

HELEN KELLER INSTRUCTS HER FIRST TEACHER

Famed Blind Writer Gives Braille Lessons to Old Friend.

The United Press sent a correspondent into the Scotch mountains in search of Helen Keller, who in its cottage is teaching the Braille system of reading to Mrs. Anne Sullivan Macy, her famous teacher. Mrs. Macy is threatened with blindness.

URRAY, Scotland, March 20.—Isolated in the wilds of a great mountain deer forest, blind Helen Keller is teaching the Braille method to Mrs. Anne Sullivan Macy, who took charge of Miss Keller in girlhood and taught the blind, deaf and mute girl how to read and speak. Mrs. Macy is threatened with complete blindness. But the patient instruction given by Miss Keller has given her eyes such complete rest that there is hope her sight may be saved.

Miss Keller's little farm seemed the most inaccessible spot in all rugged Caledonia. Her only neighbors in 100 square miles are the families of six deer stalkers.

Maintain's Large Correspondence
The lights of Miss Keller's farmhouse gleamed a welcome as the correspondent trudged over the moorland, where red deer were gathering in hundreds, terrified by the fury of the gale.

Two shaggy collies barked. Inside were Miss Keller, Mrs. Macy and a third inseparable companion, Mrs. Polly Thomson. They gave the correspondent a real highland welcome as they ushered him into the kitchen, where a fire roared in the hearth.

Mrs. Thomson told me that Miss Keller herself fed the chickens and cattle, holding out to them unseeing carrots and turnips.

The farmhouse has five rooms. Miss Keller's time is fully occupied with housekeeping and writing. She maintains a large correspondence.

Spends Busy Days
She wrote a statement of her life with Mrs. Macy.

"It is true," the statement said, "my teacher is now practically blind. I read to her every day and make notes for her in Braille. She knew Braille when she was at school. When she taught me she wrote out many letters, punching them on Braille tablets.

"But since then dot writing has undergone changes. About half the letters are different. It was not difficult to teach Mrs. Macy the new letters and we have fun when she makes mistakes, using the old letters. She never will read Braille rapidly. She never did. But it passes the time for her to puzzle out words while she waits in the dark for the day to dawn and the snows to go away into the distance.

Miss Keller rises at 7 a. m., and has a breakfast of porridge before she starts a day's work that would tax the energies of many people.

VIRGINIA PINE HOME TO OBTAIN DIVORCE

Society Movie Aspirant Arrives With George Raft.

By United Press
CHICAGO, March 20.—Mrs. Virginia Peine Lehmann—Virginia Pine of motion pictures—and George Raft, actor, were here together today to get a divorce for Mrs. Lehmann from Edward Lehmann Jr., wealthy Chicago society man.

Although Raft also is married—he separated from his wife ten years ago—he said:

"I'd marry Miss Pine the day she walks out of that court a free woman. But that's for Virginia to say."

Mrs. Lehmann said:

"George is sweet. But I don't feel that I want to get out of one thing just to go into another. I'd like a year in Hollywood and a chance at the movies first."

Mrs. Lehmann's divorce suit will be heard today or tomorrow.

MRS. KEMP WILL NOT ENTER POLITICS AGAIN

Too Well Versed in Tactics, Says Congressman's Widow.

By United Press
AMITE, La., March 20.—With a statement she was "too well versed in the devious ways of politicians to wish again to become embroiled in factional strife," Mrs. Boliver E. Kemp, widow of the late Congressman Kemp from Louisiana, has announced she would not again enter the fight for his seat.

Originally backed by the regular

Democratic forces of United States Senator Huey P. Long, Mrs. Kemp was elected on Dec. 5, but a great howl went up from an opposing faction led by state Senator J. Y. Sanders Jr., charging she was a "hand-picked candidate." In a rump election, Mr. Sanders later was named to the post.

Both elections, however, were thrown out by congress and a new one is scheduled.
