

2 ECCENTRICS FACE TRIAL IN 'GOAT MURDER'

Members of Great Families
Charged With Slaying of Famed Beauty.

By United Press
NATCHEZ, Miss., Nov. 23.—Octavia Dockery and Richard H. C. Dana, odd survivors of great families, came into historic old Natchez, yesterday to face trial for the alleged murder of Jane Surget Merrill, once a beauty in European courts.

Eight hundred people gathered around the little courtroom to gaze in wonder at Miss Dockery, daughter of a hero of the Confederate army, and Dana, whose great uncle was the famous editor, Charles Dana, of the New York Sun.

The day's court proceedings were brief. The case of the two defendants was severed from the case of the two other defendants. Dockery was ordered to trial on Monday. The sheriff was disqualified and the coroner was appointed to draw a jury panel of 200. Court then adjourned for the week.

Eight-Inch Beard
Miss Dockery beamed upon the crowd. Dana grinned from behind an eight-inch beard, set off by two neckties—a red bow tied over a green four-in-hand.

Jane Surget Merrill, 72, was slain in her 120-year-old colonial home, Glenburney, just outside the city limits of Natchez, on the night of Aug. 4, 1932.

Two bullets were fired into her body as she stood between the living room and bedroom of her home. The house was ransacked. The body was dragged outside and left in a thicket, 100 yards away.

Possemen searched the grounds all night. The alarm had been spread by Duncan G. Minor, her neighbor, her girlhood sweetheart and her only intimate during her many years of seclusion.

Daughter of Ambassador
Wild excitement followed the slaying. Negroes fled the vicinity in terror, spreading tales of ghosts and "haunts."

Miss Merrill had been a legend in the unwritten annals of old Natchez. Once she was a figure in the court of St. James, and the Belgian royal court.

A native of this city and a famous beauty in her days, she had inherited the estate of her father, the late Aysor P. Merrill, United States ambassador to Belgium and friend of President Grant, only to shut herself away in solitude in the family mansion.

There had been a feud between Miss Merrill and the two strange inhabitants of an adjoining estate, which townsfolk called "Goat Castle." There lived Richard H. C. Dana and Miss Octavia Dockery, sharing the ruins of Dana's once magnificent but abandoned home, with goats and chickens.

Battle Over Goats
The goats frequently prowled onto the well-kept Merrill estate, and Miss Merrill shot one of them once. A quarrel of unusual bitterness was said to have occurred between the two women a few days before the slaying.

The feud was common knowledge in the town, and Sheriff C. P. Roberts immediately saw a possible motive for murder. He arrested Dana and Miss Dockery and charged them with murder.

Miss Dockery is the daughter of the late Brigadier-General Thomas Paine Dockery, confederate hero. She was Dana's housekeeper and was appointed his guardian when his actions in woods about his home, garbed in burlap bags and sitting in trees, caused townspeople to have him adjudged insane.

Negro Is Indicted
Dana and Miss Dockery spent several days in jail. They were released without bond when townspeople protested their incarceration, and several of the south's ablest lawyers came to their defense.

The climax was reached when George Pearles, Negro gunman, was indicted for the murder after his death. Miss Merrill's will was filed for probate. It left an estate estimated at $150,000 and named Minor sole heir and executor.

A few months ago, Mrs. Nellie J. Grist, of Greenfield, Ind., filed suit contesting the will, claiming that she was an illegitimate daughter of Miss Merrill.

'Aunt Mollie,' 91, Tries to Save Friend, Fails

'Light Dawns in Darkness' for Aged Woman at City Hospital.

By United Press
ISLAH 38-10—"If you bestow your bread upon the hungry and relieve men of misery, then light shall dawn for you in darkness, your dull hour shall be bright as noon."

"Aunt Mollie" Thompson, 91, of 514 East Miami street, lives by that scriptural saying, and today faces that "dull hour" in the city hospital because she tried to save her 65-year-old friend, "Aunt Mary" Gollinger, from death.

