

City Couple Thrilled by Radio City

Buford Cadles Inspect Many Luxurious Studios.

BY BEATRICE BURGAN
Times Woman's Page Editor

MR. AND MRS. BUFORD CADLE have returned from New York where they attended the opening week of activities of Radio City in Rockefeller Center. When Mrs. Cadle tunes in on programs issued from the New York studios of the National Broadcasting Company, she has more pleasure than mere appreciation of the entertainment. In her mind are pictures of the luxurious studios where the programs are presented.

Miss Burgan

Mrs. Cadle knows many radio secrets, because her husband is an announcer at a local station. But when the Cadles visited the seventy-seven story R. C. A. building, they found broad casting facilities conceived by master minds aiming for perfection of performance and beauty.

The R. C. A. building alone is a place for adventure. But it is only one unit of Radio City, which covers three blocks. Roke Music hall and Roxy theater are architectural wonders of modern design. The little shops built in another block form Radio City's sunken plaza. Steps lead down to the shops, devoted to a variety of purposes. Some are foreign gift shops, others dress establishments; one houses Dunhill's popular tobacco shop where wealthy customers place orders for more than $1,000 each.

Celebrities Attend Opening

Most of the guests on the first night were celebrities in the radio, social and industrial world. However, programs during the remainder of the week were similar to that of the first night.

Mrs. Cadle was most impressed by the broadcasting program of a 400-piece orchestra, directed in turn by Walter Damrosch and other famous leaders. Looking down on the auditorium seating 1,400 persons were glass inclosed observation rooms, furnished in leather lounging chairs. This studio is decorated in black, red and chromium.

The Cadles viewed one two-story studio, from a double glass inclosed balcony. The silk brocade walls are paneled, and acoustics are governed by the panels which are moved back and forth. "It was like watching a mysterious room with secret doors," Mrs. Cadle said.

The Cadles witnessed Jack Benny's broadcast. He assures himself of the proper atmosphere during the broadcast by getting his audience in a hilarious mood before the program, Mrs. Cadle explained.

Studios Like Living Rooms

For performers such as Amos and Andy who never have an audience during a broadcast, studios have been furnished as attractive living rooms. Mrs. Cadle visited two of these, decorated in Colonial and early American styles.

Radio City is the popular place to go for entertainment in New York. Every one dresses formally. "It seems like a fashion parade as visitors walk through the luxuriously furnished building," Mrs. Cadle explained. "Occasionally, as you go through the building, you will pass radio stars you recognize."

While in New York, Mr. and Mrs. Cadle visited with Mr. and Mrs. Guy Bolte, formerly of Indianapolis. Mr. Bolte, an announcer for the Columbia Broadcasting System, conducted them through its studios. The Cadles also dined with Lum and Abner, radio stars, and their wives.

VANITY FROCK

Checked wool is a school classic, and the simple lines of this frock set it off to good advantage. Any junior can make it herself, even if she's never had a sewing lesson before.

Won't she be proud of her skill? Her mother will praise her choice of this fashion-wise frock, which is a smart addition to any girl's wardrobe.

The big bow is a jaunty touch, and looks even bigger beside the little Peter Pan collar. The sleeves are gathered into wrist-bands.

There's no magic to the skirt... it goes together very simply, and the pleats are smart stitched down part way.

Size 12 requires 1 1/2 yards 54-inch material, 1 1/4 yards 36-inch for the collar, 1 1/2 yards 6-inch ribbon for the bow. The pages of our large fall fashion magazine are brimful of grand ideas for juniors, their brothers and sisters, mothers and aunts. If you want to save pennies and have a smart wardrobe for the whole family, send for our fashion book today.

Pattern No. 5373 is designed for sizes 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Price for pattern 15 cents. Our new fashion book is out! Send for it—put check here ☐ and inclose 10 cents extra for book. (Copyright, 1933, by United Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Rudy Vallee Ranks Below Bridge Expert in Solving Brain Twisters, Book Says

Crooner Makes Grade of 80 in Possible 120, While Ely Culbertson Achieves 100, Volume at Stewart's Reveals.

BY HELEN LINDSAY.

