

FIVE CONVICTS, HEAVILY ARMED, ESCAPE PRISON

Troops, Police Block Roads
in Search for Oregon
Jail-Breakers.

By United Press
SALEM, Ore., July 5.—Behind hastily erected barricades, state policemen, prison guards, and peace officers guarded all roads south of Salem today to intercept five armed convicts who escaped from the state penitentiary annex late yesterday.

The convicts, outdistancing pursuers by a quick exchange of stolen automobiles, were believed to have failed to penetrate police defenses and to be hiding in a sparsely populated area between here and Lebanon, fifty miles south.

With the fleeing convicts was A. C. Rahm, a farmer, whom they kidnapped after he had refused to give them $250 demanded of him.

The escape was not spectacular. None of the men was classified as dangerous. All were formerly employed as laborers and were serving short terms for larceny and assault convictions.
