney stores was opened in 1902 in Kemmerer, Wyo., a small mining town.

And All Ends Well

South African Minister to U. S. Leaves After Putting Lots of People Right.

By GEORGE ABELL
Times Special Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—One of the most interesting personalities in the diplomatic corps is Mr. Eric Louw, minister of the Union of South Africa, who will sail a week from Saturday to be minister in Rome.

Politically astute, capable, unassuming, South Africa's first envoy to the United States has been able to look back on his career here with high satisfaction.

The fact that some senators thought South Africa stood in the same relation to Great Britain as Haiti does to us—that when Minister Louw made a speech at a southern school, parents anxiously wrote to the principal to inquire, "Is the speaker black?"—that hundreds of persons whom the envoy met had never even heard of his country—all this only elicited complete good humor from him.

"I have had four fascinating years here," said Mr. Louw yesterday. "The day after I landed in New York the stock market crashed (I hope my coming had nothing to do with it) and since then there hasn't been a dull moment."

In the interests of his country, Mr. Louw traveled from end to end of the United States—"from coast to coast, like Mr. Childs," is the way he put it.

Every large city learned something about South Africa, its native problem, its status as a member of the British commonwealth of nations (not the British empire).

"We, too, have a U. S. A.," explained Envoy Louw, "the Union of South Africa."

DURING his stay here, it was his constant endeavor to make South Africa better understood by Americans. He entertained South African students.

He gave receptions at which the native chinkereche flowers of his country nodded on graceful stems. He corrected a young journalist's impression that kangaroos live in South Africa.

As the first trade commissioner of his country in New York, Mr. Louw was for three years in that city, and Manhattan knew him long before official Washington. Later he went to London as high commissioner of South Africa and became leader of the South African delegation to the League of Nations.

Just now, he is industriously studying Italian.

"I'm taking my Italian grammar on the boat with me," he says, "and I hope to find time to do some studying on the way over."

He can already rattle off a phrase in Italian as well as in English or Afrikaans.

"I'd hate to go to a country where I didn't know the language," he confessed. "Avanti, Savoia!"

PAGANI ELECTED BY FRANCIS VIGO GROUP

Succeeds Harry Raitano as Association Head.

Humbert P. Pagani was elected president of the Francis Vigo Memorial Association at a meeting in the Fidelity Trust building last night. He succeeds Harry E. Raitano, who now is residing in California.

Frank L. Martino, attorney, was named general secretary, succeeding Mr. Pagani.

Mr. Pagani is a teacher of Italian at the Arthur Jordan Conservatory of Music, a member of the Advertising Club and the Schola Cantorum, SS. Peter and Paul cathedral.

Object of the association is to obtain recognition for services of Colonel Francis Vigo in the conquest of the Northwest Territory. Colonel Vigo died in Vincennes in 1836 at the age of 89.

Nice Fellow!

'Good Scout' Is Bandit,
Taxi Driver Finds.

A YOUNG man wearing a bright red sweater who appeared to Robert V. Goodlet, 28, taxi driver, 567 North Belmont avenue, to be a "good scout" when he engaged his cab, later robbed him of $65 and the key to the taxicab.

Goodlet picked the congenial fellow up at Kentucky avenue and West street, early today. The fare asked to be driven to Mars Hill and while riding along joked and laughed with the cab driver.

Goodlet said his passenger did not seem to have any definite destination and when he pressed him for one, the fare promptly pressed a pistol against the back of Goodlet's neck. His pleasant manner changed abruptly.

He forced the cab driver to drive to a point on Road 67, one-half mile south of Maywood, where he robbed him. Goodlet trudged several miles to a phone to call police.

Help! Ha Ha!

Cop Dashes Into Blaze,
Rescues Parrot.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 3.—Patrolman William Moore heard a voice calling "Help!" and dashed into a flaming apartment building.

He fought through smoke and flames to the top of the three-story building as the persistent cries grew louder and more urgent.

He burst into the room—the cries stopped. Then, in an ordinary conversational tone, he was greeted with:

"Hello, you big cheese."

Despite the remark, Moore rescued the parrot.

Beat This!

City Man Raises Giant
Beet in Garden.

"BEAT this beet, if you can," challenges William T. Foster, 1734 North Arsenal avenue, as he displayed a 7½-pound beet raised in the garden at his home.

Normal in every respect, except size, the beet received no special care, Mr. Foster claims. In his crop this year are a number of beets weighing between three and four pounds, besides the "granddaddy" of them all.

TWO SENTENCED FOR FRAT HOUSE ROBBERY

Magazine Salesmen Plead Guilty to

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 3.—Roy D. Kelley, 23, Buffalo, N. Y., and Thomas R. Travers, 22, Elma, N. Y., pleaded guilty in Tippecanoe circuit court late yesterday to charges of robbing the Delta Chi fraternity house here.

They were sentenced to 180 days on the state farm and fined $10 and costs. The two were magazine subscription solicitors.

HEALTH BEACON TO SHINE FROM HOSPITAL ROOF

Light Will Be Dedicated by Services at Methodist Nurses' Home.

A health beacon, probably the only one of its kind in the United States, will be lighted for the first time next Thursday night on the Methodist hospital. Lighting of the beacon will be accompanied by dedication services, beginning with a dinner on the roof garden of the nurses' home. While the dinner guests are seated the donor of the new light will touch a button, which will illuminate the beacon.

Speakers in the dedication program will be Alden Mills, managing editor of "The Modern Hospital"; Dr. William N. Wishard, Robert Hahn, Evansville, president of the Indiana Hospital Association; Dr. N. E. Davis, Columbus, O., secretary of the board of hospitals and homes of the Methodist Episcopal church;

HEALTH BEACON TO SHINE

An epoch in American hospital history will be marked Thursday with the lighting of the new health beacon on the Methodist hospital. The beacon is probably the only one of its kind in the United States. On clear nights, its light will be seen for a radius of fifty miles.

Professor Harry Gough, De Pauw university, and Miss Maxine Pemberton, representing the nurses' alumnae group.

The idea of the hospital beacon was suggested by the one on the Royal hospital of St. Bartholomew in London, which was started as an oil light in 1847, and has been kept burning steadily since that time. The Methodist hospital has made a contract with the federal government, agreeing to keep the new beacon lighted during the night as a guide to aviators.

"The beacon will say silently that this is a haven of health," said Dr. John G. Benson, Methodist hospital superintendent. "It is the symbol of the new trend to make hospitalization available to all who need it, rich or poor."

Worry Over Grades Blamed for Suicide Death of City Youth.

Funeral services were to be held here today for Irving Holcomb, 18, De Pauw university freshman and son of a wealthy manufacturing company official who committed suicide at Greencastle.

Young Holcomb's body was found in a woods near the De Pauw campus yesterday. A bullet had pierced his right temple.

Relatives and university officials said apparently he had committed suicide while despondent over low grades.

He was the son of Ray Holcomb, treasurer of the J. I. Holcomb Manufacturing Company.
