

GIANT MACON DROPS MAIL ON HOUSTON'S DECK

Escort Planes Drop Papers for Roosevelt En Route to Hawaii.

AT SEA WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, July 20 (by radio).—President Roosevelt's flagship, the cruiser Houston, steamed through squall-swept seas toward Hawaii today after a visit from the navy's air queen, the dirigible Macon.

The silver dirigible poked her nose from a cloud bank yesterday afternoon as the Houston cruised 1,200 miles from California.

She had come from her base at Sunnyvale, near San Francisco, at an average speed of fifty knots, bringing mail to the President.

Mr. Roosevelt stood on the wind-swept deck for some time awaiting the Macon's arrival.

Planes Drop Papers
Commander A. V. Wiley, recently placed in charge of the dirigible and a survivor of the Akron disaster, ordered two of his supplementary pursuit planes to fly ahead of the Macon as she neared the Houston.

The planes swooped low over the cruiser's deck and dropped papers and a greeting from Commander Wiley. The Macon soared for an hour over the Houston and her convoy before pointing northward toward her base.

The President sent the following message to Commander Wiley: "The President's compliments to you and your planes on your fine performance and excellent navigation. Well done and thank you for the papers."

Congratulates Farley
Low-hanging clouds and a change in course of the Houston increased the navigation problem for the Macon. The Houston's course was changed to relieve the pain of a crew member, operated upon for appendicitis, by preventing excessive rolling.

The President received Postmaster-General James Farley's report that the postoffice department had a surplus of $5,000,000 at the end of the fiscal year ending June 30. Mr. Roosevelt wired Mr. Farley his congratulations, pointing out that it was the first such surplus since 1919.

The President, his sons and party were guests at a dinner party arranged last night by officers of the Houston.

The Theatrical World 'Of Human Bondage' One of Best, Hickman Says

—BY WALTER D. HICKMAN

ONE of the smash "movie hits" of the year is W. Somerset Maugham's "Of Human Bondage."

Here is one of the most sensitive movies—depicting one man's struggle to free himself from a bondage of selfish love—that the screen ever has revealed.

"Of Human Bondage" is a masterpiece and has the right to that honor, the same as the Maugham romance, which is one of the most widely read books ever written.

In the hands of Leslie Howard, the sensitive, fine and beauty-loving soul of Philip Carey, a club-footed medical student, is revealed in all of its fine and sensitive beauty.

If there ever has been a "soul" Mr. Howard's performance photographed upon the screen, then this work of Mr. Howard is that one. I am putting Mr. Howard's Philip Carey in my own hall of fame. I am sure this is one of the ten best performances on the screen that I have seen.

Philip loved Mildred (Bette Davis), a waitress with a cheap mind and even a cheaper body, with so much devotion that in his imagination he made a lovely goddess out of this mess of human clay.

Handicapped as he was with a deformed foot which never touched the loveliness of his soul and disposition, Philip lived in his false dream of the "beauty" that Mildred did not possess.

He even did this when she destroyed him financially, abused his pride and nearly ruined his finer sensitiveness. Watch the scene when Mildred attempts to use her physical charms on Philip. Watch Miss Davis reach dramatic heights of fierce intensity which I never suspected she possessed.

Watch Howard feebly try to hang on to the vision he had created as a sweetheart. It is magnificent acting on part of both players.

HERE is the first great acting that Miss Davis has given the screen. Here character is one of ugliness and utter selfishness.

She destroys herself and although she nearly wrecks the sensitive soul of Philip, she is defeated.

Two other women figure in the life of Philip. They are Sally (Frances Dee) and Nora (Kay Johnson). Both performances, although different in characterization, are perfect performances.

Take time to watch the splendid acting of Reginald Owen as the father of Sally. Here is work that you will want to remember.

There is not a weak member in this great cast. Please take time and watch the work of John Cromwell, the director, and see how he has put over the club-foot deformity of Philip. Here is sensitive direction that actually matches the great acting in the cast.

We are demanding fine stories, fine acting and intelligent direction. Then if we are in earnest then our duty is clearly to see this masterpiece.

Of all the movies I have seen, I had only six until I saw "Of Human Bondage." Now this one is my seventh.

Now at the Circle.

FRISCO STRIKE IS FEATURE OF TIMES' REEL

Times - Universal Pictures Show Coast City in Grip of Troops.

Unusual scenes in San Francisco as mobs storm shops to purchase rapidly diminishing food supplies are pictured in the current issue of The Times-Universal Newsreel. In addition also, a lack of gasoline and paralyzed transportation lines have emptied the streets of all but a few vehicles. Troops have been rushed in to affected areas and the city is in the grip of virtual martial law.

This and other outstanding news pictures are described by Graham McNamee, noted radio announcer and the screen's talking reporter.

Other unusual news events described by McNamee in this latest release include, Navy planes making final test flights before taking off on a mass hop from San Diego, Cal., to Alaska; and return; and the widespread search for little Robert Connor, 21-month-old baby who disappeared while playing near his home at Hartsdale Manor, N. Y.

Cavalcade is shown winning the Arlington Classic at Chicago to clinch the 3-year-old title and place himself among the greatest horses of all time; rioting in Amsterdam, Holland, as the unemployed demonstrate against a cut in the dole; Premier Mussolini threshing the first wheat to be harvested from the reclaimed lands on the Pontine Marshes; the annual roundup of buffalo at Custer State Park, S. D.
