

ICKES, INTERIOR HEAD, IS STERN, IRRITABLE MAN

G. O. P. Cabinet Member One of Busiest Leaders in New Deal.

Harold L. Ickes, Illinois Republican, probably has more important jobs than any other New Dealer. Besides holding the portfolio as secretary of interior, he is public works and oil administrator. In addition he heads a half a dozen or more government corporations and is on another dozen or so boards. Here's how he has fared after a year on the New Deal.

BY FREDERICK C. OTHMAN United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 4.—A year of the New Deal has made of Harold L. Ickes a stern and irritable man. Harassed by attacks upon his gigantic public works program and worried by the widespread attempts to collect graft in connection with it, he has adopted a hard-boiled attitude, comparable to that of Hugh S. Johnson, his recovery twin.

Each month of his administration has given him a new title or a new job until now Mr. Ickes is the busiest and most important secretary of the interior this country ever has had.

He is interior secretary, public works administrator, oil administrator, ex-officio head of the Federal Emergency Housing Corporation, and an officer of the Virgin Islands company, the substance homestead projects, the federal surplus relief corporation and numerous other presidential commissions.

Besieged by Hundreds Congressmen after multimillion dollar allotments for their districts, politicians after jobs, builders after contracts and lobbyists seeking to exert influence have besieged him. Several of the latter he has made persona non-grata.

Time and time again he has exploded over the self-seeking of the men trying to do business with him. Two Chicago attorneys he accused of attempting to blackmail him. Instead of trying to hush the affair, he went to Chicago to testify against them.

At the moment he is incensed over the "kick-back" racket discovered on PWA projects from one coast to the other. He has written congressional committee to tell how contractors forced their workers to pay for their jobs. He has vowed that the racket will stop.

His oil administration also has become a sore point with Mr. Ickes. Blocked by injunctions and other maneuvers at almost every point, he has been unable to stabilize the petroleum industry as he had hoped. All this buffeting has had its effect upon the 60-year-old secretary. At the interior department, some of his subordinates refer to him as "Cautious Harold."

One of Best Liked Mr. Ickes, nonetheless, remains one of the best liked of the cabinet officers. He is honest and utterly fair. He treats his clerks well, insists that they take their regular holidays during the hot weather, and never attempts to pass the buck when things go wrong.

His irritability and his worries notwithstanding, Mr. Ickes has not lost his grip. He remains the able lawyer and the careful administrator that he always was. Occasionally his old-time smile flashes across his broad face and Mr. Ickes forgets his troubles momentarily.

On a recent Sunday morning, for instance, he served umpire at the baseball game between the teams of the interior department newspaper correspondents and the treasury newsmen. Interior lost, to Mr. Ickes' deep disappointment. At his regular weekly press conference several days later, he said:

"I want to say that I wish this ball team of yours would get some practice. I did all I could for you in that last game. I missed church and everything. Still you lost. Something has to be done about it or I'll resign."

Indiana in Brief

By Times Special
MARION, July 4.—Between 250 and 280 men and women will go to work Monday in the plant of the Dalby Brothers Shoe Company, quarters formerly occupied by the now defunct Marion Shoe Company. Seven carloads of machinery have been shipped from Holbrook to Marion and about one-half of it already is installed. Frank Butterworth, factory manager, announces more persons will be added to the pay roll as the plant is put in shape for more production.

PHYSICIAN COOL ON PURDUE 'ICE CURE' FOR HEAT

New York Doctor Quotes Mark Twain Remark on Weather.

NEW YORK, July 4.—Commenting on reports of an invention of a hot weather "wrist watch" by scientists of Purdue university, Lafayette, Ind., Dr. Iago Galdston, secretary of the medical information bureau of the New York Academy of Medicine, today quoted Mark Twain.

"The famous humorist, you know, said that while we all like to talk about the hot weather, there is very little that can be done about it," said Dr. Galdston.

Of the Purdue aim to cool the entire body by placing an insulated bracelet, containing dry ice, on one part of the body, Dr. Galdston said: "Like the little dog Rover who, when he died, died all over, a man is not hot all over when the temperature goes up. While it is true that ice applied to, say, the wrist can give a sense of comfort, it is questionable whether the temperature of the whole body can be so reduced.

"However, we will await with eagerness further reports of this ingenious device. Meanwhile, like true scientists, we will hold our judgment in suspense."

STATE EXHIBIT SPACE AT FAIR NOW IS LOUNGE

Indiana Murals Are Missing From Display at Chicago.

BY MRS. MAURICE MURPHY Times Special Writer
CHICAGO, July 4.—Hoosiers attending the world's fair this summer are finding that the space which was Indiana's in the Court of States at the 1933 fair presents a changed appearance.

No longer do the famous Thomas Hart Benton murals encircle the walls nor does the room house an Indiana exhibit. Instead of these familiar surroundings, Hoosiers find a comfortable lounge where guests from all states may rest. The space also houses the offices and services for the states in the area.

An outstanding feature is the Arizona exhibit where an unusual desert garden with all varieties of cactus plants is shown.

The Spanish-Indian adobe type of architecture is used for the New Mexico exhibit. The state's exhibit is entirely different from that of any other state in the union, and has a foreign air.

Florida's exhibit has been greatly enlarged and its garden with tropical plants and birds is glass-enclosed.

Ohio's murals now are lighted in the manner approved by art institutes. Puerto Rico is not only in a new location in the court, but also is under a different management. The department of agriculture is sponsoring the exhibit.

Other exhibitors in the Court of States are: Illinois, Washington, Georgia, California, Missouri, the United States government, South Dakota, Mississippi Valley, West Virginia, Francis Pavilion, the Virgin Islands and a Greek exhibit. A Greek orchestra plays in the garden outside the Greek pavilion and Greek dances are given.

A drug store, wheel chairs and other utilities occupy several spaces in the area.
