

Conservation— STATE BATTLES WITH PROBLEM TO SAVE GAME

Conservation Chief Ponders
Situation: Need Aid of Sportsmen.

BY WILLIAM F. COLLINS
Times Special Writer.

Virgil (Skits) Simmons, director of the department of conservation, is faced with a difficult problem. In making an inventory of the fish and game department assets at the beginning of his term of office, he discovered nearly $200,000 invested in buildings on the fish hatchery sites.

One of the hatcheries had such a meager supply of water that production was limited to a few thousand fish annually. Investment in plant equipment, including buildings if based on the same ratio used in either Missouri or Michigan, should have given this state 50,000,000 fish each year whereas the actual production never exceeded fifteen million.

About the time the fingerlings started growth, the hatcheries ran short of water and the hatch had to be hurried into the streams in such an immature stage they were unable to protect themselves against their natural enemies.

Transfer Is Expensive

One of the game farms breeding pheasants is on a high knob in southern Indiana hills, originally heavily timbered and now surrounded by a forest full of every imaginable kind of vermin from weasels to owls and foxes. To transport the birds that are left at the end of a season to a country adapted to pheasants requires a long haul expensive to the department. In addition to that, the jigger population on this hill location during the months when the young birds are mortally affected by them practically precludes a successful operation of this place.

The cost of repairing these and other errors in the plan is prohibitive under the present department income and to ask for an increase in the cost of a hunting or fishing license without the inducement of more game or fish is placing the department in the same position as asking your salesman to get another dollar for an article upon which no improvement has been made.

The department bulletin just out calls for suggestions from interested sportsmen. Proposals have been made to allow local fish and game clubs to aid in production to supplement the hatcheries of both fish and game in the state farms.

Deer Plan Supported

The local club is to be paid for this activity an amount sufficient to help maintain their program. Another group of Indiana sportsmen, with nothing to sell to the department suggested to Mr. Simmons to place Virginia white tailed deer in the forests of southern Indiana. If these deer, in time, brought one-fifth of the money into this state that now goes into Michigan, Pennsylvania or Vermont, the future of the conservation department would be assured.

Mr. Simmons consented to the experiment only if the majority of the sportsmen, especially those in southern Indiana, pledged themselves to the project. He stated the money could be obtained out of the more than $90,000 he already had saved in the department and that if deer were feasible in Indiana, the expense of getting them in would be paid back time and again in increased revenue.

The sportsmen are going to decide the deer question. I am assured the department will not act against his wishes. At this writing there are more complaints against the project being written into the news than petitions. But this is usual in the case with innovation, the calamity prophet occupies the speakers chair.

Try Any Sane Program

Personally, I should like to see it tried, at least in a few of the wilder counties in southern Indiana, in that wish I am supported by our most cautious sportsmen. In any event, sportsmen, you have a department now that is willing to try out any sane program contemplating more fish or game. If you have any objection to its program, you will find the most interested sympathizer sitting in "Skits" Simmons' chair.

You don't have to go out and bang your head against the walling wall to stop a project you think is hopeless. If you want to see the department talking the thing over with Mr. Simmons, those who know him best have you placed at once.

CWA Worker Crash Victim

NOBLESVILLE, Dec. 2.—Injuries sustained by Frank N. Newby, 40, truck driver on a CWA project, when his truck was struck by a Nickel Plate freight engine, proved fatal yesterday.

PREPARED FOR ATOM BOMBARDMENT

The heaviest artillery ever built to bombard the smallest bits of matter is shown here during construction by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology near New Bedford. These fifteen-foot metallic spheres, on twenty-five-foot columns, will store up static electricity until a bolt of 10,000,000 volts leaps between them.

Scientists inside each of the spheres, and quite safe, will aim the tremendous force through vacuum tubes at the nuclei of a few atoms. If the atoms are shattered the experimenters may learn something about how to release and utilize the incalculable amount of energy which is believed to be stored up in the atoms comprising all matter.

Indiana in Brief

Lively Spots in the State's Happenings Put Together 'Short and Sweet.'

By Times Special

LEBANON, Dec. 2.—Boone county has received a bill for $50 from the Indiana state prison, the money being due for the putting to death of Charles Vernon Witt, slayer of Lafayette Jackson, Indianapolis chain grocery head, during a holdup.

Witt was convicted in Boone county circuit court here, change of venue in his case having been taken from Marion county. The slayer was put to death in the electric chair on Nov. 24.

The bill is in accordance with a statute providing a $50 payment to executioner of prisoners. Payment is made to the warden, who sees that the proper person receives the money. Name of the executioner never is made public.

Almost simultaneously with arrival of the bill, came a check from Marion county for $4,528 in payment of costs in cases from that county tried here on changes of venues. In the amount was costs of the trial of Louis A. Hamilton, accomplice of Witt in the Jackson murder. Hamilton recently was granted a stay of execution of the death sentence.

