

Rolling Ridge Polo Team Takes Part in Leading Tourney Play at Dayton

Conrad Ruckelshaus Captains Players in Stern Competition for Central Circuit Honors.

BY BEATRICE BURGAN
Times Woman's Page Editor

THE Rolling Ridge Polo Club team goes into "big" league competition today when it enters the polo tournament at Dayton, O. Conrad Ruckelshaus who returned from a vacation at Burt Lake, Mich., with Mrs. Ruckelshaus, will lead the team as captain, and Jesse Andrew, Sr., West Point, Ind., will accompany the team to act in an advisory capacity.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel B. Sulphin will go to Dayton to see their sons, Samuel and Dudley, play in the matches. Jesse Andrew Jr. also will play on the team, and Charles DuPuy and Thomas Ruckelshaus will go along as substitute players. Mrs. W. A. Atkins, mother of Mr. DuPuy, will be in the spectator's row.

Playing in the tournament will be the Miami Valley Polo and Hunt Club of Dayton, the Comargo Polo Club of Cincinnati, the Harbour Hills Polo Club of Columbus, the Chagrin Valley Polo and Hunt Club of Cleveland, the Iniquis Polo and Hunt Club of Lexington, Ky., Onwentsia Polo and Hunt Club of Chicago and a San Antonio, Tex., club.

Specators will see spectacular players in action. Nelson Talbert, former Yale university football captain, is on the Dayton team, which has a long list of victories to its credit. Howell Howard is another player on this team, and has won recognition by playing on the Aurora team which went to England this summer. Mr. Howard was a playing mate of William Post II, son-in-law of Mr. Andrew.

Mr. Andrew Sr. played in last Saturday's and Sunday's games at Rolling Ridge field after being out of the game for several weeks with an injured ankle.

Two tournaments will be played at Dayton, a twelve-gold tournament and a central circuit tournament, whose winner will play the Texas team for the inter-circuit championship. This is the first year that Rolling Ridge has entered the event, which will continue for ten days.

Camp Exhibits Inspected

Billie and Dick Lieber have finished this summer's session of the Brown County Camp for Boys, and Marylee Porter has completed a season at Hilltop Camp, near Nashville. Today friends and relatives visited the camps to attend a tea and to inspect an exhibit of art work executed by the children during the summer vacation.

Late this afternoon a style show in the rustic theater will be given under the direction of Miss Emily Rothenbach, New Albany, in charge of the class in costume design. Two one-act plays and an operetta, "Chanticleer," will be presented under the direction of Jack Story.

MARY SLINGER IS CATHEDRAL BRIDE

Miss Mary Esther Slinger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis D. Slinger, was married to Harry J. Gehrich, son of Edward A. Gehrich, this morning at St. Peter and Paul cathedral. A wedding breakfast followed the ceremony at the Slinger home.

The bride's gown was of white satin, worn with a tulle veil. The bride's bouquet was of white roses. Miss Mary Kaye Martin, bridesmaid, wore an orchid tulle gown with matching hat and carried a bouquet of roses. Dorothy Jean Martin, flower girl, wore yellow tulle. Earl Slinger, the bride's brother, was best man.

A reception will honor the couple tonight at the Slinger home, 2406 North Talbot street.

Culver Commencement Adds to Maxinkuckee Gayety

BY BETTY CONDER
Times Special Writer

LAKE MAXINKUCKEE, Aug. 18.—Commencement week activities of Culver Military academy will add to the gayety of the program of Maxinkuckee vacationists.

The Maxinkuckee Mummies bring their Little Theater season to a close tonight when they present "Dangerous Corners," the last of a series of six that the Mummies have produced this season. On Sunday the Maxinkuckee Yacht Club and the academy will have their weekly races, determining another winner in competition for the trophies to be presented on Labor day. William Griffith, Indianapolis, a cottager on the east shore of the lake, was last week's winner of the yacht club races.

Boxing finals, drills, final swimming meets and various other sports will be listed on Monday's schedule with the formal commencement dance ending the day's activities. The cavalry school will give its famous musical ride Tuesday morning, entertaining many guests of the academy. The commencement exercises on Wednesday morning, following the informal dance Tuesday night, will be held in the open air theater, where awards will be presented by Rear Admiral W. T. Cluverius. Then the Culver summer school will be an occasion of the past.

Mrs. Chester Albright entertained at a luncheon-bridge Tuesday in honor of Mrs. Cecil Charlton who is a house guest of Mrs. Cone Barlow. Covers were laid for eight guests on the spacious front porch of the Albright summer home. Other guests were Mesdames W. E. Shea, Theodore L. Locke, Paul H. Krause Jr., C. P. Conder and Roy Shaberger.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Flickinger and family came Sunday to visit Dan Jr., who is in the naval school of the Culver Military academy. The Flickingers returned to their home in Indianapolis early in the week.

Miss Elsie Ann Locke will go this week-end to Chicago to visit her grandmother, Mrs. H. C. Locke.

