

M'NUTT, ROAD BOARD BATTLE OVER HIGHWAY

Governor Favors Brick, Commission Wants Concrete.

Materials to be used in the re-surfacing of U. S. Road No. 31, Greenwood to Franklin, have resulted in Governor Paul V. McNutt and the state highway commission locking horns, it was reported today.

The Governor, it is declared, favors brick paving, while the highway board is said to want bituminous concrete.

Residents south of Indianapolis are said to back the highway commission and have prepared a petition protesting brick construction.

Objection to use of brick is based on the fact, it is said, that a twenty-foot widening, done with brick, will cost as much as a thirty-foot road-way of concrete.

The Governor, it is said, favors brick as a means of giving a native Indiana product a boost.

Bids for resurfacing were received by the highway board for both brick and concrete. Low bidder on brick was the Hartmann-Clark Brothers Co., of Peoria, Ill., while an Indiana firm, Road Surfacing Company, Bloomington, was low on concrete with a bid of $193,593.7, against the brick bid of $253,014.61.

The Illinois brick bidder plans to buy brick from a company in Martinsville, the Governor's home town.

Members of the commission, it is said, refused to discuss the situation and the contract award is held in abeyance. Governor McNutt is out of the city today.

Not until the last out today will the championship of the east side be determined. Several teams are close in the division competition.

"Gin makes ALL the difference in a Tom Collins"

"It takes an American Gin to make this famous American drink," says Maynard, of New York's famous Plaza (Persian Room Bar)

HOW MAYNARD MIXES HIS POPULAR TOM COLLINS

"First I squeeze the juice of one lemon in a tall glass. Next a scoop of ice. Then a heaping teaspoon of powdered sugar.
"Then I pour in a jigger of a good American gin. Next I fill up the glass with club soda.
"I don't stir the drink myself, but let the guest do it with a spoon. The sugar is what makes the Tom Collins effervescent. It should be stirred each time before a swallow is taken. This keeps the drink live and bubbling for a longer time.
"The most important ingredient is the gin. I have found from experience that a typically American drink, such as a Tom Collins, to be made successfully, requires an American gin, like Fleischmann's—a mild, smooth-tasting gin especially distilled to blend with the other ingredients."

Only an American Gin—distilled to the American taste—can bring out the smooth, charming flavor of a Tom Collins—or a cocktail.

THE TOM COLLINS—and also the cocktail—are as distinctly "American" as the 4th of July. Invented by Americans. Popularized in America.

To make a Tom Collins or a cocktail successfully requires a smooth American gin—distilled especially to blend with other liquors or fruit juices.

The American taste in gin is quite different from the European. Most Americans prefer to mix their drinks with a mild, smooth-tasting gin—instead of the more pungent London or Holland gins, which were not originally intended for mixing.

That is why Fleischmann's Dry Gin has become so tremendously popular in this country. It is distilled from a distinctly American formula—from American grains—to the American taste and drinking customs.

Fleischmann's Gin is free from all the impurities that cause a "raw" taste in cocktails. It blends perfectly in mixed drinks—brings out their delicate hidden flavors.

It has a soft, mild bouquet—a delightfully smooth taste.
