

POSTAL DEFICIT SLASHED, 1933 REPORT SHOWS

Annual Summary Announces 600 Per Cent Gain In Robberies.

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—A two-thirds decrease under the postal net deficit of 1932 and estimates looking to an approximately balanced budget for 1934, were reported today in the annual report of the year 1933.

Equally outstanding was reported a large increase in robberies on units of the postal service, together with recommendations for corrective legislation.

The postmaster-general reported a decrease of $97,419,097 under the gross expenditures of $75,057,754 for 1932. This reduction came largely through a $80,611,749 slash in salaries and wages.

Small Revenue Decrease

A $3,562,360 increase in expenditures for ocean and air mail subsidies, over the $42,252,210 total for 1932, was the only increase shown for 1933.

Total expenditures for the year were $700,000,256.53. Total revenues aggregated $587,631,364.43, a slight decrease under the 1932 revenues.

Cost of mail subsidies and the postage value of mail service performed free for congress, the courts and the executive departments were $61,691,286.59. This had the effect of reducing the gross deficiency of $112,374,892, to a true deficit, embracing postal transactions only of $50,683,605.05, as compared with a net deficit of $152,246,188 for the previous fiscal year.

Further Economics Expected

From the revenue returns of the first months of this year, the department estimates that its income for the fiscal year 1934 will be in the neighborhood of $587,600,000. This decline from 1933 is due to the reduction on local first-class mail from 3 to 2 cents, which became effective July 1, 1933. However, further economies are expected to reduce 1934 expenditures to $530,000,000. Making allowance for approximately $60,000 for nonpostal items, the 1934 budget will be approximately balanced.

Although attacks on the mails have remained fairly constant over a long period of years, robberies on units of the postal service handling government moneys have increased 600 per cent, it was reported.

Under existing law, when a financial unit of the service is robbed with or without the use of firearms, the maximum punishment is ten years imprisonment and $5,000 fine. No penalty is provided for attempts to commit such robberies. Attacks on mail units however, carry a mandatory penalty of twenty-five years imprisonment, whether successful or unsuccessful.

Thus the department recommended legislation to provide the same penalty for assaults upon government money and property as are now provided for assaults on mail matter. Robberies during 1933 totaled $815,192.18 as compared with $189,848.74.

Further Legislation Recommended

During 1933 fiscal year there were eight fatalities to pilots carrying air mail over 35,000,811 miles. Out of 6,741,788 pounds of mail carried the percentage of loss only reached the fraction 0.000306.

Further legislation recommended was

To authorize payment of annuities withheld from employees retired from active service during July, 1932, under the economy act.

To authorize the postmaster general to contract for air mail service in Alaska.

To reduce the fee to accompany applications for entry as second class matter of publications of limited circulation.

KOKOMO, Jan. 8.—Howard county organization of the League of Women Voters has put politicians "on the spot" in connection with their registration of voters with a demand that only unemployed persons serve in listing voters.

In a statement, the league offered services of its members in case there are not enough jobless persons to do the work. Members would refund their pay to the county.

This offer checkmated reports that political leaders had intimated sufficient number of unemployed persons competent for registration work could not be obtained, and brought statements from both Republican and Democratic leaders of faith in ability of league members.

The league has declared it intends to see that no "political hangers on" are given registration jobs.

She was found guilty by a jury following a trial during which the prosecuting witness, Charles Mains, was not on the stand. Mains, the fifth husband, caused her arrest on a charge that at the time of their marriage she had not obtained a divorce from her fourth husband, Charles Frederick.

Huey in Oil

Painting Near Napoleon's Shocks Professor.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 8.—

"I was shocked," remarked Dr. Broadus Mitchell, of Johns Hopkins university, in describing his feelings on seeing a tinted portrait of United States Senator Huey Long hanging in the Cabildo museum here alongside portraits of Napoleon and Andrew Jackson. Dr. Mitchell, assistant professor of economics, was here to address a citizens' forum on "the new deal."

Fifty-four enumerators begin to day the census of business conditions and the real property inventory in Marion county as part of President Roosevelt's re-employment plan recently set up in the civil works administration.

Twenty-eight thousand "white collar" workers throughout the county will be given employment through this survey program.

Data obtained in the business census is expected to show the extent of the NRA program, month by month, as it affects the return of employment. Facts obtained in the real property inventory will be used in such projects as slum clearance and real estate developments, it was stated.

Business men are urged to co-operate with the census enumerators when they call Albert Schmollinger, in charge of the business census here, said that individual business returns will be held strictly confidential. They will serve, however, to allow government officials to arrive at comprehensive figures concerning each line of business, he pointed out.

The government statistics will be compiled and released to the public as soon as possible. It will be possible for business men in every section of the country to make comparisons between their individual businesses and the median figure for that particular line.

Government officials state that this data will provide background in the preparation of economic planning in the future.

The business census calls for a description of the business establishment, the kind of merchandise handled, the employment given, the salaries paid and the expenses incurred.

An indication of the number of vacant houses and apartments in Indianapolis will be obtained through the real property inventory.

Other data collected will show the number of families "doubling up" in one residence because of the depression, the amount of money spent in repairs and improvements, and will provide a description of the physical character of the structures investigated.

Through this census it will be possible to compare the average current rentals in Indianapolis with the data collected in 1929, P. H. Easton, in charge of the real property census, said.

Between 175 to 200 persons will be employed in the district office in Room 416, Federal building, to conduct the survey for surrounding counties and to handle the clerical work.

All have been taken from the CWA lists.
