

AIR MAIL PILOTS RESCUED AFTER NIGHT ON LAKE

Two Fliers Are Unharmed
Despite Harrowing Accident.

By United Press
GRAND HAVEN, Mich., Dec. 29.—Two airmail pilots arrived here on the coast guard cutter Escanaba today with tales of sea sickness and freezing while they clung to their plane, which was forced down on Lake Michigan.

Pilot H. D. (Pat) Gossett, Detroit, and co-pilot Ben W. Craycraft were rescued from their ship last night, fifty-three miles off shore. Their plane, in which they were making a regular run from Milwaukee to Grand Rapids, was abandoned in sinking condition when a wing submerged, making further towing impossible.

The cutter picked them up at 12:05 a. m. today near the spot where they were forced down by engine trouble about 5:32 p. m. Thursday. The men were unharmed and considerably refreshed when they arrived here aboard the cutter.

"One of our wing pontoons was washed away about 8 o'clock last night," Gossett said. "We were forced to move out of the cabin on to the other wing to stabilize the ship."

"The cabin shipped a little water, but the wing was almost dry except for the spray."

The ship rode well on the moderate ground swell, but Gossett said he suffered from sea-sickness. Both men showed signs of nervous strain.

FURTHER LIQUOR HEARINGS WILL BE INAUGURATED

Commission Will Continue to Draft New Excise Department Rules.

Further hearings on liquor control will be inaugurated by the state commission on Jan. 12, it was announced today by Mrs. Meredith Nicholson Jr., secretary.

At a meeting last week, the commissioners discussed the matter of high price and low quality of whiskey as exposed by The Times. Plans to remedy this situation are being made, according to Alex Gordon, labor member of the commission.

Hotel men, restaurant owners and druggists were granted hearings at previous commission meetings.

According to Governor Paul V. McNutt, the commission is a continuing body which will draft new rules for the excise department from time to time.

Paul Fry, state excise director, at one time said he thought the commission was through, with the promulgation of present rules. Now, however, he says it is o. k. with him if they continue and he will put out whatever rules they find advisable.

Mrs. Nicholson declined to name groups that will appear at the new series of public hearings.
