

G. O. P. SLATE EASY WINNER IN CONVENTION

Ballots Taken in Only Three Races; Senator Robinson
Triumphs Again.

and Herbert V. Tormohlen, Portland, in the auditor race, and Dave Scott, Linton, scored a 2,322 to 348 victory over Charles Lanz, Bedford, for treasurer.

The auditor race provided one of the few laughs of the convention. Former Appellate Judge Noel Neal, then temporary chairman, announced that "Tarpaulin" had so many votes. The convention roared as Neal grinned embarrassedly and kept struggling with "Tormohlen."

Leslie, Dennis Withdraw

Candidates, unopposed and declared nominated, were Joseph Kyle, Gary, Lieutenant-Governor; Ben F. Watt, Noblesville, state superintendent of public instruction; Elmer Sherwood, clerk of the supreme and appellate courts; David A. Myers, Greensburg, supreme court judge; Dan C. Flanagan, Ft. Wayne; Oliver Starr, Gary; Alfred Evans, Bloomington, and Arch N. Bobbitt, English, appellate court judges.

The most amusing scene of the convention was enacted when Senator Robinson accepted his renomination by acclamation. It became obvious that the Robinson strength was too much to combat, so former Governor Harry G. Leslie and William C. Dennis, Earlham college president, did not place their names in nomination.

Bruce Cooper, Stewartsville, former state senator and chairman of the convention committee on rules and permanent organization, put Robinson's name in nomination.

Robinson Praised Irwin

The senator spoke briefly, expressing his gratitude and dwelling for a moment on "his nine years' devotion to the Republican party, the people of Indiana and the people of the United States."

The laugh came at the end of his talk when he grasped State Chairman Don Irwin by the hand, looped an arm over one shoulder and pulled Irwin to the fore.

It was a very touching scene and reminded the spectators of Robinson's recent attempt to unseat Irwin, and accompanying incoherent charges about a tieup between the Republican state committee and the "McNutt-Greenlee-McHale Democratic ring."

The convention applauded as the senator said he intended to co-operate with the state committee and the state chairman.

McNutt Is Attacked

Nomination of the senator and the state ticket followed a vigorous attack on the administration of Governor Paul V. McNutt by Major Norman A. Tamm, Culver, keynoter and permanent chairman, and reading of the platform by F. Harold Van Orman, chairman of the resolutions committee.

The ovation accorded Senator Robinson, while hearty, was not as whole-hearted as might be expected by a United States senator.

His entry to the convention stage at 10:15 was greeted with proper enthusiasm, but the applause noticeably came from the stage than from the delegates as a whole.

The enthusiasm for the senior senator flared anew when Van Orman read an "after thought" plank in the party platform, which commended the efforts of Robinson in the senate and his devotion to the cause of the "veterans of all wars."

Misses Big Chance

WASHINGTON, June 6.—One can't have everything. This ancient adage was applied in the case of Senator Arthur R. Robinson today. While he was being given the renomination and an ovation by the Indiana G. O. P., he was missing one of his big moments at Washington.

For the British defaulted the war debts and had been here, the Hoosier Republican senator could have "sounded off" on this, one of his pet subjects.

As it was, the matter had to be left to others on both sides of the aisle.

Katharine Cornell Ends Performance in 'Candida'

—BY WALTER D. HICKMAN

LAST night in Springfield, Mass., Katharine Cornell appeared in "Candida" for the last time this season.

Along with "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," she carried "Candida" on a 17,000-mile tour. For part of the time "Romeo and Juliet" was in her repertoire.

She "shelved" the Shakespearean play in Cincinnati following her engagement here at English's. She gave three performances here of "The Barretts."

To standing room only at each performance.

Although she could have sold out again for this play on the final night of her engagement here, she elected to remain true to her idea of repertory and she played "Candida" to a far from capacity house.

In the remaining cities of her present tour, Worcester, Boston, Newark and Brooklyn, she will appear in "Barretts."

She would have appeared here in "Romeo and Juliet," but it was a physical impossibility to remove "Barretts" from the stage in time to erect her elaborate "Romeo" sets.

New York has not yet seen her Juliet, which will be one of her chief roles when she opens her New York season in October.

NAZI 'POWER' IN U. S. QUIZZED

Saber-Scarred Leader of German Group Before
House Probers.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—The activities of the "Friends of Germany" came under the scrutiny today of the house Nazi investigating committee.

Fritz Gissibl, 31, bronzed and his face slashed by saber scars, was the first witness under call. He was characterized by Counsel Tom Hardwick as "the real power" behind the Nazi activities in this country.

Gissibl was called for questioning after other witnesses told of propaganda activities which they asserted were furthered by German diplomatic representatives in this country.

The group was made up largely of followers of Hitler. This was replaced later with a "National Socialist Labor Party" which in turn was disbanded in the spring of last year in favor of the "Friends of New Germany."

The friends, testified Gissibl, jumped from 400 members to 4,000 in less than a year and now number 5,000.

The committee questioned Gissibl seeking to learn what connection if any was maintained between the Nazi movement in Germany and the "Friends" organization here.
