

—Let's Go Fishing— STATE TO NET LAKES AND GIVE FISH TO NEEDY

Department Is Planning to Thin Cisco, Hook-Shy
Leaping Species.

BY LEFTY LEE
Times Fishing Editor

Have you ever been on any of the lakes in the northern part of the state, and watched the fish jumping continually? In all probability they were cisco, a fish that rarely is caught on a hook and line. Well, these fish are going to be thinned out this year. The conservation department will net the lakes that contain this species of fish, and if they are successful to any great degree, will distribute them to the poor families of Ft. Wayne and other large industrial centers, according to Milton Wyson, New Paris, conservation organizer.

The Ft. Wayne poor relief executives have agreed to furnish a truck and men to clean, salt and convey the fish to Ft. Wayne. Other cities also have signified their willingness to assist, if necessary, according to Mr. Wyson. The cisco is little known, in general, to fishermen, as they can be obtained only by netting, and then only for a short period each year, usually for a week or ten days late in November.

Soft Shell Formed

Tippecanoe, Little Tippecanoe, Crooked lake, the Indian Village lakes, south of Cromwell, and a few lakes near Angola are among those that contain cisco.

Cisco usually can be taken in large numbers at this time, because it is their spawning season. They spawn in from ten to fifteen feet of water.

As netting is the only way these fish can be taken, they are becoming too numerous in the lakes mentioned. The fish resemble white fish, and also taste very much like the white fish.

Cisco Has Few Bones

In size they run from three-quarters of a pound to five pounds. There is a smaller fish often called the cisco, and there is some resemblance in looks, but they are different in taste. The real cisco has very few bones and a very small body cavity. Mr. Wyson has been placed in charge of the netting operations, and he expects to be successful enough to furnish fish to a large number of unemployed.

Coot often has been considered unfit for food by many hunters, but we have some information from people who have tried it, and they claim that if the minnow will skin this bird, as soon as it is shot, and then salt it over night, it will prove to be as tasty as any member of the wild duck family. However, if you permit the dead bird to lay around before cleaning it, you will find it takes on a very strong fishy taste, and is not so good for eating purposes.

Ralph Carr caught a six-pound bass before The Times contest opened, and has tried ever since to get one for the medal, but failed. This does not mean that he stopped catching the fish, however, as his latest trip to Asbury Park lake netted him four dandy large mouth and his fishing partner, Dr. Seal, caught one large mouth. The fish averaged between two and three pounds, and the string was one of the prettiest brought in during the season.

JURY ACQUITS WOMAN OF SLAYING BOARDER

Ina Claire Finds Road Eager for Stage Shows

Tremendous Interest in 'Biography' at Chicago and Cincinnati Proves Legitimate Theater Is Alive.

BY WALTER D. HICKMAN

CHICAGO today was discussing Ina Claire in "Biography," following opening of the Theater Guild production at the Erlanger last night before a capacity audience.

Cincinnati still is ringing with praise for the star and the play. Miss Claire's last Cincinnati performance was played at the Shubert theater in Cincinnati Saturday night.

I journeyed to Cincinnati Saturday and arrived in time to see a tremendous audience at the matinee and a satisfactory one at night. Nelson Trowbridge, manager of the Shubert, is of the opinion that the audiences attracted to his theater for "Biography" and the splendid advance sale for it in Chicago, is an indication that the legitimate stage is not dead, but that the right kind of attractions and casts are needed to bring people back to the legitimate theater.

The sad fact is that Indianapolis will not have a chance to see Miss Claire in the only success that the Theater Guild had in New York last season.

Already this season, the guild has three successes—the leader being George M. Cohan in "Ah, Wilderness." The cast of "Biography" brings the good news that as far as Broadway is concerned there are more real hits now than at any time in the last five years. This is a splendid sign.

In considering "Biography," I am of the opinion that only the Theater Guild can successfully produce what may be termed "sophisticated dirt." "Biography" is such a play with beautiful English, sparkling acting, a tremendous studio set, excellent cast—all put together to expose the love affairs of a woman portrait painter with many men of high financial and social positions who "sat" for her.

The result is a sparkling gem of comedy, as well as drama in a Tiffany setting. Under different conditions, "Biography" could have been a tremendous mess.

I believe that Miss Claire in this play displays comedy gifts of such tremendous proportions that she ranks right now as the leading legitimate comedienne on the American stage.

Her comedy possesses a depth of character which makes Marion Froude, the portrait painter, not a cartoon, but a living woman who lived her life with many men. The men become frightened to death when Marion, who possesses an accurate memory of bedroom scenes, starts writing her biography.

A Terrified Male Appears

Only one terrified male of the past appears on the scene as Marion writes her memoirs. This terrified individual is Leander Nolan (Jay Fasset), a childhood companion of Marion's in Tennessee, who fears that Marion will expose his lapse from virtue, thus causing the good people of his state not to send him to the United States senate.

Marion, for a time, can not understand what difference one of her little experiences would make to the voting population of her native state.

Next to the glittering and illuminating work of Miss Claire, the work of Mr. Fasset ranks next in importance and scope. His Leander is a pretty pathetic old thing who became a successful type, instead of a human individual. Earle Larimore is a convincing radical as Richard Kurt, who persuades Marion to write her biography so he might get even with those he hates. He does splendid acting, even though a little confusing at times. It really is a splendid character study of a radical who just does not understand.

Will Get Screen Show

Anyway, cheer up. We will not have "Biography" in Indianapolis as things now are arranged, but we will have Clark Gable in the Kurt role and probably Ann Harding as Marion in the screen version.

Well, thanks to the movies for producing it and we will wait to see what they do or don't do to "Biography."

Tonight is an important night for the Indiana State Symphony orchestra. The season opens tonight at the Murat with Ferdinand Schaeffer conducting a Brahms' Centennial concert. The Matinee Musical choral section will assist.

Theaters today offer: Gus Edwards on the stage and "Ever in My Heart" on the screen, at the Indiana; "Footlight Parade," at the Circle; "Berkeley Square," at the Apollo; "Meet the Baron," at Loew's Palace; "Saturday's Millions," at the Lyric; "This Day and Age," at Keith's, and, burlesque at the Mutual and Colonial.