"Aunt Mary" died at 2:50 a. m. today at the city hospital from injuries suffered when she was struck by a motor car driven by John Schultz, 1806 North New Jersey street, at Ohio and New Jersey streets.

Known far and wide throughout the city, at Fortville, and neighboring towns for her benefactions, "Aunt Mollie" was injured critically when attempting to do a kindly deed following church services last night at Cadle tabernacle.

Sings in Choir
Despite her age, the aunt of Floyd Williamson, state auditor, sings in the Cadle choir.

Last night the streets were slippery. As the benediction and last strains of the choir ended in the tabernacle, "Aunt Mollie" turned to a sister choir member, "Aunt Mary," and offered to help her to her home.

"Aunt Mollie" steadied "Aunt Mary's" arm as they crossed the pavement. They did not see an auto traveling at a slow rate of speed bearing down on them until too late.

Tries to Save Friend
"Aunt Mollie" tried to push "Aunt Mary" out of the car's path, but was felled with her. The auto stopped immediately.

Ambulances took the two "Aunts," who were known by members of the tabernacle for their charities, to the city hospital.

Nurses did not tell her today that "Aunt Mary" was dead.

Miss Thompson was the organizer of a home for aged and unemployed women at 138 North Noble street. She commuted between the home and a residence in Fortville.

Auditor Williamson says his aunt always out-walked her relatives.

"Aunt Mollie" came to Indiana in a covered wagon and settled with her parents near McCordsville. She

Contract Bridge
Members of the team that was to represent the Auction Bridge Club of Chicago in the Vanderbilt match in New York each gave me an interesting hand—the first of which I am presenting today. This hand was played by Ben Fain, youngest member of the team, but recognized as one of Chicago's outstanding players.

East's opening lead was the six of hearts, which West won with the ace and returned a small club, declarer playing the queen. East refused to win the first club trick, hoping to get his partner in again so that he could make two clubs.

Fain in the North returned the queen of hearts, as he knew that this play would throw East in the lead. East won the trick with the king and returned a small diamond, which was won in dummy with the ace.

Fain had lost two heart tricks and might lose two clubs. Therefore, the only way to make his contract was to get a long diamond for a club discard.

He played the four of diamonds and trumped with the six of spades. He then played the ten of hearts. East covered with the jack and the trick was trumped in dummy with the five of spades. The five of diamonds was returned and declarer trumped with the eight of spades.

There was only one possible way to make the contract, and that was to find East with the jack of spades.

So Mr Fain returned a small spade and finessed the ten in dummy, which gave him his two needed entry cards.

He now returned a diamond and trumped with the king of spades. The small spade was returned and won in dummy with the queen, and now on the nine of diamonds one of the losing clubs was discarded. This play gave him four odd.

ONE-FIFTH GAIN IN EMPLOYMENT NOTED IN STATE

Indiana University Report
Compares This Year
With Last.

Indiana employment at the end of October was 20.9 per cent above a year ago and 1.1 per cent above two years ago, a survey by the Indiana university school of business administration shows.

Steel mills increased operations early in October to complete third quarter contracts. Furniture factories were more active than at any other time during the past three years. More motor cars were manufactured in Indiana during October than in any other month since July, 1931.

Loss During October
The employment gain, however, for October was 1.7 per cent below the September percentage. Several firms reported substantial gains in employment, but other firms discharged enough employees to result in a net decline of 1.7 per cent.

There has been an increase in the percentage of employees on part time schedules.

In Indianapolis, in spite of the seasonal decline, new car sales were higher than any other October since 1929. Drug store sales show a lead over last year.

Store Sales Gain
The dollar value of department store sales continued slightly above 1932. Postoffice receipts rose from September figures, but fell below last year's mark.

Total employment in the city was reported 2.6 per cent under September and 28.7 per cent above a year ago.