Typhoid Victim Sues

LEBANON, Dec. 2.—Permanent disability resulting from an attack of typhoid fever is alleged by Gus Miller in a $10,000 damage suit on file in Boone circuit court. Defendant is Clinton K. Martin. Mr. Miller recites that he became ill while in the employ of Mr. Martin as a farm hand, and blames well water as the cause. The complaint alleges Mr. Martin was negligent in not providing a supply of pure water.

M. E. Men to Meet

MARTINSVILLE, Dec. 2.—Members of men's brotherhoods of Methodist churches in the Bloomington district will be guests at an annual dinner and program to be given next Tuesday night by the brotherhood of the Martinsville church. Principal speaker will be Dr. John G. Benson, superintendent of the Methodist hospital, Indianapolis.

Sewer Work Delayed

BLOOMINGTON, Dec. 2.—Work on Bloomington's $485,000 sewer program probably will not be started until after Jan. 1, according to Mayor Joseph H. Campbell, who explained that the contract for sale of bonds to finance the project has not yet been received. After the contract has been disposed of, three weeks publication for bids is required.

Approval of the project was given a week ago by the federal public works administration. Monroe county civil works administration plans include operation of three stone crushers by the county to obtain material for road work, and the laying of a water line to the county infirmary.

Fishing the Air

Oswald Jacoby, New York bridge expert, will be interviewed Saturday at 5:15 p. m. over WFBM by Mrs. Ray Coffin one of Indianapolis' best bridge instructors.

Wanted to the skies in imagination, Jack Denny and his orchestra, with Jeanie Lang and Paul Small, introduce their program to be broadcast over WFBM and Columbia network Saturday from 8:15 to 9:30 p. m., with Tim Larkin on a Rain-bow.

Seymour Simmons and his distinctive orchestra will be heard over WFBM and Columbia network Saturday at 8:30 p. m. in the second of their new series of half-hour affairs, originating in Detroit.

Jacques Fray and Mario Braggiotti, who combine artistry and a sense of humor to present a series of musical sketches, engagement and contract, will open their program with a rendition of "The Modern Fantasy," an "American in Paris," Saturday, from 7:15 to 7:30 p. m., over WFBM and the Columbia chain.

Present reading tastes of the American public and the probable future of literature in the immediate future will be analyzed by William L. Cheney, editor of Collier's, in an interview with William Lundell, NBC announcer, over WTAM and ABC network Saturday at 10:15 p. m.

Andre Kostelanetz, orchestral and choral director, presents the Modern Male Chorus in a program of sentimental favorites and rollicking melodies, from 8:15 to 9:30 over WFBM and the Columbia chain.

Hamilton County's Oldest Veteran Dies

91-Year-Old Civil War Soldier to Be Buried Tomorrow.

NOBLESVILLE, Dec. 2.—Funeral services for William H. Stern, 91, Hamilton county's oldest Civil War veteran, who died yesterday, will be held tomorrow afternoon in the Masonic temple.

Mr. Stern had been a resident of the county all his life. He served three years in the war, taking part in the battles of Lookout mountain, Chickamauga, Stone's river, Kennesaw mountain and many others.

STATE TO END CASE IN MASON TRIAL MONDAY

Display of Arsenal to Be
Final Move in Jones' Slaying Hearing.

By Times Special

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., Dec. 2.—Opening of court Monday in the trial of William Mason, charged with the slaying of Indianapolis Police Sergeant Lester Jones, will find the state closing its case with the introduction of numerous state exhibits.

Machine guns, shotguns and pistols, alleged to have been used in the slaying, will form the major portion of the exhibits introduced. The defense case will attempt to show that Mason was "framed" by the alleged bandit gang and was not at the scene of the holdup.

The science of ballistics was used as an evidence link in the state's case on Friday when Arch Ball, ballistics expert of the Indianapolis police department, testified to shells found on the garage floor of the Peoples Motor Coach Company.

Claims Bullets Same

Ball said a bullet found in the garage was identical with a bullet fired from an automobile pistol found at Mason's side when he was captured with other members of the alleged slaying gang near Erlanger, Ky.

He also testified that a shotgun shell fired during the holdup of the Capitol Dairies, Inc., Indianapolis, was identical to shells used in a shotgun which the state alleges was used in both the coach company holdup and the dairy robbery.

Mason previously had been identified, police say, as one of the Capitol Dairy bandits.

Lloyd Christian, defense attorney, interposed numerous objections to Ball's testimony.

Christian moved that all of Ball's testimony be stricken from the record, arguing that the science of ballistics is not recognized in Indiana. Circuit Judge Fred Hines overruled the motion.

Police Identify Fingerprints

Christian sought to show that all firearm markings are alike because they are fashioned by automatic machines. Ball declared that the markings of no two weapons are identical.