Miss Helen Behmer has returned to Indianapolis for the remainder of the season where she will attend the Butler university post summer school.

Miss Barbara Haines has returned to her home in Indianapolis after spending the week-end as the guest of Miss Betsy Home at the Home cottage at Maxinkuckee landing.

David Nusbaum, New Rochelle, N. Y., is at Maxinkuckee for the remainder of the season with his aunt, Mrs. Francis Dunn.

Miss Peggy Chapin has as her house guest this week Miss Dorothy Braden, Indianapolis, who came Wednesday to attend the academy formal dance.

Mrs. Cecil Charlton and son Maxwell have come from their summer home at Torch Lake, Mich., to visit Mrs. Charlton's sister, Mrs. Cone Barlow, who is spending the month of August at Locust Bluff, on the east shore. Miss Dorothy Barlow has as her guest this week at her parents' cottage Miss Jane Wynne, Indianapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Baxter had as their week-end guests at their summer home Mr. and Mrs. Orin Fifer Jr., Miss Joan Boswell and Frederic L. Baxter, all of Indianapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph M. Reahard and Mrs. T. L. Locke entertained in honor of their sons, Ralph M. Reahard Jr. and Theodore L. Locke Jr., at a Sunday night supper at the Locke cottage. The party was given for some of the Gold "C" boys of the wood-crafters school of the Culver Military academy, of which Ralph Jr. and Ted Jr. are members. Miss Sally Reahard and Captain Charles Berglund also were guests.

Bruce Schmetz, Chicago, and John Shield, Indianapolis, are at the lake visiting William Chapin, who is spending the summer in the Buckeye with his family.

Guests at the T. L. Locke cottage Sunday were Miss Marjorie Horstmeier, Hudson Jones Jr. and William Jones, all of Ft. Wayne, who were on a motor trip through the northern part of the state.

Mrs. William Doeppers and Miss Emma Doeppers were at the Culver Military academy for a few days visiting Robert Doeppers who is a cub in the Woodcraft school.

Mrs. Gideon Blain has left her cottage at Maxinkuckee and has gone to Camp Knox, Ky., to join Mr. Blain, Mrs. Blain's daughter, Mrs. Gurney Mann, and Mr. Mann are at the Blain summer home for the remainder of the season.

Mrs. John Sloane Kittle went to Indianapolis for a few days Thursday but will return to her summer cottage, "Fair Winds" the last of the week. Mrs. Rena Kittle and her daughter, Florence, have returned from Greenwich, Conn., where they visited Mr. and Mrs. Burton Hart Jackson. The Kittles will be at Maxinkuckee after the first of September.

Maurice J. Moore Jr. and Richard Fowler were guests at "Hickory Crest" cottage for the Wednesday night dance at the academy. From their visit at Culver they went to Chicago to visit the fair.

A Woman's Viewpoint
BY MRS. WALTER FERGUSON

WHAT is the American business man working for? I often ask myself the question. Certainly it should be for something fine, since he works so hard wherever you find him. Go, if you like, from coast to coast, from north to south along the boundaries of our republic and the same sight presents itself to you in varied settings. Men, husbands, fathers or even bachelors with no one on earth but themselves to fend for, and what are most of them doing?

Slaving literally slaving their lives away. Their days are spent in a dreadful monotony. Thousands of them have not taken a vacation since 1929. Business will not spare them, they tell you. For this reason a good many of them have died where they stood, like soldiers at their posts.

And like some soldiers, I suspect a large number of them do not know what they are there for, exactly. Their heroism is commendable but their judgment is poor.

It seems to me one of the direst tragedies of all history that, in a vast, rich country such as ours so many men seem to have almost entirely lost the meaning of life. Allens to their wives; strangers to their children; with no time to cultivate friendships, they run around in their silly little squirrel cages, faster, faster, faster, and tell themselves they are getting somewhere.

The truth is they have forgotten what real freedom is. They wear shackles heavier than any ever forged by master for slave.

forced to take the other—and as a result you will not make your contract. But if you do not take either finesse, you will make five odd.

The hand was played by Mrs. Helen Scranton, New York, in the recent all-American championship tournament of the American Whist League in Chicago.

WHILE North has three spades to the king, he has a better no trump response than that of two spades. Since four-card suits play an important part in bidding at contract, it does not generally pay to support your partner's suit with only three trumps, even though they are three to the king, on the first round, if you can find a better declaration.

However, when Mrs. Scranton in the South goes to two spades, North takes the strain off the hand by going to four.

AGAINST Mrs. Scranton's four a spade contract, West opened the deuce of clubs and East won the trick with the ace. East immediately returned a small heart. Mrs. Scranton's problem was whether to take the heart finesse. She felt that West had four clubs when he opened with the deuce; therefore, East must have the singleton ace.

If she took a heart finesse and it failed, a club would be returned and ruffed and her contract would be defeated.

Then, the heart finesse having failed, she probably would have taken the spade finesse to pick up the queen, and that also would have lost.