RUDY VALLEE made a grade of 80, against a possible score of 120. It wasn't a test on radio popularity, but one on "brain twisters" in one of the latest books on amusements which just has been received at the Thirty-fourth street branch of W. K. Stewart's, Inc.

The book is "Are You a Genius?" It is the second series of intelligence tests, brain twisters and indoor pastimes, prepared by Robert A. Streeter and Robert G. Hoehn, and cleverly illustrated by Dr. Sues.

Celebrities from various walks of life have been selected as examples in answering the questions in the series of tests prepared in the book. Charles M. Schwab trophy for the world's contract bridge championship, recorded a score of 100, against a possible 120.

The author of "The Siamese Twin Mystery," who writes under the pen name of Ellery Queen, unraveled the puzzles in the questions almost as perfectly as he solves the mysteries in his own books.

Scores of 100 were turned in by two newspaper columnists, Franklin P. Adams, who as "F. P. A." edits "The Conning Tower," for the New York Herald-Tribune, and Alma Whitaker, feature writer and columnist for the Los Angeles Times.

The perfect score was made by Edward Huntington Williams, one of the most famous alienists of the country, who receives thousands of dollars for expressing an opinion on the sanity of persons tried for crimes. His testimony carried great weight in the Massey and Ruth Judd murder cases.

While many readers are interested in this type of literature, there is one book which continues in popularity among both men and women. "Anthony Adverse," by Hervey Allen, is still in demand after many months of circulation. Ten copies of the book have been secured for the circulating library of the Stewart branch store, yet there always is a long waiting list.

'Bonfire' Among Popular Volumes

OTHER "best sellers" at the store are Dorothy Canfield's latest book, "Bonfire," "Oil for the Lamps of China," by Alice Tisdale Hobart; "Poor Splendid Wings," the Atlantic Monthly $5,000 prize book, written by Frances Winwar; "Behind the Doctor," by Logan Clendenning, and "Within This Present," by Margaret Ayer Barnes.

"Oil for the Lamps of China" is the story of an American employee of one of the large oil companies in China. In addition to being an appealing story of one man's life and thwarted ambitions, it is a splendid picture of China. Progress of medicine through many years, and personalities of the doctors responsible for that progress, is shown in the book by Dr. Clendenning.

A picture book for grown-ups is one of the most unusual of the new books. It is "Life Since 1860 in Photographs," assembled by Agnes Rogers, with running comment by Frederick Lewis Allen. The book portrays in graphic style not only the march of interesting events in the United States and other countries, but the progress history of photography.

In the pictures shown is one of P. T. Barnum, with General and Mrs. Tom Thumb and Commodore Nutt, the three most famous midgets exhibited by Mr. Barnum.

Other pictures of interest are early and exclusive photographs of Thomas Edison and Alexander Graham Bell, Theodore Roosevelt, Kate Claxton, in the part of the blind sister in "The Two Orphans," which opened in New York in 1874, and an early photograph of Ethel Barrymore.

Coles Have Timely Offering

ANOTHER book which has a timely interest now is "The Intelligent Man's Review of Europe Today," written by G. D. H. Cole and Margaret Cole. Last year Mr. Cole wrote an outstanding book on the economic situation, "A Guide Through World Chaos."

The book on Europe analyzes the makeup of each European country, and comments intelligently on the rise of dictatorships in Italy and Spain; the nature of Fascism and its functioning in Italy; post-war socialism and communism.

Mr. Cole is a graduate of Oxford university, and published as his first important book, "The World of Labor." Since 1918 he has been a leader in the British Labor Party, and since 1925 has been reader in economics at Oxford. At present he also is a member of the economy advisory committee of the British government.

Mrs. Harter to Talk

Mrs. Kathryn Turney Gatten will review "The Unknown Brahms," by Robert Haven Schaufesser, and "Within This Present," by Margaret Ayres Barnes, Friday as the fourth of the series of book talks sponsored by the More Light Guild of the All Souls Unitarian church. The talk will be given at 7:30 in the Elizabeth Goodnow Wicks chapel at the church.

Over a period of twenty-four hours, a navigator uses seven different kinds of time to determine the exact location of his ship at sea.
