SMITH BLAST AT ROOSEVELT IRKS SENATORS

'Even Baloney Is Pretty Good Food,' Retort of Norris.

WHOLESALE PRICES UP
Borah Expected to Come Out in Favor of President.

By Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance
WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Alfred E. Smith's attack on the Roosevelt monetary policy today drew no sympathy from the majority of congressional and political leaders, apparently deepening the political schism in the Democratic party, but daunting the administration not at all.

Administration men found in Mr. Smith's statement only a declaration for the policy of deflation which brought the country to its crisis of last March.

Progressive Republicans, including Senators William E. Borah (Idaho), George W. Norris (Neb.) and Gerald Nye (N. D.), all favorable to price-boosting measures, were heartened by the word from Warm Springs that the Roosevelt policy of gold buying, with other measures already in motion to hold up the internal price structure, was unchanged.

The federal reserve board meanwhile issued its monthly report, disclosing that an unseasonable decline in output by basic industries occurred in October.

It showed, however, that factory employment and pay rolls remained stationary from Sept. 25 to Oct. 15 after a steady six-month advance. A more fundamental index, that of wholesale prices, after falling off in October, increased to 71.7 per cent of the 1926 average in the third week of November.

This figure, usually used in figuring dollar purchasing-power, is 20 per cent above the March low point, and expresses a dollar worth approximately $1.40 in goods as compared with the 1926 dollar. A dollar last March bought more than $2 worth of commodities as compared with 1926.

'Pretty Good Food'
It is said to be the purpose of the Roosevelt program to restore the 1926 level, and then by some device for adjusting value of the dollar, keep its purchasing power constant.

Senator Borah was expected to make a pronouncement on the Roosevelt policy today. He is understood to favor the President's general policy and has been heard studying the situation for several days.

Senator Norris, referring to Mr. Smith's caustic characterization of "baloney dollars" as contrasted to his own idea of gold dollars, commented in equally sarcastic vein:

"Even baloney is pretty good food for a starving individual."

"It's Terrible Mistake"
Senator Duncan Fletcher (Dem., Fla.) chairman of the banking and currency committee which has been investigating Wall Street, said Mr. Smith was "making a terrible mistake."

"I stand squarely behind President Roosevelt and the program he is following in the nation's money affairs," he said. "Attacks on the program have their foundation in doubt that the President stands for sound money."

Senator Pat Harrison (Dem., Miss.), chairman of the finance committee, would not comment, but another party veteran, Senator Kenneth McKellar (Tenn.), said: "We are not going to have any baloney money. I am quite sure that the President has no such intent. Let's give President Roosevelt a fair chance of dealing with the problems that are his."

Roosevelt Just Smiles
By United Press
WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 25.—Determined to continue his present monetary policy despite criticism, President Roosevelt today carried forward his survey of the nation's entire financial picture with Henry Morgenthau Jr., acting treasury secretary.

Mr. Roosevelt merely smiled at a blast by Alfred E. Smith, who called for sound money in a statement that was sprinkled with expressions usually associated with political campaigns, such as "baloney" and "crackpot."

The President will conclude his conference with Mr. Morgenthau tomorrow night. It was not expected that the discussions would produce anything more than a clear exposition of the chief executive's ideas for the benefit of Mr. Morgenthau.

The little White House made it clear that no change in the monetary policy was even remotely contemplated and that Mr. Smith's attack, like those of Dr. O. M. W. Sprague and James P. Warburg, would be ignored by Mr. Roosevelt.

MARY H. YOUNG DIES IN CRASH

Psychiatrist and Personnel Worker Had National Reputation.

Dr. Mary H. Young, noted psychiatrist and director of the Herman H. Young Foundation, 1119 North Delaware street, was killed instantly last night in an automobile accident on State road 37 near Martinsville.

The car in which she was riding, driven by J. Louis Rosenstein, Butler university faculty member, en route home from Bloomington, got out of control and plunged down an embankment. Dr. Young was thrown from the car, suffering a skull fracture.

Dr. Rosenstein was bruised and shocked, but is not in serious condition, according to Martinsville hospital officials.

Dr. Young became head of the foundation, a psychological clinic, when it was founded in 1931. It is named after her husband, who died in February, 1931.

Dr. Young was named director of psychological clinics of Indiana university at Bloomington and at the medical center in Indianapolis, when her husband died.

She was head of the Butler university division of clinical psychology, and was psychological consultant for Eli Lilly & Co. She was assisted in the clinic by Dr. Rosenstein and Dr. O. J. Briedenbaugh.

Surviving her are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hoover, North Canton, O. Funeral services have not been announced.

'Mystery Man' Named by Defendant in Bond Theft

Threat on Life Charged by Teacher Arrested in Terre Haute.

Further developments expected to shed more light on the mysterious disappearance of $25,000 worth of teacher retirement fund bonds were awaited today as authorities sought a "mystery man."

The man was named by Miss Cora Steele, Terre Haute school principal, who was arrested yesterday following an indictment by the Marion county grand jury.

