

EASTMAN BACKS FREIGHT DEPOT MERGER IN CITY

Co-Ordinator Issues Denial Unification Would Cut Employees' Staff.

By Times Special
WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Indianapolis will be one of the first cities affected by the railway co-ordination act if present plans are carried out, it was revealed today by Joseph B. Eastman, federal co-ordinator.

His staff men have been spending considerable time "gathering the facts" and a plan for "unification of terminal facilities at Indianapolis" will be worked out in detail as soon as agreement of the roads concerned is obtained, Mr. Eastman said.

"The plan is not sufficiently advanced to give specific specifications at this time," he told The Times.

That the merged facilities at the Indianapolis terminal would mean more unemployment for railroad workers was denied promptly by Mr. Eastman. He cited the 1933 railroad emergency act, under which his planning functions, to show that wholesale unemployment is forbidden.

The act provides that the number of employees in service shall not be reduced because of any action taken under the act below 5 per cent of the number in service during May, 1933.

Mr. Eastman, long-time member of the interstate commerce commission, was appointed railroad co-ordinator by President Roosevelt. The emergency act gives him power to develop plans to co-ordinate services, remove duplicating overhead and unprofitable competition and aid in both physical and financial reorganization of the roads.

Movements similar to that in Indianapolis have been launched at Birmingham and Kansas City.

Report was current that a "study" made in Detroit was dropped because of failure of the roads to agree on a plan.

The whole program is to be extended throughout the country, Mr. Eastman explained.

Report Confirmed Here

Local railroad officials admitted attempts were being made to work out a plan whereby six railroads would use two freight depots here.

Under the plan, the Illinois Central and Nickel Plate would use the Big Four depot, and the Baltimore & Ohio and Monon railroads the Pennsylvania depot.

V. V. Botner, a representative of the federal co-ordinator, is reported to be in charge of negotiations here. The plan would mean the closing of the Illinois Central, Nickel Plate, Baltimore & Ohio and the Monon depots.

BE FRANK, IS EDITOR'S PLEA TO BANK HEADS

Relations With Press Must Be Improved, Says Powell.

business man expects of his bank. I. I. Sperling, Cleveland (O.) Trust Company vice-president, presided.

"The answer," said Mr. Powell, referring to the bankers' question as to what newspaper men want to know about banking, "may be stated in one word—everything."

Blaming "greivous mistakes" by newspaper men on banking stories as well as "flagrant errors" on the part of bankers, Mr. Powell declared that banking at present was suffering from poor press notices.

This, he felt, was foolish and regrettable since while the two might appear far apart, "actually, no two enterprises are more mutually interdependent."

"In a broad sense, the continuance and progress of American civilization rests with the two of us. The average man's only contact with the great economic forces outside his own personal experience is through his bank."

"His only liaison with the whole sweep of human affairs is through his newspaper. One of us has stewardship over what goes into his purse; the other over what goes into his mind. Both are sober responsibilities."

"But we are dependent on each other in a much narrower sense," Mr. Powell continued. "Banking, because it is the core of our economic life, has great power to damage a newspaper. The newspaper, because it is the prime element in contemporary thought, has equally great power to cripple banking. Thus, there is an extremely practical reason why our two professions should arrive at a complete understanding."

Mr. Powell placed a considerable portion of the blame for banking's "poor press" on the bankers' attitude toward reporters in the past, making pointed references to specific treatment given reporters seeking stories from bank officers.

The Indianapolis editor emphasized to the bankers that they made a mistake in bringing their news stories to editors and suggested that they cultivate reporters as well.

He warned, too, against attempts to use what he called "the lineage club" of advertising in attempts to influence or suppress news. These, he said, could not succeed with newspapers working with as advertising media.

"Still another problem which, I believe, needs solution by the banker," Mr. Powell said at another point, "is the matter of adequate and understandable statements."

"In all bank failures which I have observed at close range, the statements before the collapse showed the institution to be in sound condition."

"Now any reporter, or depositor for that matter, easily can figure the value of assets listed as 'cash,' 'government securities' or 'owing from other banks.' He can discover nothing of any real importance from such listings as 'loans on collateral,' 'loans on real estate' and 'other securities.'"

In this connection, Mr. Powell told of banks which, to his knowledge, had overvalued their real estate by hundreds of thousands of dollars.

He urged that bankers acknowledge the necessity of being fully frank with newspapers at all times in the conduct of their business.

In conclusion, after repeating his plea for closer co-operation between banking and journalism, Mr. Powell said he believed newspaper men had a right to expect that bankers would be men of broad social vision, working for the welfare of their communities.

U. S. TO STUDY LOAN PROBLEM

Chicago's Federal Reserve District Chosen for Survey.

By Times Special
WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Within the next six weeks, Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau Jr., will know why loans to legitimate industries are so hard to obtain in the Chicago federal reserve district.

This information now is being gleaned from a study of 4,000 cases scattered throughout the seventh reserve district, including Indiana. A staff of fifty, several of whom were assigned to Indianapolis, Evansville and elsewhere in Indiana, are engaged in the survey, Mr. Morgenthau said.

"We selected this district because it represents the heart of America," Mr. Morgenthau explained.

The federal reserve board, Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the federal Deposit Insurance Corporation is co-operating with the treasury department in conducting the survey.

In a letter to Congressman Louis Ludlow of Indianapolis, Mr. Morgenthau outlined its purpose as follows:

"The purpose of this survey is to gather information as to the availability of bank credit to small and moderate-size industrial and commercial establishments, and where such credit is not available to ascertain whether this is due to the impaired credit status of the borrowers, the desire of the banks for liquidity, the inadequacy of bank resources, or the general state of business conditions."

WHISKY STAMP FRAUD EXPOSED; SUSPECT HELD

Anderson Man Minor Cog in Gang's Operations, U. S. Agents Claim.

Federal agents today continued their investigation of an alleged illicit whisky and counterfeit liquor stamp ring with operations throughout the midwest.

James P. Manley, 23, Anderson (Ind.) tavern operator, was held to the federal grand jury yesterday under $5,000 bond on charge of possession of counterfeit internal revenue stamps. Federal agents are said to have confiscated more than 200 counterfeit strip stamps in Manley's establishment.

The raid revealed a complete plant for making, labeling and stamping whisky, according to agents of the federal alcohol tax unit, who charge that Manley used as well as sold the spurious stamps.

The alcohol officers said that they had received several complaints of bogus liquor stamps, but that this was the first actual arrest in Indiana since repeal on the charge of possession.

The agents indicated that Manley was a minor figure in the "racket" and that other arrests were to be expected.

The pimples festered and were scattered and they itched and burned so badly that I had to scratch them, and my face became disfigured. I lost sleep also. After many months of suffering I noticed an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. It worked miracles so I purchased more, and in only a month my face was healed."
