

Family Day Observance Announced

Country Club Program on May 30 Will Keep Custom.

BY BEATRICE BURGAN
Times Woman's Page Editor

DECORATION day is family day for Indianapolis Country Club members. From early morning golfing to "wee small hour dancing" a varied program will entertain every member of the family.

Men golfers will tee off in the club's Decoration day tournament for the Mayer trophy. Since 1906 club members have been competing for the cup donated by Ferdinand L. Mayer and Charles Mayer. F. X. Mettenet came through with honors last year and has his name engraved on the cup with earlier winners. Fred R. Hobbs is in charge of golf preparations.

For men and women who prefer the comfort of the veranda, Mrs. Roy Elder Adams is arranging bridge games. Don Hawkins, who wins many of the club tennis prizes, is planning tennis matches. Henry T. Davis oversees the sport programs as sports and pastime committee chairman.

Herbert King is chairman of the swimming committee, whose members hesitate in scheduling the pool's official opening on Decoration day, because of the uncertainty of weather conditions. There will be swimming for those who are undaunted by inopportune cool spells.

Outdoor Dancing Set

The house committee is crossing its fingers in anticipation of fair weather for arrangements have been made for an outdoor dance floor. Dinner, weather permitting again, will be served on the lawn, beneath colorful Japanese lanterns.

For those who are squeamish about dining with insect menaces, the committee promises to burn incense to shoo away the flies.

Many varieties of flowers gathered from the club's gardens will be arranged in bowls as centerpieces for the dining tables.

Committees Listed

Earl Barnes is chairman of the house committee, and his co-workers are Dr. E. D. Clark, William H. Durkin, and Elmer H. Landers. Dinner service will begin at 6:30, and dancing will be from 9:30 to 2. Larry Price's twelve-piece orchestra will provide the music.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert C. Fiel are chairman of the general entertainment committee, which is composed of Messrs. and Mesdames C. O. Aig, Joseph J. Daniels, C. A. Harms, Sylvester Johnson Jr., Norman Keever, H. C. Krannert, Irving W. Lemaux, William E. Munk, A. L. Piel, Russell J. Ryan, William H. Wenner, J. S. White, Romney Wilson and Burrell Wright.

DELTA THETA TAU GROUP TO INITIATE

Epsilon Pi chapter of Delta Theta Tau sorority will hold formal initiation services tomorrow night at the Indianapolis Athletic Club. Miss Nellie Passons is chairman, and will be assisted by Mrs. H. M. Anderson and Miss Ruby Windhorst, pledge supervisor. Miss Gladys Hoffman, president, will preside at the banquet preceding the services. Responses will be given by Mrs. Maurice Johnston, initiate, and Miss Windhorst. Miss Helen Pease and Mary Elizabeth Cunningham, initiate, will present the chapter a gift from the pledges, who will be presented bracelets with the sorority crest. New officers will be installed. They are Miss Pease, president; Miss Passons, vice-president; Miss Windhorst, treasurer; Miss Hoffman, recording secretary; Mrs. E. O. Alloway, corresponding secretary; Miss Dorothy Addington, sergeant-at-arms, and Mrs. H. M. Anderson, historian.

Style Points Combined

Two fashion points—the vogue for white and the popularity of the new silks—are combined in this classic summer sports frock of foulard, printed with tones of brown and orange on a fresh white background. The tawny colors are perfect with sun tanned skins.

Both skirt and bodice have pleats in front and back, giving plenty of freedom for arms and legs whether you're swinging a golf club or taking your small dog for a walk in the country.

Club Women of Nation Turn to Social Welfare

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., May 22.—Fifteen hundred members of the General Federation of Women's Clubs of America embarked today upon an hitherto avoided program designed to place them among the nation's leaders in political and social affairs. Formerly the federation concerned itself strictly to cultural subjects, but this year's meeting has been dedicated to discussion of many diverse subjects embracing almost the whole range of public and semi-public problems.

The federation was welcomed last night by Governor J. Marion Futrell. Mrs. Grace Robinson Poole, national president, will deliver an address at 11 tomorrow which will be broadcast nationally.