Miss Steele was brought to Indianapolis by Al Feeney, state safety director, yesterday afternoon and was released early last night on $10,000 bond.

According to a purported statement of Miss Steele, she purchased a $5,000 bond, one of the missing securities, from an Indianapolis man, for $3,200 from her life savings.

When the bond was delivered, Miss Steele declares the man also produced two bonds for $10,000 denomination and ordered her to arrange an exchange for securities of smaller amounts.

The man threatened her life, unless his order was carried out, Miss Steele claims. Subsequently, the Civil Works Employees Get First Wage: Total About $50,000.

Today was pay day for 4,193 men to whom a pay check was but a dim memory.

And with the arrival of the checks, totaling $51,196, another memory, that of months and, in some cases, several years of being forced to depend on charity for food baskets, faded.

Smiles and cheers greeted Carl Reed, foreman of a group of civil works employees at the Riverside nursery, when he began handing out the checks.

The men were taken from poor relief lists Monday and given cash wage jobs. Today's pay checks were for the first four days work.

Other thousands, including many not on relief lists, but badly in need of employment, will be given jobs in the next few days as new projects for their employment are outlined.

The checks meant not only a new self-respect for the recipients, but also food, of their own choice; clothing and other necessities for their families.

Similar plans are being followed nationally after federal adoption of a program instituted by Mr. McKinney in Indiana, which proved so successful that it was placed in general use.

Under the arrangement, mortgages "frozen" in financial institutions are replaced by bonds of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, after an appraisal has fixed value of the mortgaged property.

These bonds, in turn, may be used as collateral at 80 per cent value in obtaining cash from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Six loans were approved for the American Trust Company, South Bend, and the Fowler Trust Company, Lafayette. It is reported that about $260,000 will be released from each of these banks by Jan. 1.

The Aetna Trust and Savings bank here also is being considered as a recipient of bonds to release $75,000. More than 100 appraisals have been ordered for three building and loan companies in Shelbyville.

Home Loan Aid Expected to Free $125,000,000 in Indiana.

Speeding up of machinery of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation will result in the release of approximately $125,000,000 now held in banks and building and loan associations, by the first of the year, E. Kirk McKinney, state manager, announced today.

Appraisals will be made as rapidly as possible of mortgage assets valued at $100,000,000 in building and loan associations, $21,000,000 in restricted state banks, and $4,000,000 in class B national banks in the state.

Arrival here of R. R. Rennie, special agent from Washington to assist Mr. McKinney, and early appointment of a federal appraiser will aid materially in handling the large volume of loan applications which must be considered, Mr. McKinney declared.

SHOT KILLED RHETA WYNEKOOP, NOT CHLOROFORM, IS FINDING IN MEDICAL REPORT GIVEN CORONER

Curious Mingle With Mourners to Catch Glimpse of Slain Girl

HUGE bronze and yellow chrysanthemums, which might have graced the beauty of Rheta Gardner Wynekoop on the concert stage, bowed their heads as if in sorrow this morning while more than 1,000 persons filed slowly past her casket.

Mingled with friends who had known her when she was a golden-haired little girl, associates of her high school days and fellow students at musical conservatories in Indianapolis, were curious strangers whose only knowledge of Mrs. Wynekoop were the newspaper accounts of her spectacular murder.

Attendants at the funeral parlors of Shirley Brothers undertaking establishment, 946 North Illinois street, re-arranged the floral pieces constantly, to make room for additional ones.

Seated at each end of the casket was a uniformed policeman, carefully scanning visitors.

Two other officers were stationed at the entrance, to direct the crowd in and out of the building. Two registers were filled with penciled names. The writing of some showed in the irregular formation of the letters, the emotional strain under which they were recorded.

The line of onlookers stretched from the casket to the entrance doors of the funeral parlors almost all morning.

One young blond girl stood for several minutes before the casket, viewing each detail. She turned to leave, hesitated, and came back. With a dazed look at her companion she said, "Just last week she was alive."

A young music student, carrying a violin case, hurried from the building to her lesson after viewing the body.

And at the door of the parlor in which the body lay was a tiny card. It read "At Rest—Rheta G. Wynekoop."

Extension of loans, in a manner similar to farm mortgage relief loans, will be granted through the Farm Credit Administration to prevent foreclosures, Mr. Larrabee said.

BIRTH CONTROL CLUB MEETING POSTPONED

Chairman Will Announce New Date Later.

Open meeting of the Indiana Birth Control League, which was to have been held Monday night at All Souls Unitarian church, has been postponed until later. Annual business meeting was to have preceded the meeting.

Mr. Lee Burns, chairman, will announce the meeting date later. Other officers are Mrs. J. A. Goodman, vice-chairman; Mrs. Wendell Sherer, treasurer; Mrs. Benjamin D. Hitz, recording secretary, and Mrs. Theodore B. Griffith, corresponding secretary.

PAY ROLL SNATCHED IN DARING DAYLIGHT RAID

Several Hundred Sex Gary Thugs Slug Messenger.

