

Polo Games Booked at State Fair

Four Teams Obtained to Play Each Night at Coliseum.

BY BEATRICE BURGAN
Times Woman's Page Editor

ATTRACtions scheduled for the Indiana state fair horse show increase daily. First we bring the news that the fair will have the greatest assembly of show horses thus far collected at any one display in the United States. J. R. McNutt, editor of the Hoosier Equestrian, insists that this statement may be accepted as "gospel truth."

Then we meet Fred Sharp, who tells us that at 10:15 every night indoor polo games will be played by four teams. The Culver alumni team which won the series last year will play again next week. Oscar Kaelin, Horace Hill III and Layton Palm, all Culver alumni, will challenge teams composed of players from Franklin, Dayton and Rolling Ridge.

The coliseum ring has been improved, which will speed up the game, Mr. Sharp explains. The Culver team defeated Franklin in the final game last year. Each team will play twice in the series, and the high point teams will meet for the championship game on Friday night, Sept. 7.

Indoor polo was started in the city about three years ago when the Junior League of Indianapolis sponsored a horse show at the coliseum. Mr. Kaelin, Russell Fortune and Conrad Ruckelshaus formed a team, the Freebooters, which played a team from Ft. Benjamin Harrison.

Many parties will witness the show events from boxes. Among those inviting guests for their boxes are Meier Block, Frederic M. Ayres, Frank B. Shields, C. F. Fortune, C. O. Alig, Eli Lilly, Ed Baldwin, West Baden; Robert Morland and Miss Clara Peck.

Coleman Atkins was host last night in his Piccadilly apartment penthouse at a buffet supper celebrating the coming marriage of Miss Lois Graham and Charles Du Puy on Saturday.

Miss Graham and Mr. Du Puy will attend a dinner party tonight, with Dr. and Mrs. Nathan P. Graham entertaining. The guests will go to an informal gathering at the home of Frederick G. Matson before the dinner party.

Dr. and Mrs. Graham's guests with Miss Graham, Mr. Du Puy and Mr. Matson will be Misses Sybil Stafford, Betty Wallerich, Estelle Burge and Dorothy Du Puy; Messrs. William Stafford, William Fortune and Charles Davidson Mitchell, Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Robert C. Winslow will go to Chicago Friday and will attend the wedding of her cousin, Walton M. Wheeler, Jr. and Miss Louise Canfield on Saturday at Winnetka, Ill. The head of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Chase, Mr. Wheeler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walton M. Wheeler, Evansville, with Mrs. Wheeler, will come to live in Indianapolis.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Canfield, Somerville, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Raffensperger have returned from a vacation in Michigan, Chicago and at Lake Wawasee.

Patou Evening Offering

Miss Burgan

Black lace with a modernistic pattern fashions this mid-season evening dress as suggested by Patou. The costume is completed by a black velvet coat trimmed in ermine. A red buckle for the belt adds an unexpected touch of color.

Contract Bridge

Today's Contract Problem

South is playing the hand at four spades, doubled and re-doubled. West opens the king of diamonds and then shifts to the five of hearts.

How should the declarer play the hand to make his contract?

Solution to Previous Contract Problem

In a recent article I gave an illustration of a simple coup, showing how it may be used to trap a trump honor which can not be picked up by straight leading or by a finesse. This situation arises when declarer's right-hand opponent is long in trump and dummy's trumps are exhausted too soon to permit a finesse.

Today's hand illustrates a more intricate variation of the same play. It is known as the double coup, because declarer must dispose of two surplus trumps to reduce the length of his trump suit to the same length as that of his opponent. Only in this way can he place the lead in dummy at the crucial eleventh trick to hold a ten-ace over the opponent's two remaining trumps.

The Play

DECLARER won the first diamond lead with the queen, and led the ace of spades. He followed with a small spade, and if he should finesse the ten spot the grand slam would be easy. However, East was careful to play first the three and then the eight of spades, apparently marking the four in the East hand.

Even without this bit of deception, declarer would have no reason to finesse, for a three-two distribution is far more probable than one, and the proper play was to go up with the queen.

When West discarded a diamond on the second spade lead, declarer knew he must play his cards carefully. He took two rounds of hearts, and led a small heart from dummy, which he ruffed with the seven of spades. He then led a diamond to dummy's ace and returned the king of diamonds.

If East should ruff, South would over-ruff, pick up the trump, and discard his losing clubs on the two good hearts in dummy. Instead, East discarded a club, and South did likewise.

The queen of hearts was led from dummy, East and South again discarding clubs. When the last heart was led from dummy, East still refused to ruff, but this time the declarer trumped with the nine of spades.

The eleventh trick was taken in dummy with the ace of clubs, and declarer's king-ten of trump gave him a tenace position over East's jack, to win the last two tricks.

It is interesting to note that the grand slam can not be made in either no trump or hearts, without taking an unnatural spade finesse.

Style-conscious collegians received an eye view of fashionable school wardrobes at a tea yesterday afternoon in L. S. Ayres & Co.'s Littlefield, Mass., store.

College women and their mothers were among the interested who saw outifts modeled for classrooms, football games, rush parties, dinners and dates. As sanctioned in the Harper's Bazaar questionnaire sent to college women throughout the country, simplicity of line, rich and dark colors and correct accessories are the points stressed in smart wardrobes.

Sweaters and skirts continue to form the college classic and with them are worn the English type of shoe in rough grain or serviceable suede with zipper fasteners, and sports coats in plaids and checks.

One outfit included a brown plaid belted sweater coat, worn with a brown sweater and skirt, felt hat with creased crown, brown pigskin gloves and zipper oxfords with leather Cuban heel.

With a ruby red velvetine shirt-waist dress, featured in Harper's Bazaar, a cool crown hat in black felt, black patent leather belt and pumps are smart.

Accessories appropriate for each costume are not to be overlooked.

With afternoon and date night dresses, the dresser type of suede shoes, gloves and purses will be seen. Metallic cloth dresses up afternoon frocks and detachable jackets give gowns a dual personality, allowing the wearer to be ready for a dinner date at a moment's notice.

Luxurious fur-trimmed dress coats are worn with velvet beret and pancake hats and evening gowns are designed for the ingenue and the sophisticate.