Other state witnesses closing the case at yesterday's court session were Thomas A. Laffey of the Chicago police bureau of identification; Walter T. Dempsey of the Dayton (O.) police bureau of identification; Albert C. Bennett, head of the Indianapolis police bureau of identification; Detective George Mueller of the Indianapolis police department; Barrett M. Ball, Indianapolis policeman; Clarence B. Graham, Franklin (O.) marshal; Detective Morris E. Bowers of the Indianapolis police department; and Stanley Myers, Indianapolis garage mechanic.

Perrott, Laffey and Dempsey testified that fingerprints found on a tag attached to a money sack, which was the property of Ernest Giberson, one of the alleged members of the bandit gang, Giberson awaits trial on a murder charge.

Class Celebrates

The 101 Baraca Men's class of the Broadway Baptist Church will hold a "Celebration Session" in honor of the contest victory of the class over the Agogo Men's of the First Baptist church of Evansville Sunday morning at 9:30 o'clock. The Rev. E. M. Dorrill, pastor, will give an address on the "Present Situation" and the "Unavoidable Condition" at 9:40 o'clock, discussing "Paul in Ephesus." Special music will be provided by a mixed quartet. R. A. McClure will read the lesson. H. A. Robertson, secretary, will give a report of the class activities. Ray Higdon, president, will preside. The program will be broadcast by WFBM from 9:30 to 10 o'clock.

Important Meeting

The Rev. Hillyer H. Stratton, pastor of the First Baptist church of Muncie, will be the speaker at an evangelistic service, thirty-two Baptist churches in the Indianapolis Association, at 2:30 p. m., tomorrow, at the First Baptist church.

The Rev. Louis G. Crafton, chairman of the committee on evangelism for the Baptist churches of Indianapolis, will preside.

Karl Scheick, president of the Baptist Young People's organization of Marion county, will read the scripture lesson.

Prayer will be offered by the Rev. C. W. Atwater, pastor of the First Baptist church. Other members of the committee on evangelism are the Rev. George D. Billeisen and the Rev. C. H. Scheick.

Radio Talk

Herbert M. Glossbrenner, Indianapolis business man, will begin the seventh week's series of daily radio talks on "Solving Today's Problem" Monday morning at 7:30 o'clock. He will be heard each morning during the week at that time. His subjects for the week will be: Monday, "Industry"; Tuesday, "Heroism"; Wednesday, "Duty"; Thursday, "Comradeship"; Friday, "Sharing Strength"; and Saturday, "Boys and Girls' Problems." Mr. Glossbrenner has been a Sunday school teacher for more than forty years.

Roll Call Sunday

David H. Whittham, elder and Sunday school superintendent at Fairview Presbyterian church, will speak on "Official Loyalty" at officers' day's services tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at the Southport Presbyterian church.

Roll of officers will be called by Jack Williams, for the elders; John A. Whalen, president, for the board of deacons; Fred Probst, president, for the board of trustees, and A. R. Young, superintendent, for the Sunday school organization. Sunday evening services will be devoted to "home grown verse."

Other events of "loyalty month" planned by the Rev. Luther E. Markin, minister, will include "every member day" on Dec. 10; "neighbors' day" on Dec. 17 and "consecration day" on Dec. 24.

TIME EXTENSION GIVE CITY IN SLUMS PROJECT

Thirty Days Granted Local Board to Apply for $4,460,000 Loan.

The Community Housing Corporation of Indianapolis has been granted a thirty days' extension of time to perfect its application for a $4,460,000 government loan for the proposed slums clearance project.

Notice of the extension was received yesterday by Joe Rand Beckett, secretary-manager, who said the Indianapolis project is as far along as projects in other cities. The deadline for sale of about $700,000 in stock for the local project previously had been announced as Dec. 1.

Approval of the project is contained in a letter received by Beckett from the East Side Federation of Community Civic Clubs.

Under the projected plan, ramshackle houses in a section on the northwest side, and possibly in a south side section, would be razed and replaced with modern, low-priced dwellings and apartments.

RED CROSS OFFICIAL
TO TEACH FIRST AID

Advance Course Begins Monday, Lasts Five Days

Dr. Herbert T. Wagner, first aid director of the Indianapolis chapter, American Red Cross, will direct an advance course in first aid at Red Cross headquarters, 777 North Meridian street, starting Monday and continuing five nights.

The class, open to those who have taken the standard first aid course, will be instructed by Lewis C. Roberts, assisted by Charles Clary, Ralph Taylor and Ben Weaver.

W. H. RICHARDSON DIES

Funeral Monday for Former Works Board Employee.

Last rites for William H. Richardson, Negro, 65, of 1422 Mill street, will be held at the Jones Tabernacle A. M. E. Z. church, Michigan and Blackford streets, Monday afternoon at 1. Burial will be in Crown Hill.

He came to Indianapolis in 1874 from Raleigh, N. C., and had been a resident here since that time. He was employed by the Holt Ice Company for thirty-two years and was an employee of the city works board department for eleven years.

He was an active member of the O. P. Morton lodge, Odd Fellows and Summer lodge of the United Brothers.

Morrissey orders police to stand if street car is crowded. The arm of the law will be sent up for a stretch.