Five important resolutions are to be presented to the meeting today, after routine matters have been cleared away. They include:

Proposal to endorse the general principles of the Copeland Federal Food and Drugs Act.

Recommendation to state federations that member clubs study old age pension proposals submitted to the legislatures.

Opposition to the return of the saloon; approval of temperance instruction in public schools.

Approval of crime survey looking toward prevention and correction. Preparation of a study of the proposed equal rights amendment for women.

Southern leaders were prepared to ask endorsement of a movement to bring southern salaries on a parity with the east and middle-west.

A Woman's Viewpoint

BY MRS. WALTER FERGUSON

HAVE you ever considered that, although women are more numerous than ever before in the business and professional world, the abyss which separates the sexes is growing all the time? This is especially true in the United States.

Our contacts with each other are almost wholly social. They take the form of dining, dancing and bridge, or some such pastime in which there is no opportunity for men and women to reach mental understanding.

Married couples, by and large, lead very different sort of lives. They may be physically united, but spiritually many of them are oceans apart. The business man is seldom conscious of any woman's being an individual, since his horizon is bounded by the circumference of the dollar. He assumes his wife must be happy if she has a car and plenty of parties to go to. It would strike him as extremely odd if he were asked what exactly goes on in the mind of the woman who sits opposite him at dinner, or if he were told she found a life which gave her only "things" faintly satisfying.

The stenographer likewise is regarded by the average boss as so much valuable furniture. She does not signify life, but efficiency. He may at times be sexually conscious of her, but that's another matter entirely.

The wide mental breach which now exists between them is a dangerous hindrance to the happiness of men and women. It is too deep to be laughed off. In order to prove there is nothing in the idea, regard the attitude of the average American man toward that group of males, artists, writers, lecturers, etc., who live by means of the interest they can arouse in feminine groups.

You will have noted, they generally are derided and scorned openly by our gentlemen who are occupied with the trades. The vast male business world is an alien place to them. They are shut out from that holy of holies—the office.

But without that group of men and their disciples, what kind of a world would we have? Just a vast hollow structure empty of anything real, devoted solely to the getting and spending of money. A dire thought, dreadful in its possibilities.

MOTHERS CLUB TO TERMINATE SEASON

Mother's Club of the Woodside kindergarten will hold its last meeting of the season at 2 Thursday in the kindergarten.

Miss Grace L. Brown, superintendent of the Indianapolis Free Kindergarten Society, will talk on "The Habit of Happiness." Hostesses will be Mesdames Alfred Evans, Paul Anderson and Tony Cirriello.

Girls I Pick for Beauty

PERFECT EYES—Ruth Hilliard, (left), "Vanities" beauty, whose eyes were adjudged the most beautiful among all the girls in Earl Carroll's "Vanities." Makeup aids of course—and she reveals her beauty secrets in today's article.

TOBY WING (right), lovely blonde cinema actress, appearing in Paramount's production of Earl Carroll's "Murder at the Vanities." She asked Ruth Hilliard for her makeup secrets—and then used them to perfection. The "eyes" have "it."

World famous authority on feminine beauty, who brings his "Vanities" to the screen for the first time in Paramount's "Murder at the Vanities," coming to the Circle theater for nine days starting tomorrow.

CHAPTER II

WHILE all of the girls selected for the "Vanities" are beautiful, some have particular outstanding qualities that enable them to stand out in an individual way.

The girl must be beautiful to get the job, but also there may be some particular feature about her that is instantly attractive.

I believe that eyes dominate any face. A girl with an ordinary face may become beautiful when her eyes are alight.

Among the various girls in my show, I believe that Ruth Hilliard has the most beautiful eyes. She has told me that through experimentation, she has learned how to bring out the beauty of her large, hazel eyes, through clever makeup tricks.

She noticed that often her eyes did not look large, and sometimes they had a washed-out appearance. She experimented with cosmetics for three months and then hit upon the ideal combination.

BLUE mascara is used for her eyelashes, a blue eye shadow is used on the lids, with a touch of cream for the "dewy" effect. The brows are elongated and arched with a blue-black pencil. With this pencil, Miss Hilliard also darkens the outer corners of her eyes.