GARY, Ind., Nov. 25.—Willard Boehle, 27, messenger for a chain department store, was slugged and robbed of a pay roll amounting to several hundred dollars today.

Several hundred persons saw the robbery.

One of the bandits grabbed the money bag and he and his companion joined confederates who were waiting in an automobile.

"I'm always pretty suspicious when an educated person, and more so a doctor, turns to another world in thought. You see, we're ordinarily pretty practical-minded people," the alienist said.

"HER psychology was that of things are so bad and I just can't let them get worse for my son, so I'll end it." And then the murder of her daughter-in-law followed, it was explained by the city doctor.

"Upon the basis of letters printed in the papers, I'd say they would be pretty hard evidence to down in a sanity hearing," he concluded.

In turn, one city alienist believes there is a possibility that the letters found by Chicago police in the Wynekoop residences

Heart Still Beating at Time Bullet Was Fired Into Back, Toxicologists Rule in Strange Murder.

MOTHER-IN-LAW PLACED IN JAIL

Police Battle Desperately to Pin Enough Evidence on Husband to Hold Him in Their Custody.

By United Press
CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Rheta Wynekoop, talented Indianapolis musician, died of a gunshot wound rather than from the effects of chloroform, it was held this afternoon in a medical report to the county coroner.

A clot of blood found in the stomach of the victim of the strange murder mystery led Toxicologist James Dwyer and Dr. Clarence W. Muehlbacher to believe that Rheta's heart still was beating at the time she was shot in the back.

They reported the clot probably passed through the esophagus to the stomach.

On the basis of the finding, Deputy Coroner S. L. Tolankowski announced the report would be that the girl died of "shock and hemorrhage."

The finding was in contrast to the "confession" of Dr. Alice Wynekoop, mother-in-law of the victim, that the bullet was fired after death had come by chloroform.

A heavy trace of mercury was found in the girl's kidneys, the report said. A faint trace of mercury was reported in the liver.

Shortly before the report, Dr. Wynekoop was taken out of the hands of police investigators and sent to the county jail.

At the same time Judge Joseph B. David, told state attorneys that formal charges must be filed against Earle Wynekoop, husband of the dead girl and son of the elderly physician, or he would be released.

Action on a writ of habeas corpus for the young husband was continued until that time. The elderly Dr. Wynekoop, subjected to an almost continuous barrage of questions since the death of her young daughter-in-law Tuesday, was helped into court by her attorney, Frank Tyrrell, and another son, Walker Wynekoop.

HINT HART MAY BE FOUND ALIVE

New Series of Telephone Calls Received by Youth's Father.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Nov. 24.—A new series of telephone calls and notes have been received by Alex J. Hart, father of Brooke Hart, missing 22-year-old youth, it was learned here this afternoon upon good authority.

Sheriff William Emig of Santa Clara county refused directly to confirm the fact that the messages offered to return young Hart alive for the original $40,000 ransom, which was demanded.

CLAIM FORGERY IN SCOTTSBORO TRIAL

Expert Testimony Is That Name Was Added.

'We, the Jury, Find—'

Lothario's Girl Friends Slouch Carelessly by as Dramatic Verdict Is Returned.

BY FREDERICK G. MATSON
Times Staff Writer

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Six men filed out of the city morgue into a room for deliberations as to who killed Rheta Gardner Wynekoop, yesterday afternoon.

Behind a glass door in a neighboring room six people, who knew the beautiful musician or who were involved in her life, waited for ten minutes until those six men, from offices and laboring gang, brought in a verdict, "Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, charged with first degree murder."

In the morgue newspapermen hurried to telephones. Flashlights boomed.

Behind the glass door Miss Enid Hennessey, lodger in the Wynekoop home, bowed her head and cried convulsively.

Behind the door Earle Wynekoop, hair askew and eyes wan, stood against a wall with one foot hooked in a chair for support.

Talking to him, heaving upon his shoulders in futile desperation, with tears coursing through pale rouge tints on cheeks, was Dr. Catherine Wynekoop, his sister.

Her black fur coat moved with her pleading hands. Her half-veil on a black hat swung with the nervous shakes of her head at the words that slipped from the jagged corners of her brother's mouth.

Outside the glass door, in the morgue, detectives milled with news photographers.

BUT in a far corner of the room behind the glass door, love that is nonchalant, undaunted by a notoriety, flaunted crossed legs.

"We, the jury, find . . ."

Behind the glass door Miss McHale jerked a modish garter, of the gay nineties imitation, with a snap. She slouched to her feet. Her companions, "sweeties" of Earle Wynekoop, spanked their dresses and sauntered with her. The glass door opened.

Dr. Katherine Wynekoop stopped beating her brother's shoulders. A moan—and she walked into the morgue to hear the verdict.

The husband of the dead girl buried his head deep in his shoulders.

His companions in love-lit corners slouched carelessly by as—

"We, the jury, find Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop be held on a charge of first degree murder."