Mrs. Scranton knew that she had no club loser and decided that she would not risk losing more than one heart and one spade, so she went right up with the ace of hearts and then led a small spade, winning in dummy with the king. A spade was returned and again she refused to take the finesse, going right up with the ace of spades which dropped West's queen. Now the jack of trump was led, which picked up East's last trump. The king of clubs was cashed. East showed out, so Mrs. Scranton went right through West's jack, and now all she had to lose was the queen, of hearts.

Full Information Gained on Paris Exhibitions of Styles for Winter Wear

Streamline Effect Emphasized in Various Ways by Molyneux; Lelong Retains Slim Silhouettes.

BY HELEN LINDSAY

SEVERAL days ago, the United Press selected some of the highlights from the showings of Parisian designers for winter fashions, which were quoted to readers of this column. It now is possible to give a detailed account of practically all of the openings in Paris, as cabled to Mary Brooks Picken, style expert. The news relayed in the following cables is an authentic forecast of what women will find in feminine fashions during the next few months.

"If Molyneux emphasizes the streamline effect in various ways," the cables report, "Princess style for evening, fitted easily at the waist line, without a belt, sometimes has a burst of fullness at the bottom. One typical evening gown of brown tulle has multiple bottom full raised and stiffened slightly at sides. It has no shoulder straps, but wide triple ruche outlining décolletage and circling arms in drop shoulder effect.

"Molyneux uses this same décolletage trim on a degrade brown velvet and repeats the same bottom effect in black tulle on a red velvet. Metal thread worked in design in a beige lace long-sleeved gown was shown for the first time. He shows also, a new effect in Battenberg lace. One black tulle frock had the bottom turned back and faced with red velvet. The same idea was shown in black knee tunic with pleated drop in changeable taffeta and velvet.

Windblown Effects Achieved

LUCIEN LELONG keeps his slim silhouette, but varies the severely simple front with deeply bloused or windblown effects in back.

"Fay launches onyx green, a middle shade of Kelly green, but shows more blacks and even more reds, ranging from garnet and crimson to American beauty.

"Chanel sets in sleeves in a new way, which leaves the rest of the dress entirely independent of arm movement. This is apparent only in the overseas, but is said to be a veritable technical revolution, opening the way to a whole new trend. A novelty gown made of knitted net of woven with mother of pearl sequins is severely simple, except for rows of small bows in front and back of skirt to hem, and large bow at square neck.

"For street wear, Worth launches suede boots with pointed top and round front, with patent lacing in the sides. Most of his skirts are slit, some above the knee, and usually worn with tulle or lace petticoats. For both day and evening he shows much velvet, including plume pressed frappe chenille.

"Maggy Rouff shows décolletage shaped like a triangle with apex closed at throat in an evening gown of silver lace. She also shows a black broadcloth afternoon dress with elbow sleeves worn with a silver belt.

"Mainbocher employs lace, tulle and veils for fully 60 per cent of the collection. Wool day dresses are encrusted with black or white Alençon at neck and waistline and on sleeves. Many hip overblouses are shown with unusually wide backs and wide bishop sleeves of tulle or wide patterned lace. Lace veils are much in evidence.

Lace Accessory Hints Movement

"SCHIAPELLLETTI's collection is essentially one of motion. She launches a lace, giving the illusion of action by its stiffness. Several outstanding successes employ starched shadow lace reinforced by silk covered wire outlining the lace design. A black velvet treblink gown has a white chiffon underdress, with skirt ballooning above ankles. On the under dress much shadow lace two inches wide is used diagonally downward on the vest and upward on the skirt.

"Marcel Roches features sober street costumes with narrow slit skirts six inches from the floor. Many novelty buttons and buckles ornamented with masques, squares, crosses, grape leaves, fleur de lis, are shown. This designer also uses belts varying from leather chain harness straps to twelve-inch widths. Many novelty fabrics are shown.

"Many interesting hats, such as Algerian and Moroccan service types and fez types, created by Maria Guy, are shown.

"Lanvin uses silver kid for many trappings; for example, squares at the neck of a black wool jacket dress. Lanvin also uses eight-inch belts and crosslined motifs on skirts of other frocks. A black net open long-sleeved model is typical of this collection. The silhouette shows a high waist and widening skirt."

Contract Bridge

BY W. E. MCKENNEY
Secretary American Bridge League

JUST because you have an ace-queen combination, you need not necessarily take a finesse. Contract bridge is a game of tricks. If you bid for four odd your first task is to make four odd. If you have two finesses in the hand, as that great contract player, P. Hal Sims, has often said, "Plan the play of the hand so that, if you take one finesse, it will eliminate the other."

In today's hand, however, if you take one finesse, you are almost forced to take the other—and as a result you will not make your contract. But if you do not take either finesse, you will make five odd.

The hand was played by Mrs. Helen Scranton, New York, in the recent all-American championship tournament of the American Whist League in Chicago.
