Concerns During Year,
Report Says.

Employment for more than 10,000 persons in the state with private concerns and 173,728 persons on public works projects was obtained by the combined Indiana State Employment Service and the National Re-employment Service during its first fiscal year, ending July 1.

This was announced today in a report submitted by J. Bradley Haight of the department. The state service operates a division of the Governor's commission on unemployment relief.

Iron and steel products, machine and vehicle industries took the largest number of men, 2,144, of which 2,048 were for regular jobs.

The largest number of women were placed in domestic and personal service, 2,130 getting such jobs, of which 1,485 were regular jobs.

A total of 29,853 were used for public works projects and 138,230 men were employed directly by the public works administration.

The report discloses that of the total number employed, 27,815 were veterans and that there were 4,281 new employers during the year.
