

Riding Horse Enthusiasts Seek Trails

State Saddle Association Makes Surveys for Bridle Paths.

BY BEATRICE BURGAN
Times Woman's Page Editor

THE Indiana Saddle Horse Association has been trail blazing. A committee has been working steadily to encourage development of bridle trails. The action is opportune, too, with the increasing interest in riding horses.

Miss Burgan

During the summer many equestrians have bought new horses, and are spending their hours of recreation on bridle paths. Members of the Algonquin Riding Club are busy preparing for their annual sweepstakes and field day July 15, and several of them are riding new mounts.

Miss Gertrude Brown has a new bay gelding, Dark Prince. On the field day she will officiate as a member of the ring committee, headed by Dr. Elliott Hirsch. Dr. Hirsch is stabling a new three-gaited bay mare, Murillo Dare, at the club.

P. O. Ferrell rides from the Laurel Hill stables his new five-gaited chestnut mare. Frequenting the bridle paths leading from Algonquin is Morris Rosner, mounted on his new six-year-old walk-trot chestnut mare, Desert Song.

In the Traders Point Hunt next year will be several new hunters. Ralph G. Lockwood this summer bought Happy Boy, a 9-year bay hunter from the Fleischmann stable in Cincinnati. Raymond Hollingsworth, professional huntsman of the staff, has been working Rocket, a 6-year-old hunter.

Mrs. Otto N. Frenzel Jr. has stabled Henry, 6-year-old hunter, at Algonquin. In addition to the Robert H. Brown stables is Lady of the Moon, Mrs. William Wemmer's walk-trot 5-year-old chestnut mare.

Annually several Indianapolis entries participate in the Muncie fair horse show. This year the show will be held in a new ring in front of the grand stand at the fair-ground.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Ball have built a new clubhouse for the Orchard Lawn Riding Club at Muncie, and exhibitors in the show on Aug. 5, will witness the dedication of a luncheon party. Mrs. Ball is chairman of the show committee.

The state board of agriculture through its subcommittee, led by Senator John Bright Webb, has announced a "new deal" for show horses at the Indiana state fair show, Sept. 3 to 7.

The saddle horse association promised to raise $6,000 to match the board's increased contribution toward prizes. Wallace C. Lee as a committee of one, succeeded. A total of $18,500 will be given in cash prizes.

Evadne Club to Meet

Evadne Club will meet at 7:30 tomorrow at the home of Miss Lois Jane Thompson, 621 Highland drive.

Daily Recipe

PEACH COBBLER

Drain the contents of four No. 3 cans of sliced peaches for one No. 10 and one No. 2½ can, and lay them in the bottom of a large flat baking pan. Mix together one and one-half cups sugar and six tablespoons flour, then add the peach syrup, stirring until smooth.

Pour over the peaches, dot with three-fourths cup butter or a butter substitute, and place the pan in oven while preparing for the crust.

Sift together one and a half quarts flour, one tablespoon salt and one-half tablespoon baking powder, and cut in one and a half cups shortening. Mix with enough cold water to make of the consistency to roll. Roll not quite so thin as for pie crust, cut to fit top of pan, and make several slits in top for escape of steam.

Remove peaches from oven, lay crust on top and return to oven (400 degrees) for from twenty-five to thirty minutes. Serve warm with cream or with hard sauce. Serves fifty.

HAVE you ever said to yourself, "Well, as long as I have to lose a trick in this suit, I suppose it doesn't make much difference which opponent I permit to win it?" But it does make a lot of difference.

In today's hand we find that the declarer can finesse the diamond suit in either direction—that is, he can play the jack from his own hand and take the finesse, or he can go over to the dummy with the ace of hearts and play the diamond through the ace-jack.

South's original bid of one no trump is correct. While the hand is not rich in tenace positions, it does have two king-queen holdings, and a minor tenace in the diamonds. And, of course, if partner should take the no trump out in a major suit, South on the next round can support that suit.

WEST starts the attack with his long spade suit, leading the eight spot, and East plays the ten.

Manners and Morals

BY JANE JORDAN

Bring the question that puzzles you up for discussion! Prepare with an idea in mind with a letter! The success of the column depends on your letters; so don't be a bit bashful!

Dear Jane Jordan—I am the mother of a lovely young daughter, and night after night a crowd of boys and girls gather either at our house or some other girl's house. Now, don't misunderstand me, because they are always welcome, and we are getting a big kick out of seeing them have a good time. But lately I have been looking at these nice boys and wondering if their mothers do not wonder where they are and what manner of girls they are with. Why don't the mothers of boys ever bother to entertain the crowds? It is surely well worth the little time, trouble and expense. MRS. B. L.

Answer—A mother is never so concerned about the social success of her boys as her girls. Part of her job as mother of a daughter is to see that her daughter makes a good social adjustment, and is exposed to plenty of potential suitors. If she has a son, he is immediately sought by other mothers as escort for their girls, and she is relieved of the task of providing a social life for him at home.

This is not a bad thing for the boy by any manner of means. We know that the son is far more influenced by his mother than the daughter. Under the best of auspices he tends to carry the apron string over into adult life, whereas if the girl remains infantile, it is more apt to be the father's coddling which caused it.

At puberty the wise mother pushes her son out into other homes where he meets and mingles with other women. The time has come for him to break his emotional dependence on his mother, and other contacts help him to do so.

