

Home Hygiene Class of St. Vincent Guild May Draw Larger Enrollment

Enthusiasm of Pupils Last Year Stirs Other Members of Hospital Group to Interest in Instruction.

LAST year several members of the St. Vincent's Hospital Guild put their spare moments to good use by attending classes in home hygiene and care of the sick, sponsored by the guild. While the members devoted several hours a month in working for the comfort of needy patients at the hospital, this one division of the guild work served a personal need.

Attending the classes once a week for twelve weeks, the women completed the course with a general knowledge of the methods most satisfactory in caring for the ill in the home. Mrs. John Considine, Mrs. Russell White, Mrs. Paul McNamara, Mrs. Fred Krauss, Mrs. Joseph Gramling and Miss Frances Kottman were among the women who enrolled in the classes, formulated by Mrs. Fred A. Thomas. So enthusiastic were these pupils' opinions of the class that several members of the guild will enroll in the classes which Mrs. Thomas is organizing for this season. On Oct. 1 they will begin under the direction of Sister Andrea, instructor of nurses in the hospital; Miss Ruth Zinkan, instructor of practical arts in the training school; Mrs. Thomas, chairman of the Red Cross committee of the guild, and Miss Gertrude Gallagher, dietitian of the hospital.

Seven physicians, members of the hospital staff, will deliver lectures in the various fields of practice. The Red Cross Courier in its August edition commented on the guild's project. In the classes last season working women attended night sessions, and a group of St. Agnes academy students received credit for attendance at Saturday morning classes.

Miss Rose Dowd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. Dowd, will be the only Indianapolis girl in the senior class at St. Mary-of-the-Woods at Terre Haute, when the terms opens Sept. 21. Enrolling as juniors will be Misses Josephine Deery, Catherine Lynch, Ruth Courtney and Gertrude Haxel.

Miss Hardesty's sister, Miss Louise Hardesty, who was graduated from St. Agnes academy last June, will enter the school as a freshman, with Misses Lucille Barry, Kathryn Davis and Eleanor McNamara, all St. Agnes graduates last June. Going back to St. Mary's as sophomores will be Misses Anna Margaret Durkin, Marguerite Blackwell and Berenice Brennan.

Misses Rosemary Delaney and Dorothy Reed will be among the young women to go to St. Mary-of-the-Lake at Notre Dame.

Miss Peggy Morrison will return to Sarah Lawrence college at Bronxville, N. Y.

Solution to Previous Contract Problem

VOLUMES have been written about the finesse. It is one of the simplest plays in bridge, and perhaps the most useful. It is called into service in almost every hand, and gains many a vital trick. In spite of its simplicity, the finesse presents many variations, and few declarers know how to exploit its possibilities fully. One must be alert for opportunities to pick up a trick by an unusual finesse, and this play is often the margin between success and failure.

Hearts and spades showed no possibilities and the club opening indicated a bad distribution in that suit. Furthermore, not more than one extra trick could be established, even if the clubs were favorably distributed. Diamonds offered the best chance and if that suit could be established with the loss of only one trick, success would be assured.

Declarer wisely decided that his best chance was to find the nine of diamonds and one of the high honors in the West hand. Accordingly, he led the five of diamonds. When West played low, the four was played from dummy.

East was obliged to win with the queen and he returned a spade, which declarer won with the ace.

The jack of diamonds was led and it was immaterial whether West covered or not. Declarer was bound to make two spades, two hearts, two clubs and three diamonds, the nine tricks required by his contract.

No opening lead West might select would defeat the contract, if played in this manner. If a heart or a spade were opened, declarer should win the first trick in his own hand and take the deep finesse in diamonds.

He should avoid playing clubs for that suit could not possibly produce enough tricks to make the contract.
