'—LEAD BUT TO THE GRAVE'

Europe's Statesmen Busy Sowing Cannon Fodder

Italy's youth... marching... into the cannon's mouth.

BY MILTON BRONNER,

NEA Service Staff Writer

LONDON, Feb. 17.—"You mother-fill the cradles and the statesmen will see about filling the graves."

Of course Mussolini in Italy, Hitler in Germany and politicians in France do not put it as crudely and brutally as that, but, just the same, in the back of their minds there is the thought that their respective nations must see to it that they have plenty of human cannon fodder—in case that often-predicted war occurs some ten or fifteen years hence.

The cradle has, therefore, almost become a holy symbol in the heart of Europe.

French fears about the birth rate are easily understandable, because it has been declining for years. In fact, it has gone down hill pretty much since the days of Napoleon. When that war god started crashing across Europe, France was the most populous of all European nations save Russia. The bones of its fine young men strewed the battlefields all over the map, but, just the same, France was left crippled and has never caught up.

But elsewhere in Europe there would not seem—at least at present—any cause for such alarm. Germany is literally swarming with strong young men. About one million of them are enrolled in the various semi-military Nazi organizations. Another half million are in labor camps. The universities and higher schools are full of them. Italy presents the same picture. They are in the Fascist militia. They are in industry. They are on the farms. Russia, despite the vast losses in man power is sustained in the World war and the famine that swept some regions, has her large quota of youngsters capable of bearing arms. Yugoslavia shows no decline in the birth-rate nor does Hungary. In Asia, Japan the past year showed an excess of a million births over deaths. In Europe alone there are probably 10,000,000 who could be classed as young, who are capable of bearing arms.

The four power pact, signed by Italy, France, Germany and England under Mussolini's impulsion, tried to make peace secure for ten years. But the men, who are looking ahead, are wondering what will come after that ten-year period has expired. What will happen in fifteen or twenty years? That is where the cradles come in. Unless they are filled now, there will be no mighty armies then.

UNEMPLOYMENT, uncertainty of jobs where people are employed, high cost of living, general financial and moral depression have all had their effect in lowering birth rates. In 1930 the rate for England was 16.3 per 1000 of population; in Germany and France, 18; Italy, 26; Belgium, 18.7; Sweden, 15.4; Hungary, 25.4.

France is the most worried of the lot. Her army is largely made up of conscripts. Every year the young men are called to the colors. At one time, before the World war, their term of service was three years. Then it was cut to two. And now it is only one year. The army leaders are worrying about the gap that is going to occur about 1935. During the war, there was a tremendous falling off of births. That will make itself especially manifest in 1935 and 1936. Instead of the 200,000 conscripts found fit for service, these years promise to produce only 100,000. France feels it can not reduce its army by such numbers. So some juggling will be done by which men will be called up earlier and some will be retained later. The rest of the gap will be filled by soldiers from North Africa.

At the same time, with an eye to war possibilities, fifteen or twenty years hence, a big propaganda in favor of larger families is being launched. A graduated scale of bonuses, all the way from $7.50 to $30 a year is being granted by the state to families of more than two children. Many French municipalities are giving help to mothers during the first month after the birth of a child.

BUT the most resounding campaign for babies, just babies, more babies, is being waged by Mussolini in Italy. Under the eleven years of his regime, the population of Italy has grown by 3,799,000, reaching the total figure of 42,554,000. It is thus the most populous country on the continent, outside of Russia and Germany. But Mussolini is frightened by the birth rate. In 1927 the Italian rate was 39 per 1,000 people. Then it began steadily to drop—32.4 in 1930; 26.9 in 1932; 24.9 in 1933; 23.8 in 1932. In other words, if the fall continues, the rate will soon be as low as that of France. In twenty years there will be no excess of births over deaths. Population will be at a standstill.

So all the recent Italian laws have been rigged up to favor the parents of large families. Inheritance taxes are levied when there are no children or only one child. Where there are two or more children, there is practically no tax. Income and other taxes are lessened, according to the number of children the breadwinner has. To have ten living children is to pay no taxes. Illegitimate children are upon the same footing as legitimate. People with large families are given preference over those with small or none, when it comes to getting homes at low rentals. Likewise advancement in all work for the state goes by preference to those with large families, where the man equals in merit and ability his other competitors. Bachelors, from the ages of 25 to 65, pay special taxes. Thus not only moral and patriotic pressure is brought upon people to have large families, but also very potent financial pressure.