I do not mean that it is a bad thing for a mother to entertain her son's friends from time to time, so long as it isn't done for the purpose of keeping him tied to the family. I agree with you that it should be a pleasure to know the friends that one's son has chosen for himself, provided one holds firmly to a "hands-off" policy.

It used to be considered slightly indecorous for a girl to go to a boy's house for any reason whatsoever, and it may be that some very old-fashioned mothers still hold to this out-worn idea. In other cases, the parents are simply indifferent. Whereas they are determined to dominate their children, they have no capacity for sharing their pleasures.

Dear Jane Jordan—I read in your column where a woman's husband is a puzzle to her. I have one just like him. He doesn't want me to go anywhere at all. If I go to any of my women friends' homes for a while he wants to know if I have been out with my —. That sure does cut me like a knife.

Whenever he wants to go he just gets up and goes. He keeps me worried all the time. What would you do? The men want to do all the running but don't want their wives to go anywhere. I am sick of such a fool. SECOND END OF THE ROPE.

Answer—I would certainly go whenever I had a legitimate cause for going, and would not deny myself the pleasure of companionship of other women just to please a selfish, grown up baby. The trouble with you is that you let his quarreling get under your skin. It is better for you to show no reaction whatever to his insults, but to firmly insist on your right to free time and proceed to take it regardless of his objections.

Half of his attempt to dominate you is sheer bluff. He knows he can scare you and he does it. If he felt any real strength in you he would not attempt to sway your decisions. As it is he knows he can get your attention by flinging a tantrum, but no one has tantrums when he can not affect his audience by his howls. The sooner you cease to be affected by his nasty remarks, the sooner he will give up making them.

Following breakfast at the Marriott for members of the bridal party and immediate families, the couple left for a trip east. They will be at home after Aug. 1 at 3871 North Meridian street.

Miss Marie C. Filcer, organist, played "I Love You Truly" and "O Promise Me" and accompanied George A. Smith and Edward A. La Shelle, who sang "To a Wild Rose" and "Ave Maria."

Mrs. T. R. Behrman, matron of honor, was gowned in green mousseline de soie with white accessories and carried yellow snapdragons. Miss Mary Schneider, bridesmaid, wore yellow mousseline de soie and carried yellow snapdragons.

Fred Schmitt was best man and Ralph Schneider and Dr. Raymond Weiden were ushers.

The bride's gown was of white satin worn with a tulle veil falling from a lace cap embroidered in seed pearls. Her flowers were a shower bouquet of bride's roses.

BRIDE-ELECT WILL BE HONORED GUEST

Mrs. Fayne Maloy will entertain tonight with a party for Miss Vivian Likens, bride-elect, at her home in Plankville, Miss Likens' marriage to John Gardner will take place July 18 at St. Joan of Arc church.

Autumn Fashions Reveal Trend to Tailored Lines and Emphasis on Detail

Less Fitted Silhouette and Narrower Skirts Noted at Style Shows; Natural Contour Will Be Correct.

BY HELEN LINDSAY

NEW fashion ideas are being presented in the east, at the openings of the American designers following the Parisian showings for fall. Two definite trends are seen in the new fashions; one a growing popularity of simple, tailored fashions, and the other, an enthusiasm for luxurious detail, seen in furs, fabrics and feather trimmings.

The silhouette, as accepted for fall clothing, is not too strictly fitted. One designer has expressed its line by saying that the costume may look slightly large for the figure. Waistlines are no longer high, but belts are worn between bodice and skirt at the natural waistline. Skirts are straighter and narrower, and many are slashed, or made with kick pleats and little hem flounces to give the necessary width at the hemline.

Little change is seen in skirt lengths. Some show a slightly belled outline at the bottom. Shoulders are once more smooth, and the general contour is natural. Collars are important, fashioned on dresses and coats as flattering frames for faces.

There will be diversified styles in coats and suits, since swaggar lines, and belted straight silhouettes are to be used. In suits, jackets will be of varying lengths, from three-quarter swaggar to short hip-lengths. Belted types of suits will show wrapover wrist and finger-tip length jackets. Fur jackets again will be used with cloth costumes.

One of the newer fashions will be cocktail suits in luxury fabrics combined with woollens, dressier than the ordinary town suit, to be worn with dresses or blouses which are short-sleeved.

Daytime fashions will feature fabrics which are as luxurious as those for evening fashions. Metal run woollen materials will be seen in daytime town frocks, and in sports dresses as well. Velvets will be used in many types of costumes.

Colors Will Emphasize Richness

RICH, dark colors, sometimes known as tapestry colors, will be seen in opposition to the over-popular black this fall in coats and dresses. The colors which will receive the most attention are rich deep reds or red browns, dark blues, and dark greens. One of the interesting new colors, which was seen in many of the costumes in the Paris showings, is a pumice stone gray.

In each of the collections of the outstanding designers, there will be costumes showing the continuation of the trend toward tunics. Sometimes they are belled, and sometimes straight in wrapover line. Sometimes the tunic idea is simulated by a fold or trimming.

Interesting Situation Made by Fabrics

FABRICS are interesting in every group of costumes. Corduroy will be used in pin and narrow waist versions in jacket and three-quarter coat suits, with novelty wooden buttons painted to match.

Woolen dresses worn for school and college girls will show removable stiffened vestes and collars of old fashioned calico, featuring small figures on colored grounds. Suits and dresses will be in diagonal two-color striped tweeds. Woolens will be combined with satin-striped silks for sport dresses, with the silk used in the upper part of the dress.
