

67 COUNTIES IN STATE TAKE UP DIPHTHERIA WAR

Immunization of All School Children Goal of Intensive Drive.

Sixty-seven counties have joined the drive to wipe out diphtheria and smallpox, it was revealed today by Dr. V. K. Harvey, state public health director. The campaign, conducted by the state board of health, Indiana State Medical Association and county medical societies, aims to immunize all children against the disease.

The medical profession is tendering its services free to those who are unable to pay for the vaccination service. The state supplies materials. Educational bulletins have been sent throughout the state. Lectures and film showings have aided in organizing immunization programs in communities.

The Indiana campaign has been praised by W. W. Bauer, director of public instruction, American Medical Association, as one of the most outstanding ever undertaken.

Dr. Harvey said today, "Diphtheria is one of the few diseases which human beings have the power entirely to blot out if they are intelligent enough to use the simple means which science has placed at their very doors."

"Every physician who has attended a terrible case of diphtheria, in which the child has died, never will forget and automatically becomes a crusader for immunization."

"Too often it is the advanced case that comes to the physician. The helpless child, bluish and struggling for breath, is taken to the hospital. The physician and parents then are forced to stand by and see the little one choke to death with the diphtheria membrane that fills his larynx and trachea."

"The knowledge of the ease with which the disease can be wiped out are the reasons why all physicians are so anxious to see that all babies and young children are safeguarded by the simple means of having a doctor give toxoid."

WEST'S OPINION OF JAPAN IS EXPLAINED

Economic Nervousness Underlies Misunderstanding, Hirota Says.

By United Press

TOKIO, Feb. 1.—Koki Hirota, Japan's astute foreign minister, told members of the imperial diet today that "economic nervousness" of western nations underlaid "misunderstandings" of Japan's policy in the Orient.

Speaking during interpolations of cabinet members by the diet, Mr. Hirota "regretted" the misunderstandings, but said that the economic situation made explanations difficult.

City Man Is Kidnapped, Forced on Chicago Trip

Seated in a comfortable chair in his home, 3206 North Capitol avenue, John P. Rich this morning recounted his experiences last night, when he was kidnapped by two bandits in front of his office, and forced at the point of guns to drive them to Chicago.

Northsider Threatened by Two Gunmen; Seized at Office.

"Move over—you're going for a ride!"

With only these words as a warning, John P. Rich, 3206 North Capitol avenue, made a hurried trip last night to Chicago, with the muzzles of two 45-caliber automatic pistols pressed against his back.

Mr. Rich just had driven his car in front of his office at the John W. Rich & Company plumbing company, 1524 North Illinois street, shortly before 6 and was preparing to enter the building. The two men accosted him, he said, and under their orders, he drove north on Capitol avenue, past his own home and that of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Rich, 3204 North Capitol avenue, to Road 31.

"Don't talk; just drive this car at sixty miles an hour; that's your job," the bandits told him. When they reached Nora, they told him they wanted to go to Chicago. Mr. Rich said he explained they were on the wrong road and the men told him to cut through to the right one.

"I told them they could have the car or anything else I had, and that I would take them wherever they wanted to go, if they would just see that those guns didn't go off," Mr. Rich said this morning, recounting his experiences. "We bought gas at two stations; they selected them, and were careful to choose stations which were poorly lighted, with pumps in front of stores."

"They talked very little, and only between themselves. I couldn't hear what they said. They showed a little nervousness when we passed other cars, and also when we went through Lafayette, but other than that, seemed to feel safe."

The car bearing Mr. Rich and the two gunmen arrived in Chicago about 10:30, he said.

"We drove over a bridge, and they told me to cut my speed down to twenty miles an hour," he said. "There was a barbecue stand, and no other buildings close. On the other side of the street was a 1932 model Buick sedan, without license plates. Its motor was running, and two other men were in it."

"The two men in my car got out, cursed me and told me to drive on the way I was headed, and to keep still. They had a heavy suitcase with them; so heavy that they could hardly carry it across the street to the waiting car. I think it must have had other guns in it."

Mr. Rich drove to one of the Chicago police stations where he telephoned his family, advising them of his experiences. Chicago police immediately sent out radio warnings concerning the car which had picked up Mr. Rich's passengers. Examination of the handles of the doors in the back seat was made, but there were no finger prints, and Mr. Rich was unable to identify from police photographs the men who had kidnapped him.

He returned to Indianapolis last night.

SPEAKER OPENS RETAILERS' WAR ON SALES TAX

Hardware Group Urged to Support Candidates Backing Repeat.

Active efforts to elect legislators committed to repeat of the state sales tax will be made by Indiana retailers, L. F. Shuttleworth, Associated Retailers of Indiana executive secretary, today told the convention of the Indiana Retail Hardware Association.

The present 1 per cent tax merely was an entering wedge, he said, charging that sponsors of the law are planning to get the percentage increased.

A survey revealed that in a majority of cases, the merchants' tax load has increased from 100 to 300 per cent in the last year, because of inability to add the tax to the selling price.

As a secondary objective, Mr. Shuttleworth said, the association will seek a means of empowering the taxpaying public to regulate the tax budget. This might be done, he said, by creating a nonpartisan commission in each tax unit, free from political influence, and elected on ballots entirely separate from any partisan ticket. This commission would have complete control of budget making.

"It seems to us an unsound, unfair practice to allow tax spenders to determine the amount they are to spend and be clothed with authority to sell your property and mine to collect levies to pay the bills, size of which they determine themselves," he said.

Other speakers on today's program include Clarence A. Jackson, gross income tax division director, and Ralph W. Carney.

The annual banquet and entertainment will be held tonight in the Lincoln.