A DOLF HITLER, chancellor of Germany, copying for his Nazi movement most of the things invented by Mussolini for his Fascists, has likewise begun a big campaign for more babies. It is claimed that up to the age of 12, there are about six million fewer Germans than there were in 1914. One of the most popular stunts invented by the Nazis has been for the state to make a loan up to $350 to young couples getting married. They must both have been doing some work for eighteen months prior to their wedding and the young wife must stop working so long as her husband gets a certain minimum wage. The aim is thus to provide places for unemployed men and give them a chance to think about marriage.

The loan made by the state is not paid in cash, but in vouchers, good for furniture, bed linen, and other household goods, so that the newly-weds can start housekeeping at once. They are obligated to repay the loan in small installments. But for the birth of each living child, $100 is struck off the sum owed and further payments are suspended for a year after the birth of each child. It is claimed that 100,000 couples have already secured this loan.

About half the brides had been working before, so their places were filled with unemployed men. In many cases, if a working girl married, and her husband has been unemployed, the employers give the vacant job to the young husband.

RESENTMENT OF HEALING POWER CAUSED HATRED

Work of Jesus for Lowly Aroused Resentment of Higher Classes.

Text—Matt. 8:1-9:34.

BY W. E. GILROY, D. D.

Editor of The Congregationalist

In this lesson Jesus appears in two distinctive phases of His personality and influence. We see Him in the presence of the sick and needy, ministering comfort and healing of body and soul; and we see Him also in the alluring power of His personality, drawing men to Him and into the inner circle of devotion and discipleship.

No man, however, no matter how fine his character or how beautiful his deeds, is free from the criticism of those whose religion moves in the realm of form and prejudice. In proportion as the religion of men is loveless, they are bitter against those who dare to speak of religion in terms of reality and love. Jesus, in healing the man sick of palsy, assured the unfortunate man of good cheer, because his sins were forgiven.

Bigotry Demonstrated

The idea that any man could forgive sins roused the conventionally religious to wrath. If Jesus had no power to forgive sins they might at least have let the matter pass without great ado, but that is not the way of the narrow and the bigoted.

To them a matter of that sort was much more important than the healing of a fellow mortal from a dread disease, and when Jesus manifested his power in the healing of a man it made no difference to them. Their hearts still were full of bigotry, and they hated and persecuted Jesus.

How different was the reaction of the multitude, many of whom, we doubt, made no great profession of religion! When they saw that the man was healed, they marveled, and they glorified God because he had given such power to heal.

Great Power Shown

Following this incident, we have recorded the call of Matthew, who, we are told, was sitting at the receipt of customs.

A teacher of religion, who could lure a man away from a government job to accept all the uncertainties and perils of allegiance to a prophet proclaiming what seemed to be a new sort of religious teaching, indeed must have been great.

The incident was all the more remarkable inasmuch as the friends of Matthew apparently were not those who were recognized as partially religious.

We do not know just where Jesus went when Matthew arose to follow him, but we have the description of his being entertained in a house where many who were not among the conventionally religious and who were described as publicans and sinners sat down.

The chances are that some of these had witnessed the miracle and had heard the words of Jesus and were drawn either by curiosity or by some inner response to a greatness they perceived in Jesus himself.

Blow to Pride

Such a sight was too much for the proud people who had faith in their own righteousness and who looked down upon those who were not as good as themselves.

They could not withhold their indignation, but asked the disciples why Jesus should eat in that way with publicans and sinners.

With what plain effective words Jesus answered them! "They that be whole need not a physician, but they that are sick."

The man whose goodness takes him away from his fellow men and leads him to distrust or despise others well may doubt the genuineness of his own goodness.

The greatest souls in history have been large and tolerant in their human contacts.

They have felt their kinship with the sinful and with the poor and the needy, and even at the height of their religious experience, when they have viewed the high standard of Christ and have cried with real sincerity, "God be merciful to me, a sinner."

