KERN PLEDGES TO KEEP RULE OF CITY CLEAN

Mayoral Candidate Will Open Campaign in Few Days.

Superior Judge John W. Kern, Democratic candidate for mayor, in his third campaign speech, delivered last night, pledged himself, if elected, to exert every effort to make Indianapolis as clean a city as it has been under administration of Mayor Reginald H. Sullivan.

He spoke before 400 members of the Riverside Democratic Club at Pruitt street and Riverside drive.

Judge Kern, who is expected to open this campaign formally, in the next few days, explained that he would have been a candidate for re-election to the bench, had party leaders not urged him to enter the mayoralty primary in the interests of harmony. He declared that he was not prepared to detail his prospective policies last night.

Other candidates who spoke, together with the offices they are seeking, are Judge Joseph R. Williams, superior court two; Herbert E. Wilson and Chalmers Schlosser, for judge of superior court five; Bruce Short and Frank McKinney, for county treasurer; Ernest K. Marker, for county commissioner, Second district; Herbert M. Spencer and Russell J. Dean, for prosecuting attorney, and C. E. Shover, for sheriff.

John McNelis spoke on behalf of James Cunningham, who is a candidate for assessor of Center township, and J. V. Stewart, president of the Ray-for-Sheriff Club, spoke for the candidacy of Captain Otto Ray for the Washington street line.

Service on the line will be bettered with cars operating every two or three minutes during rush hours and every seven minutes during the day and nine minutes at night.

The cars are to carry numbers of forty-five and forty-four with forty-five for the Broad Ripple line and forty-four for the Forty-sixth and College terminus.

The installation is part of the company's $2,850,000 improvement program for 1934. Trackless trolleys are soon to be put in operation on thirteen other car lines with new trams scheduled for the Central Avenue line to start service in July, Mr. Chase said.
