JUDGE-ADVOCATE OFFICIAL FACES MILITARY PROBE

Details of Secret Meeting Demanded in House Army Quiz.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Another effort to learn the details of a mysterious meeting at the home of Colonel Joseph I. McMullin, war department legal officer, was expected to be made today by special house committee investigators.

Colonel McMullin, a veteran of the judge-advocate's division, is under questioning before the Rogers military affairs subcommittee concerning legal activities in behalf of various corporations.

When asked about the meeting at his home, Colonel McMullin refused to answer, saying "it might tend to incriminate me."

He charged that Representative Frank James (Rep., Mich.), who brought up the subject was "out to get me."

Chairman William N. Rogers (Dem., N. H.), warned the witness that the committee had power to demand that he answer the question and another effort to obtain the information was expected today.

Committeemen explained that they wished to question Colonel McMullin concerning reports that the meeting was attended by a former high American Legion official and other persons to discuss the disposal of surplus army goods.

This subject was under lengthy examination this spring by a District of Columbia grand jury but no indictments were returned.

The Rogers committee, the same group which returned a blistering report demanding the resignation of Major General Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of the army air corps, brought out that Colonel McMullin had received fees of several thousand dollars from various interests, including the Cuban American Manganese Company and the Atwater Kent Company.

With indications of a government upheaval in Japan, the next premier is likely to be General Issel Ugaki, shown above in a new picture. He now is governor-general of Korea and is strongly supported by the liberal factions, who would consider his elevation a great victory over the militarist cliques.
