EXTRA-FAST WAY TO STOP COLDS

THIS COLD MAKES ME FEEL TERRIBLE. I'VE TAKEN EVERYTHING AND CAN'T SHAKE IT OFF.

YOU CAN GET RID OF THAT COLD IN A DAY IF YOU CLEAN YOUR SYSTEM AND FEVER AND FIGHT THE COLD GERMS. I'LL TELL YOU HOW TO DO IT. IT'S 3 THINGS AT ONCE.

My face and neck were affected with blackheads. After a while these turned into big, sore eruptions that were very painful. They scaled over and were scattered over my face and neck making them very awful looking. My face was terribly irritated by scratching for they burned terribly. This caused me to lose much sleep.

This cold lasted six or seven months. Then my mother told me about Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I sent for a free sample and then purchased more and at the end of two months I was completely healed.

Manners and Morals

BY JANE JORDAN

If you are too close to your own problem to see it clearly, write to Jane Jordan for an impersonal viewpoint. Letters of comment on the problems presented are invited.

Dear Jane Jordan—I am an orphan who had an unhappy life from the ages of 8 to 20. Before that my childhood was so perfect that the deprivations that followed made me long for comfortable things, a home, nice clothes and nice surroundings. At 19 I met a man eleven years older, who fell sincerely in love with me. He had a comfortable fortune, excellent family, social position and fine character. At first I liked him for all the nice things he did for me, but soon learned to care deeply for him.

He is an extremely likable person, but decidedly cold, which is his greatest fault.

Then I met a young man my own age, divorced from his wife. We fell madly in love. Within three months the older man proposed. The turmoil that arose in my mind caused many, many sleepless nights. On one hand there was a fine, solid, dependable man whose kindness had been proved, and for whom I had deep respect and admiration. On the other, a younger man, just as dependable and fine, of a nice family, but no money.

I married the older man, certain that I could force a mad infatuation out of my life and make myself into a good wife. After two years I am most unhappy, but have concealed it from my husband, who is happy. Immediately after marriage I found that he had no physical attraction for me. In fact I hate being a wife to him. He never has had an affectionate nature and does not share my restlessness.

Recently I have seen the younger man again. He gives me the fun and joy of living, and I still love him. I love him with people of my own age and enjoy laughter and light heartedness. I know now that my feeling was not an infatuation. A divorce would hurt my husband terribly. I don't want to hurt him as he is a fine good man, but I do feel that I could find real happiness with the other man.

I want a family but my husband does not care for children. He has one by a former marriage to whom he pays not the slightest attention. Leaving the other man out of the question, I feel that the only fair thing to do is to leave my husband. I can support myself without help from him. He will feel bad, but not as bad as if he finds out I am living with him because I don't want to hurt him. What is your opinion?

CYNTHIA.

Answer—To the modern viewpoint it is more moral to break a contract than to keep it when it is no longer possible to fulfill its most essential feature—love. There is much to be said for the honesty of this stand in a situation where it is so obvious that the letter kills whereas the spirit gives life.

However, I do think that a woman ought to subject herself to a severe psychological investigation before she embarks on divorce. It is not wise to run away from a situation simply because you do not like it, but it is a very bad preparation for the problems to come. To walk out on a difficulty is not to escape it, for every one drags the weight of his unresolved conflicts behind him, to dog his footsteps in each new adventure.
