NEW SEAPLANES MAY BE DOOM OF DIRIGIBLES

Navy's Latest Deadly Craft Offer Competition to Zeppelins.

By United Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—The United States navy is building a new fleet of high-speed, long-range seaplanes which may spell the fate of future dirigible construction, it was learned today.

Twenty-three new ships are under construction at Buffalo, N. Y. The present complement of twenty-three patrol planes will be rebuilt to double the strength of the new unit.

The deadly craft are being built on the basis of successful tests here and at Norfolk. The planes are improvements on the type as those which made the spectacular flight from California to Hawaii.

The full fleet is expected to be ready by spring. It will be capable of speeds considerably greater than the present 130-mile-an-hour and will have a cruising range of hundreds of miles.

Perform Dirigible Duty

The planes are designed to locate the bomb enemy fleets. A significant factor in the developments is that, in the opinion of experts, they may "offer strong competition" to lighter-than-air craft, being capable of performing most of the duties of dirigibles like the Macon.

The navy now has its future policy regarding construction of dirigibles under study. Success of the new patrol ships may be a determining factor.

Another consideration is that of cost. The planes cost $20,000 against $50,000 for a dirigible.

Although unable to remain aloft as long as the Macon, the planes have an exceedingly long range and even should one meet with mishap the loss would be far less.

Secrecy Holds Sway

Despite the secrecy with which the navy has embarked on the program, it was learned that tests of experimental craft of the new type showed they had greater speed, longer range and smoother operation due to a protected propeller.

The function of the patrol planes is to cover large areas in short time. They may be used also as bombers after locating an enemy fleet. They are so large they can not be lodged on the present type of airplane carrier. Instead, they operate from a tender which serves as an advance base for operations and refueling.

Twelve ships of the type which is to be rebuilt now are engaged in a test flight from California to Alaska. They are to go to the factory on their return.

ROTHSCHILD REFUSED
MEAL; HE'S JEWISH

Scion of Distinguished House Is Insulted in London.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—Victor Rothschild, scion of the distinguished banking family and heir to the British Rothschild barony, revealed today that he had been denied a meal in a London roadhouse because he is Jewish.

He said that the roadhouse manager asked him whether he was a Jew when he entered. "I said 'Yes, I am,'" Rothschild declared. "Thereupon the manager said he was unable to serve me. I left at once. That sounds rather like Nazi Germany, doesn't it?"
