

NRA Hours Don't Apply to Mothers

Children Require Care
Without Regard to New Deal.

BY GRETIA PALMER
Times Special Writer

NEW YORK, July 2.—There is one group of women that must greet all this talk of "What shall we do with our leisure?" with a wan if patient smile. For, no matter how much technological progress you boast or how many NRA codes you set up, you are not going to get mothers on to a forty-hour week.

Not mothers, that is, of children small enough to stand in constant danger of swallowing some alien and fatal object when your back is turned. Not mothers of infants who have to be fed and cared for on a schedule as exacting as a radio announcer's. Not mothers, above all, of creepers.

There is probably no more tireless or adventurous explorer in the world than the creeper. Everything is new to him, and everything must be tasted to be believed.

A solemn student of child psychology once followed a child at such an age and charted his activities throughout a twelve-hour day. A mere reading of the forms of physical activity which it involved will make the tennis-playing adult feel like a piker.

The old-fashioned mother doubtless had her worries over the protection of children in this first of all dangerous ages. But she did not have hanging over her the demands of the physician and the psychiatrist that every encounter with the child must follow certain carefully defined rules. Nor did she live in a mechanically complex city, where even a romp on the grass is apt to be paid for by a fine in court.

Mothers Always Tired

Well-to-do mothers have shamelessly admitted that they look toward the nurse's day out as a greivous and nerve-racking ordeal. Their husbands have complained that that on the evenings of such days even so mild a diversion as a game of backgammon is too much for their exhausted wives.

What, then, do the mothers of small children do with nobody to relieve them of their care for the six other days of the week?

The question is rhetorical. They get nervous and tired and irritable from their efforts to combine the housework with the care of one or more small and intensely negative "kisses." They get drawn faces and forget to take the proper care with their appearance, and they suffer from a perennial sense of fatigue.

Camp Offers Rest

Very little has been done by society to lighten the burden of the woman who has the twenty-four-hour-a-day job of motherhood. But a start—praise be!—has been made in this direction by the Westchester county recreation commission, which has established a tired mother's camp near Croton Point.

Mothers who are lucky enough to live in that county are permitted to go to the camp, with as many children under 6 years old as they may possess. These are promptly checked in the camp nursery, where attendants look after their formula feedings and all their other requirements. Mamma meanwhile leans back against a tree and has herself a time.

The camp charges just enough to pay expenses and is on county property. And we should like to see a replica of it in every county of the United States where babies continue to laugh out of court the idea of a maternal week of less than 112 exhausting hours.

MISS RATHER AND MINISTER TO WED

William F. Rathert, 633 Middle drive, Woodruff Place, announces the engagement of his daughter, Miss Eleanor Rathert, and the Rev. Reinhard Krause, Marion, Ill.

The marriage will take place July 15 in the Zion Evangelical church. Miss Rathert is a Butler university graduate and member of Kappa Delta sorority.

MISS MARY MANY WED AT CATHEDRAL

Mr. and Mrs. Peter James were attendants at the wedding this morning at St. Peter and Paul cathedral of Miss Mary Many, daughter of Mrs. Nellie Many, and Walter Brackman, son of Mrs. Bernadine Brackman.

The bride wore white and carried white roses and Mrs. James was gowned in yellow with yellow roses. A breakfast at the Many home followed the ceremony.

A Woman's Viewpoint

BY MRS. WALTER FERGUSON

WE advocate convenience and common sense in everything except our social customs. We smash the moralities, defy the deccencies and break civil laws without a quiver. But it takes a good-sized revolution to change a parlor convention.

Poor old Moses with his Ten Commandments is a back number now. Mrs. Emily Post is our prophet and she also must write her mandates on tablets of stone, so impossible are they to erase.

If it takes such drastic measures I wish somebody could induce her to set down a new rule, easy little rule which, if it were given official sanction, would lighten the burden of our days and bring cheer, joy, ease and freedom to millions of people. Here it is: No social or business calls ever should be made without previous telephone notice.

Even men, who understand the inconvenience of the unexpected visit during office hours, are sometimes guilty, but the chief offenders of what should amount to a breach of manners are women.

They just love to bestow these little surprises on their friends. So they show up at the most unexpected and inconvenient moments, right after you have finished putting up a crate of cherries or have decided not to vacuum the front room; when you're ready to step into your bath, or while you are in the middle of a cosy cat nap, or having a good cry or a quarrel with your husband.

Again, you all may have had a hard day and decided after dinner to be lazy and comfortable and play second cousin to the nudists. That, you may be sure, will be the very evening the Joneses decide to drop in.

There seems to me no good reason why we should continue to suffer these humiliations. Mrs. Post so easily could come riding to our rescue on the trusty telephone.

When men lived in castles they pulled up their drawbridges which spanned the surrounding moats. Now they live in apartments and contiguous cottages, their only protection from incessant contact with people is the belled gong, which may invade but can also, if we will it, preserve our privacy.

"My Mother Took It, Too"

Here's Strength for Rundown Women

"My mother used to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After I grew up she gave it to me. I have been doing housework for eleven years. I felt weak and tired at certain times. Your medicine gave me more strength and built me up when I was rundown."—Mrs. Mary Garant, 415 Adams St., N. E., Minneapolis, Minnesota.

If you are weak, nervous and rundown give this medicine a chance to help you. Your druggist sells it.

Rheumatics Praise Quick Pain Relief

Here is a safe and fast way to get relief from torturing pain without doing yourself with drastic drugs—because you can now get Nuroto, eminent specialist's prescription, at your drug store. Sufferers from the cruel pain of neuritis, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, and neuralgia report amazingly quick relief. It works so fast some claim Nuroto contains narcotics or opiates. But it does not, is guaranteed safe and harmless. If you want to feel again the joy of relief from pain and avoid needless suffering that prevents sound sleep at night, try Nuroto. Get a box from your druggist today. If the very first three powders do not relieve the most intense pain, your money will be refunded.—Advertisement.