ORDER NEW TRIAL IN DYNAMITE CASE

Hammond Theater Operator's Second Appeal Grante

The Indiana supreme court ordered a new trial yesterday in the case of William Kliehge, former Hammond theater operator, convicted with conspiracy in connection with the dynamiting of the State theater in Hammond in 1927.

Sentence to serve two to fourteen years in the Indiana state prison, Kliehge appealed his case to the supreme court twice. The decision yesterday, written by Judge David A. Myers, was on the second appeal which was filed in April, 1932.

In the dynamiting case, Kliehge was convicted principally on the testimony of Joseph Million, motion picture operator, who testified Kliehge gave him $2,000 to supervise dynamiting of the theater. Million testified that he gave $1,000 to other men to do the actual work in the dynamiting of the theater, then a new structure.

Father Weber Not to Aid Touhy in Kidnap Trial

Restrained by his bishop, Father Joseph F. Weber of the Church of the Assumption, will not be a defense witness. The Times learned, when the second trial of the Factor kidnaping case opens today in Chicago.

Father Weber verified the report that acting Bishop Elmer Joseph Ritter of the Indianapolis diocese has instructed him not to appear when Roger Touhy and two of his gangsters go on trial for the second time in Cook county criminal court for the kidnaping of John (Jake) Barber, wealthy speculator.

A rule that forbids him from leaving his home-diocese for such a purpose was invoked by Bishop Ritter, according to Father Weber.

The west Indianapolis priest said he unwittingly had transgressed this rule when he appeared at the first Touhy trial in Chicago, which ended with a hung jury.

Also a defense witness at the first Touhy trial was Michael (Mickey) Hanrahan, Indianapolis politician, who could not be reached today to learn if he will be a defense witness at the second trial.

The first indoor bathing pool and shower in the United States was installed in Philadelphia in 1880.

'Alice in Wonderland' to Be Essay Contest Topic

SCHOOL children of Indianapolis will be able to find money and other delights back of the wonderful mirror in "Alice in Wonderland."

The National Council of Teachers of English has prepared a study-guide of Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland," which has been made into a movie by Paramount.

To increase interest in Carroll's masterpiece, The Indianapolis Times announces an essay contest open to every boy and girl in Indianapolis who now is going to school.

"Alice in Wonderland" opens at the Apollo today. A total of $75 in cash, ten copies of the special movie edition of "Alice in Wonderland" and "Through the Looking Glass," and Charlotte Henry's (the Alice of the movie) own book which she kept during the making of the picture and which contains the actual photographs of W. C. Fields, Cary Cooper, Richard Arlan, Alison Skipworth, Fredric March, Claudette Colbert, Charlie Ruggles, Mae West, Jack Oakie, Bing Crosby, Dorothea Weick and many others.

ALL that the school boy and girl has to do is to write an essay, based either upon "Alice in Wonderland" (combined with "Through the Looking Glass"), or the movie. The essay is not to exceed 250 words. You do not have to see the movie to enter the contest. Just read the book.

Three leading citizens of Indianapolis will be named as judges. The decision of the judges is to be final. No one employed by the Indianapolis Times, the Apollo theater, the Paramount exchange or a member of the families of the judges will be eligible.

Neatness will be considered by the judges after the subject matter is considered; also age will be considered so children in the grades will have an equal opportunity with those in high school.

THE name of the child, age, school and grade must be plainly written on each entry. Children will be placed on their honor to receive no aid in writing their essays.

For the ten best essays in the final opinion of the judges, $5 each will be given. For the second ten best, each child will receive $2.50. For the third ten best, each child will receive a new photoplay edition of "Alice in Wonderland," autographed by Charlotte Henry.

There also will be an additional grand prize, the book containing the Hollywood autographs while Miss Henry was making the movie. This book will go to the child writing the best essay and of course will be one in the first ten best list. It will be on display in L. S. Ayres & Co. window, starting tomorrow.

Address all essays to the Alice in Wonderland Editor of The Indianapolis Times.

All essays must reach The Times not later than midnight Saturday, Feb. 24.
