ARMY PAIR SET FOR TRIP INTO STRATOSPHERE

U. S. Balloonists Will Be Sixteenth to Try Hop: Five Killed.

(Copyright, 1934, by Science Service)
RAPID CITY, S. D., July 2.—When Captain A. W. Stevens and Major W. E. Kepner take off in the giant stratosphere balloon of the joint National Geographic Society and U. S. army air corps from Moonlight valley from here, they will be the fifteenth and sixteenth persons to leave the ground to go up into the top of the sea of air at whose bottom mankind lives.

Stratosphere ascensions really are something new under the sun. It was only a little over three years ago, in May, 1931, that Professor Auguste Piccard and his companion, Charles Kipfer, made the first of the high-altitude flights which have brought science and the new field of stratosphere research.

Despite the fact that stratosphere ascensions have been linked with governmental agencies and scientists from their inception and every effort made to forestall possible danger, the perils and risks of venturing ten, twelve or fifteen miles into the upper atmosphere hardly makes the trip a joyride.

Beginning with Professor Piccard and Mr. Kipfer and ending with the take-off of the forthcoming flight, fourteen persons have gone into the stratosphere. All have come back, but only nine have come back alive.

U. S. Pioneer Killed

Prior to Professor Piccard's 1931 flight with its record of 52,000 feet, the altitude mark for free balloons was 35,424 feet. Captain Hawthorne Gray of the United States made two attempts in 1927 to break it. His first record of 42,470 feet was declared unofficial because he descended by parachute. On his second trial he was killed. These flights were made in an open balloon, not a closed gondola.

While Professor Piccard and Mr. Kipfer reached 52,000 feet in 1931, and Professor Piccard repeated the flight in 1932 with Max Gosvans as aid and gained an altitude of 54,166 feet.

Then came 1933—the stratosphere year. In April, Commander T. G. W. Settle, U. S. N., received permission to begin construction of a balloon bag containing 600,000 cubic feet volume—100,000 cubic feet more than the capacity of Piccard's bag.

At the same time Russian balloonists entered the stratosphere picture, to give the flights an international aspect, with plans to build a huge bag containing a volume of 800,000 cubic feet.

Fair Hop Is Failure

On Aug. 5, 1933, to the accompaniment of a World's fair celebration which lasted almost all night, Commander Settle took off solo but landed a few minutes later in the railroad yards of Chicago. The first "hop" had come into stratosphere flying.

Speeding construction and spurred by the preparations of Commander Settle, the Russian balloonists were ready on Sept. 25, 1933. This bag, the U. S. S. R., failed to get off the ground that day, but on Sept. 30 reached an altitude of 62,324 feet. Although a record for altitude, the flight was unrecognized because Russia was not a member of the international aeronautical body sanctioning such flights.

Then in October, news leaked out that Russia was planning still a larger balloon, the Sirius, with a volume of a million cubic feet. Before this new Soviet feat was complete, however, Commander Settle, accompanied by Major Charles L. Fordney, U. S. M. C., took off Nov. 20 and came down the next day in a New Jersey bog after reaching 61,243 feet for an official record.

Five Die in 1934 Crashes

Up to 1934 the "box score" for stratosphere flights stood at four successes and two failures. Success came twice to Professor Piccard, once to the Russian balloon U. S. S. R., and once to Commander Settle and Major Fordney.

The year 1934, however, saw the turning of stratosphere luck from good to bad. The Russian balloon Sirius was ready on Feb. 1 and sailed away over fog-enveloped Moscow. It came back with a record of 67,508 feet but in pieces and without its three occupants. The first fatalities had come to stratosphere ballooning.

Then, early in May, 1934, the German balloon Bartsch Von Sigsfeld, engaged in the prosaic task of taking air samples near the bottom of the stratosphere at 32,800 feet, crashed with fatal results to its aerial occupants.

When Captain Kepner and Major Stevens rise from Moonlight valley shortly, they will know the past record of stratosphere flights and the risks they take. Safety devices, including the giant parachute capable of gently lowering the entire gondola, will be only one safeguard of many which their balloon will have. Their 3,000,000 cubic feet bag (half as big as the U. S. S. Macon) is large enough for them to carry adequate ballast and small but vital necessities of balloon navigation which prior flights have not been able to take aloft. Three times as large as any free balloon ever built, their thirty-story bag will have a good chance to achieve a new altitude record and aid science in the process.

'INDIAN VILLAGE' GETS HEAP BAD WAMPUM

Employee Receives Five Phony Half Dollars in Half Hour.

Money as useless as "wampum" was passed at the Indian Village restaurant, 1654 Roosevelt avenue Saturday night.

Mary Gordon, 1530 Sturm avenue, waitress at the restaurant, which is operated by Don Demaree, 1520 Roosevelt avenue, reported to police that she had received five counterfeit half dollars in a half hour.

She was unable to identify the persons giving her the money.

YOUTH DIES IN 35-FOOT DIVE FROM BRIDGE

City Swimmer Leaps Into Four Feet of Water, Hurt Fatally.

William Cummings, 18, of 707 North Sheffield avenue, died early today in city hospital of injuries received when he dived into Eagle creek from the thirty-five-foot Vandallia railroad bridge yesterday. He struck his head on the bottom in four feet of water.

Young Cummings was an expert swimmer and diver, according to his sister, Mrs. Violet Bullock, 707 North Sheffield avenue. He had been diving from the bridge for four days prior to the accident, she said, and seemed proud of his accomplishment.

Yesterday afternoon, with Miss Pauline Giltner, 18, of 204 South Harris street, the youth again went to the Vandallia trestle. Three times he dived successfully into the shallow water.

"This is going to be my last dive. Then we'll go home," he told Miss Giltner as he poised for the fourth drop from the bridge.

Paralyzed from the shoulders to the feet, he was taken from the water and rushed to city hospital by Harold Barker, 1629 West Market street, and two other unidentified youths.

The body was taken to Shirley brothers' funeral parlor. Arrangements for burial have not been made yet.

The youth was born in Boone county but had lived most of his life in the city. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Eva Swails; his stepfather, Ernest Swails; four brothers, Elmer, Clavis, James and Glen; two sisters, Katherine and Mrs. Bullock; three stepbrothers, Forrest, Earl and William Swails; step-

Warning Signs
ANNOUNCED FOR UNSAFE POOLS

Red Cross Will Placard Unguarded Swimming Places Here.

Unguarded swimming places will be placarded with danger signs by the Indianapolis chapter of the American Red Cross in the hope of lowering the annual death toll from drowning in Indianapolis and vicinity.

Eight persons have died thus far this summer in Marion county, and it is feared that the intensely hot weather, which has led to increased swimming, may cause the approximate annual toll of a score to rise.

In connection with the drive to lower the drowning toll, the Red Cross will sponsor a series of free classes in life-saving at Indianapolis pools during the remainder of the summer. The classes will be in charge of James W. Clark, director of life-saving and swimming for the Red Cross.

Aiding the Red Cross drive against unguarded swimming places, Chief Mike Morrissey has ordered police to make a survey of "dangerous holes."

Places designed by police as "dangerous," and at which the Red Cross will place warning signs, are:

Fall creek at aqueduct, Monon bridge and at White river; Eagle creek at Vandallia bridge, Minnesota railroad and at West Washington; White river at Monon bridge, north of municipal gardens, Emmerichville bridge, Beauty avenue, Kingman bridge, West Henry street, Oliver avenue, Kentucky avenue, West Ray street, Morris street and the river bed east of South West street and Minnesota street gravel pit, Raymond street west of White river, and gravel pit south of Raymond street east of Eagle creek.
