

LIFE NOW JUST 'NIGHTMARE' TO DIONNE DOCTOR

Canadian Physician Tells Details of Birth of Quintuplets.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—Life for Dr. Allan Roy Defoe of Callander, Ont., has been a "nightmare" since he walked into the little Dionne home and found two tiny girls gasping on the bed with their young mother, he said today in the journal of the American Medical Association.

Delaying only to remove his coat, the unprepared doctor leaped into a battle against time and nature. He shouted orders at a midwife. He sterilized inadequate instruments. He ripped napkins and sheeting for swaddling clothes.

In the end he stood triumphant over the now famous Dionne quintuplets, but with each of them threatening to leave life almost before it was begun and with their mother "presenting the appearance of a dying woman."

"All of the babies," wrote Dr. Defoe as he described the scene, "were breathing and crying fairly vigorously for their size. I didn't see how all of them could possibly live, so I baptized them separately."

They then were wrapped in remnants of cotton sheeting and old napkins, then laid on the corner of the bed and covered with heated blankets.

The first week of their lives, he said, was a "nightmare," with daily and sometimes thrice daily visits in addition to his normal practice over 400 square miles of country. They since have had "ups and downs," he said, but are "progressing favorably."

And in his section of the world, he added whimsically, "race suicide is nonexistent."

Wage loss by truck drivers—$575,000.

Loss to taxpayers as result of calling of the national guard—$450,000.

BANDIT SHOT IN TAVERN HOLDUP; 3 PALS HUNTED

City Hoodlums Sought in Whiteland Raid; Victim Near Death.

Police today were seeking three Indianapolis hoodlums believed to have participated last night in an attempted holdup of a beer tavern in Whiteland, Ind., which brought probably fatal wounds to a fourth member of the holdup gang.

The wounded robber is Fred Matson, 27, of Somerset, Ky., and Indianapolis, who, bullet-riddled, lies in city hospital, a warning to other bandits to avoid the beer tavern operated by Robert Blythe at Whiteland.

Matson is the second would-be bandit to fall under Mr. Blythe's gunfire in recent months. Fred Moore, another Indianapolis rowdy, was slain by Mr. Blythe approximately three months ago.

Last night, four bandits, of whom Matson was one, hid near Mr. Blythe's tavern until closing time and then approached with an order to "stick them up." Instead, he ran to his home, adjacent to the tavern, and obtained a shotgun and an automatic pistol.

He fired the shotgun at the robbers and one of them (probably Matson), closed in to grapple, seizing barrel of the gun. Mr. Blythe then fired his automatic. Matson, who had been wounded by the shotgun discharge, was wounded twice more by shots from the automatic.

Before the struggle ended, he was hit again by a discharge from the shotgun. Whether any of the other three were wounded is not known.

Sheriff A. R. Mulkins, Johnson county, was called by Mr. Blythe after the shooting. The sheriff brought Matson to Indianapolis in a critical condition. Fingerprint experts here established that he had no criminal record in Indianapolis. The prints will be forwarded to central identification bureau at Washington, Chicago and St. Louis.

Matson denied that he knew the identity of his accomplices and refused to tell police where he had been staying in Indianapolis, to which he said he moved a year ago, beyond admitting he had spent several nights in railroad yards.

He was flashily dressed and had $14, a 25-cent slug and an expensive watch in his pockets.