Other girls in the "Vanities" have used this method to good effect. And while we were in Hollywood to appear in Paramount's filmization of my "Murder at the Vanities" Miss Hilliard taught her tricks to Toby Wing, whose eyes are blue, and who used the method with startling results.

Hair often has been called a woman's "crowning glory" and it serves as such for Beryl Wallace, one of the loveliest and most talented girls in our group.

Beryl always has had beautiful hair, and it never has given her any trouble to speak of until she came to Hollywood for the picture. Here she found that her lovely black hair became dull and lank in the dry climate of California.

After consulting Kitty Carlisle, Gertrude Michael and other actresses at Paramount, she evolved her own recipe for bringing beauty back to her hair.

TWO shampoos instead of one were taken weekly. Before each shampoo, Miss Wallace gave herself a hot oil treatment, permitting the oil to remain on her hair overnight. She dried her hair in the sun, brushing it briskly during the drying.

Each night she brushed her hair 100 strokes, and every morning sprayed it with a mild hair oil that defeated that brittle, dry condition.

Fashion Preferences of College Girls Revealed at Unique Show in West

Youthful, Yet Sophisticated Air, Desired by Co-Eds; Linen Most Popular of Fashions; Taffeta Liked, Too.

BY HELEN LINDSAY

FROTHY, frilly dresses; knitted play suits, and sport costumes which youthful and yet, sophisticated were the choice of fifty college girls for a unique style show held recently in the Biltmore bowl of the Biltmore in Los Angeles. The show was given at the annual fashion tea for the University Religious Conference, in which about 15,000 students from thirteen different religious denominations participated.

Popular girls from the University of Southern California, University of California at Los Angeles and Los Angeles Junior college were selected to act as mannequins, ushers and hostesses. About 900 guests were present, including social leaders of Los Angeles. The costumes showed, since they were chosen by a group of college girls, several kinds of clothing the co-eds like to wear.

Contrast and drama were added to the display by costumes from the Revolutionary war period, the Civil war period and the Gay Nineties. From each of these periods, examples of sports costumes, dinner dresses, evening dresses and wedding gowns were chosen, in contrast to youthful attire of the present.

In bathing suits as selected by these girls, there was evidence that the ideal swimming suit must be gay and young. One shown was a yellow baby pant suit in hand knitting, with halter neck of brown rope. A costume which was selected for active sports wear was in an Indian design of black, white and green on red. It was composed of straight shorts and a swagger coat of fingertip length. A red knitted halter was worn with a turtle neck top and ribbed waistline.

Linen Popularity Demonstrated

ONE of the popular fabrics, according to this showing, will be linen. One dress of linen was in pink, worn with a fitted jacket of navy linen, with a navy trim around the neck, the edge of which was embroidered in pink eyelets.

Another linen costume was in sailor style in front, with V and tie in back. Stars were shown in a dress for either formal or informal wear. Printed dimity was noticed in the short sleeves.

Printed dimity was noticed in the short sleeves. Another was red and white pinstriped batiste, trimmed with crisp ruffles, which were edged in red rickrack. An orange and brown seersucker had a jacket of orange organdy, with Buster Brown collar.

Taffeta Among Favored Fabrics

NEXT to cottons in importance to these college girls was taffeta. It was seen in prints and plain designs, with dropped shoulders and bustle-effect skirts.

The show was completed with a wedding scene, with Evelyn Venable, Paramount star, appearing as a bride, in cream taffeta, with a very long train trimmed with lace, net and a net and lace veil. Miss Venable was accompanied by bridesmaids dressed in turquoise and yellow taffeta, with hats to match. The maid of honor was dressed in pink lace and organdy combination, with lotus blue girdle.

One of the features of the tea was a showing of fur coat styles. Opening with a model wearing a quaint black seal jacket of the nineties, the furs were in a variety of styles to suit young wearers.

One sports coat was of burunduki, with standing collar and forward-extended lapels. The belt was of red leather.

Other coats were in black caracul and white galrak. An evening wrap was of natural red fox strips, made with gold taffeta bands.
